DAVIS SEES KLINE; MELLON LEAVES

Today

Miss Ellen Still Rules. S. O. Works at Night. No Brain Too Big. Prodigious Primo Teaches.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

HEARST RANCH,
SAN SIMEON, Cal., March 29.

THIS is Middle California, about half way between San Francisco and Los Angeles, tactful residence for one who has powerful newspapers in both cities, and in Oakland, San Francisco's twin, and Chicago's rival.

Coming here, landing at 2:15 a. m. at the San Luis Obispo station, you see California by night.

MISS ELLEN, presiding goddess of "Ye Olde Coffee Shoppe," opposite the station, calm and dignified as ever, still recognizes only railroad men as real people, still wears blonde curls around her chin, and reads the railroad man's mind.

"GIVE me some cookies for a ride," says the handsome young brakeman, as he finishes his coffee. Ellen puts the cookies in a paper bag. She knows they are to board the train with the brakeman.

Steve Zegar, driving you to San Simeon, along the Pacific and its curves in the dark, with his big Packard, is apologetic, because it took him 36 minutes to go 35 miles from San Luis to Cambria, where the paved road ends. About 50 an hour is all he cares to do on the dirt road. It is a little foggy, and there are 53 turns in the 50 miles of road.

SUDDENLY in territory otherwise empty, you see a mass of lights at the ocean's edge, to the left, and a brand new business-like Standard Oil office beside the road on your right.

BENEATH the road a big pipe comes down from Kettleman Hills, carrying oil direct to the brightly-lighted Standard Oil ship, standing off shore. The end of the pipe, attached to a buoy, floats on the ocean. The ship captain picks it up, fills his ship, and is off.

NO lost motion there. Gravity brings down the oil, ships take it east through the Panama Canal, or west to Asia. You must organize to meet modern oil competition.

Don't sell your Standard Oil stocks hurriedly. They might go up, some day.

ALL the world's news comes here by telephone and private wire. You know that foolish waste of time goes on at the London conference, what money costs in New York. At 7 a. m. by this time you have the Wall Street 10 o'clock opening, and the closing prices in Europe.

DR. DANDY, famous Johns Hopkins surgeon, says much of the brain can be taken away without interfering with mental work. He concludes that our brains are unnecessarily big, which may be a mistake.

The rich soil of Texas was unnecessarily deep, when Indians scratched it and planted their corn, and Texas itself was unnecessarily big, then.

BUT deep plows use the deep black soil, deep wells bring up the oil, deep shafts lead down to the valuable metals.

There is no knowing what men may dig from their brain depths, as the convolutions go deeper, and thought, our mental plow, sends the dark thought-bearing cortex farther down into the gray matter.

"THE Broca brain area, the motor area, the body sense area" and "the upper part of the temporal" are the only indispensable brain parts. All of both frontal lobes can be removed in case of necessity. So says the scientist.

That is also true of monkeys from whom we are not yet widely separated. The motor area is for jumping around. "Broca's convolution" is for chattering, no speech without it.

BUT man's destiny is not merely hopping about and chattering.

As this continent now produces things unknown, before white men came, so the human brain, when white men are really civilized, will produce results undreamed of now.

We shall need it all, to grasp even the faintest outline of a universe at which we stare, like babies new-born, blinking at the light.

PRIMO CARNERA, of Italy, first called the "Human Alp," now known to sport writers as the "Prodigious Primo," wanders triumphant from one prize ring to another, his huge size and good natured indifference to punishment making a joke of "fistic skill."

SOMETIMES it takes the imported Latin 30 seconds to finish a proud Nordic. Sometimes a little longer.

Wednesday night the victim was George Trafton, Chicago gentleman, weighing 229 pounds. The prodigious Primo, weighing 271 and a half pounds, knocked Mr. Trafton down three times, then turned his back on the foe, looking off into space, toward Italy.

TRAFTON rushed, Mr. Carnera turned 'round, propelled the fist that reporters playfully call a violin box. A deep sleep descended upon Trafton, who was still asleep when Carnera left the ring, 54 seconds after the fight started.

This performance by Carnera, knocking 12 men unconscious, one after the other, should convince young men that prize fighting is not so important, being largely a matter of bulk. An undersized donkey, with his left hind foot, could do to Carnera what Carnera has done to

Damaging Admissions Made Under Fire; Wife Ready To Fight for Accused

BULLETIN.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 29.—Donnie, 4-year-old son of Irene Schroeder, doomed sweetheart of W. Glenn Dague, was ordered released from custody of Lawrence county authorities and returned to probation officers of Ohio county, W. Va., by Judge R. L. Hildebrand here today.

BY AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 29.—In the presence of a crowded courtroom, W. Glenn Dague, on trial for the slaying of Corp. Brady Paul, resumed the witness stand today in his own defense.

Special Prosecutor Charles J. Margiotti began a running fire of cross-examination that was expected to last most of today.

Dague's deserted wife, Mrs. Theresa Dague, her two children, his father, Albert L. Dague, two brothers and uncle were present.

WIFE MAY TESTIFY

His wife may take the stand in an effort to save Dague from the electric chair, a fate which his sweetheart, Irene Schroeder faces for the same crime.

Margiotti succeeded in wringing an admission from Dague that Ray Horton was forced to the curb and compelled to stop and turn over his automobile at the point of guns. The prosecutor, after hammering Dague with question after question for 15 minutes, wrung another admission from him that his flight from Butler and the gun battle was hastened by fear of apprehension by police. The state contends Corp. Paul was killed by the defendant and his companions in flight from a felony.

"The officer shoved a gun at me through the open window of the car," he declared, "when he returned my wallet. I shoved the door open and the officer moved back. I got out and so did

CASH OFFERED IN MERGER

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—Replying to a speech made at Youngstown by Cyrus S. Eaton, leader of the opposition to the proposed merger of Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, last night reiterated that stockholders who preferred would be paid cash for their Sheet & Tube stock if the merger were effected.

Grace made the statement while commenting on Eaton's assertion that at least 20 per cent of the Youngstown stockholders would ask for cash in preference to Bethlehem stock in the event the consolidation was consummated.

"We will be glad to pay cash to any stockholder who does not want Bethlehem stock on the basis of valuation fixed by any court," Grance said. "When I made the statement that we would pay cash in the deal, I meant exactly what I said."

'SAMARITAN' FATALLY BEATEN

Store Clerk, Robbed by Man He Befriended and Left Alone for Two Days, Dies

Edward Hunter, 53, a good Samaritan, died today in Allegheny General Hospital.

Hunter, a clerk for the Joseph Horne Company, was walking to his rooming house at 616 Jackson street Tuesday with his salary of almost $100 when he met a young man who said he was out of work and funds.

Hunter took him to his room. There the stranger beat his benefactor, left him on the floor of the room and took his money.

From Tuesday to Thursday Hunter lay there alone, police reported. He was found when his employers sent a messenger for him.

He died of pneumonia, induced by exposure and the beating.

STOLEN GOODS RECOVERED

Clothese valued at $22,000 which were stolen from the Washington Dyeing and Cleaning Company on Washington Boulevard six months ago were in the possession of city detectives today, recovered last night in a Monessen store, where six men were arrested.

Trucks loaded with the clothes were starting for Philadelphia when the raid was staged by sleuths.

In Central police court today Ben Needleman, 38, of Avalon street, told this story:

"On the night of October 5, I watched the men robbing the cleaning plant. I followed the trucks they took the clothes away in to a garage in Juliet street, Oakland. I saw them unloading.

"On January 2 I went to that garage and broke in. I took the clothes and put them in a vacant storeroom in Monessen."

Joseph Cushner, 40, of Philadelphia, testified that he was approached by Needleman to buy the clothes.

"I didn't know the clothes were stolen," Cushner testified. "I offered $2,000 for them. Then I brought the Goldstein brothers, Harry and Benny, from Philadelphia, to take the clothes back."

SEND THEM HOME!

RIGHT HON. RAMSAY MACDONALD,
Prime Minister of Great Britain, and Chairman of the British Delegation, London Naval Conference.

In the interest of Anglo-American friendship, Mr. Prime Minister, we ask you to close a conference that would be farcical if it were not tragic, and TO SEND OUR AMERICAN DELEGATION HOME.

Then, Sir, YOU owe a few words of explanation to the American public, whose confidence you sought and won by your liberal promises and your friendly pose on the occasion of your visit to the United States for a conference with President Hoover at Rapidan.

Do you, Sir, judge men by their words or by their deeds? AND ARE WE TO JUDGE YOU BY YOUR WORDS OR BY YOUR DEEDS?

1—Are you the Ramsay MacDonald who with President Hoover signed the manifesto—after Rapidan—stating it was agreed that England and America should work for peace in their separate ways, England in co-operation with the League of Nations and its methods of force, and AMERICA INDEPENDENTLY, ALONG THE LINE OF PEACEFUL EXAMPLE?

Or, are you the Ramsay MacDonald who proceeded from Rapidan to Geneva to tell the League Assembly of THE CLOSE AND INTIMATE CONNECTION BETWEEN LEAGUE COVENANT AND KELLOGG PACT?

2—Are you the Ramsay MacDonald whose government, after the United States had signed the innocent-looking Kellogg Pact, "renouncing war," issued a white paper asserting that, because of the pact and the League Covenant, THERE COULD BE NO MORE NEUTRALS—BUT ONLY BELLIGERENTS—IN WARS OF THE FUTURE?

And are you the Ramsay MacDonald who, in the face of the Rapidan manifesto, proceeded to plot and intrigue at the London conference to get the United States to "IMPLEMENT" the Kellogg Treaty by signing a SECURITY pact with the European powers and Japan—a pact which would make the United States the Guarantor of the security of other nations AT THE SACRIFICE OF ITS OWN PEACE AND SECURITY?

3—Do you, Sir, in your heart mean that the United States and Great Britain shall have equal navies in all categories, as you announced after Rapidan: "TAKE PARITY; TAKE IT FULL AND RUNNING OVER?"

Or, are you throwing dust into American eyes so that, awaiting some future millennium meeting, we shall go to sleep again and not build up to parity with you—JUST AS WE WERE LULLED TO SLUMBER AFTER BEING TRICKED AT THE NAVAL CONFERENCES OF 1922 AND 1927?

4—Are you trying to repeat in London the results of the naval conference at Washington in 1922, when we sank ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS of new battleships, just finished or under construction, against Britain's destruction of copious blueprints and a few utterly obsolete minor vessels?

Was that conference truly described by its president, Charles Evans Hughes, in these super-solemn words:

"This treaty ends, absolutely ends, the race in competitive naval armaments. At the same time, it leaves the relative security of the great naval powers unimpaired."

Or, is that conference truly described by your colleague in Parliament, a distinguished British naval officer, Commander Kenworthy, in his book, "Freedom of the Seas," where he wrote:

"It soon had to be recognized that Great Britain would construe this treaty strictly and would observe its PROVISIONS rather than its PRINCIPLES. The British were prepared to accept PARITY IN CAPITAL SHIPS because competition with America was hopeless. The British experts were arguing to themselves thus:

"'THE BATTLESHIP IS NOT WORTH BOTHERING ABOUT, BUT IN CRUISERS WE CAN COMPETE. IN THAT WEAPON WE ENJOY THE ACCUMULATED EXPERTIZE AND EXPERIENCE OF CENTURIES OF SEA SUPREMACY.'

"So, when it came to cruisers, the British insisted, with success, on NO LIMIT BEING PLACED ON THE NUMBER TO BE BUILT."

Is it not true that Great Britain, after this conference, proceeded to build a great fleet of large cruisers, until today her tonnage of modern large cruisers afloat NOT ONLY EXCEEDS THE TONNAGE OF THE UNITED STATES, BUT THE TONNAGE OF THE ENTIRE WORLD?

5—Is it not true that in January, 1929, when Congress was discussing a naval construction bill designed to give us eventually modern cruisers of 300,000 tonnage—STILL 100,000 TONS SHORT OF THE "PARITY" YOU WANTED US TO TAKE, "FULL AND RUNNING OVER," you published in "The Nation," an American pacifist weekly, an appeal to Congress NOT TO BUILD THAT TONNAGE?

Did you not say, in these hypocritical words:

"I MAY BE ALLOWED, AS AN OUTSIDER WHO IS GREATLY CONCERNED WITH THE MORAL AUTHORITY WHICH EVERY GREAT STATE MUST POSSESS IF WE ARE TO SECURE THE CONDITIONS OF A WORLD PEACE, TO SAY THAT THE EXECUTION OF THAT NAVAL PROGRAM WILL BE A GREAT BLOW TO THE NATION FROM WHICH THE KELLOGG PACT ORIGINATED."

Was that, or was that not, hypocrisy, Sir? You KNEW you were no "OUTSIDER," but the former British Premier, about to become Premier again.

Were not your words intended to have the result they had, the result of stirring our pacifists TO FIGHT AGAINST AN AMERICAN NAVY BASED ON PARITY?

And, by the way, can you point to any magazine article you wrote for British or American pacifists protesting against YOUR OWN Labor Government's 1924 big cruiser program, which started all this cruiser competition?

6—Are you not, Sir, doing your utmost to help create a pacifistic inferior-navy sentiment in the United States, to be directed against Congressional appropriations for a first-class American Navy?

Are you not, Sir, collaborating daily with the half-caste American correspondents of internationally-minded metropolitan newspapers whose publishers wear the decorations of foreign governments for disloyalty to their own?

Are you not, Sir, co-operating with the representatives of the American pacifist and internationalist and League of Nations lobbies present at this London conference, all of them WORKING AGAINST THE NAVAL DELEGATION OF THEIR COUNTRY?

7—In brief, Mr. MacDonald, are you the friend you pretend to be, or are you the slyest, smoothest, trickiest diplomat that has come out of England since the time that Arthur Balfour, in 1922, proceeded gently and painlessly to sink our American Navy, his eyes all the while "full and running over" with tears of gratitude for our saving help in the Great War.

Were you not truthfully and accurately characterized last November by Monsignor F. E. Quirk, pastor of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark, N. J., when he said:

"Premier MacDonald did not come to America for disarmament for GREAT BRITAIN, but for disarmament for the UNITED STATES, and for all other nations that threatened Britain's supremacy."

Mr. Prime Minister, the American people have lost faith in your friendship, have lost faith in your sincerity, have lost faith in your honesty.

SEND THE AMERICAN DELEGATION BACK HOME!

RUMORS LINK GRUNDY, BROWN

Former State Chairman Goes To Florida as Campaign Developments Get Muddled

With attempts at deals rebuffed, candidates for United States Senator today marshaled their forces for a battle to the finish. These were the outstanding developments today:

1—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, Vare candidate for the Senate, arrived here today and conferred with Mayor Charles H. Kline, and Davis' western manager, Joseph G. Armstrong.

3—Philadelphia headquarters, announcing a "no alliance" program, asserted that W. L. Mellon would urge his friends to support Grundy for Senator and Francis Shunk Brown for Governer.

4—Judge James B. Drew's nominating petition for Superior Court judge, with 20,000 signatures from 30 counties, was filed in Harrisburg.

Secretary of Labor Davis, upon arrival at East Liberty Station today, went to Mayor Charles H. Kline's home, where they conferred. Questioned regarding support from Mayor Kline, Davis replied that he had not asked for it. After the Kline conference, Davis went to the home of Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong. He announced he would have a statement to make this afternoon.

With all the turmoil occasioned by the withdrawal of Samuel A. Lewis, and the declaration of Senator Grundy that he was in the race to a finish, W. L. Mellon yesterday embarked for Florida. It was Mellon's absence from Pittsburgh while the Davis-Brown boom gained momentum that riled

France, Britain in Deadlock Over Terms of Security Agreement; Confer Again

LONDON, March 29.—(AP.)—The principles which the American delegation has shaped to guide possible United States participation in a suggested consultative agreement for the benefit of France were said today on the highest authority to have been fully approved by President Hoover.

This statement was in answer to press reports from the Washington correspondents of English newspapers to the effect that the President was unfavorable to the American naval delegation's open-minded attitude toward a consultative pact.

FRANCE DISSATISFIED

Naval conference circles heard persistent reports this morning that negotiations between the French and British to work out the security pact have met failure thus far. One report had it that a complete deadlock had been reached.

French circles were reticent in discussing the reports, but said there was undoubtedly a certain amount of pessimism in some quarters. Jacques-Louis Dumesnil, minister of marine, left this morning for Paris.

CONFERENCE HELD

Foreign Minister Briand, of France, and Rene Massigli, of the French delegation, had lunch with Arthur Henderson, the British foreign secretary, and it was assumed that the situation came up for discussion.

Indications that the experts were still struggling with the security proposal in an effort to reach some kind of an agreement were shown by the fact that Sir Robert Van Sittart and other British foreign office officials met with M. Massigli and other French advisers this morning to continue discussions.

The task of these experts is to find some formula within the orbit of the covenant of the League of Nations which will satisfy the French demand for security and at the same time insure that Great Britain will not be involved in further military commitments.

House Waits for Parley Before Voting Warships

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Intentions of House administration leaders to withhold action on the more than $300,000,000 annual naval appropriation bill for an additional six weeks in the hope that the London naval conference will reach agreement on tonnage if not a reduction in naval armaments was disclosed today by Representative French (Rep.), of Idaho.

DAGUE WAVERS UNDER QUIZ

Irene. The officer backed up and Irene and I both followed him. We told him to drop his gun.

"Irene and I both stood facing him with a gun in his hand when a shot rang out from in back of the car and Paul twitched. He continued to back up and I turned to the front of the car when the officer ran around the car."

The inference in Dague's testimony placed the blame for the shooting of Corp. Paul on his fellow officer, Patrolman Ernest Moore, who was twice wounded in the fatal gun battle. This same inference was brought out in Defense Attorney Thomas W. Dickey's argument to the jury in the trial of Irene.

Dickey and his associate, Benpamin Jarrett, announced last night they intended to call about 10 character witnesses for Dague today.

DESCRIBES HOLDUP

After the defense rests its case, Margiotti plans to call witnesses from cities and towns throughout the country who are expected to testify to Dague's career of banditry with Irene.

All appeared in the trial of the blonde at various times and identified her and her companion as having participated in holdups and robberies at various times last summer. Dague under cross examination declared the purpose of visits to these places was "merely to see the country."

"What was the purpose of your visits?" Margiotti demanded.

"Oh, no particular purpose," Dague replied.

"Whether particular or not, state what reasons you had."

"No reason."

Dague related the story of the Butler holdup, saying it had been previously arranged between Irene, her brother and himself to rob the proprietor.

"Irene went in first," he said.

"What for?" Margiotti asked.

"To buy apples."

"And then you went in?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"To hold up the proprietor."

He demonstrated how this was done, grasping Margiotti by the wrist, and with a gun in his other hand, led him before the jury box as he did to Wish Angert just a short time before the gun battle on the Butler road.

Weather Conditions.

The skies are mostly overcast over the Atlantic Coast states and the lake region, due to low pressure areas, one centered off the Hatteras Coast and another over the lower lakes. It is snowing at scattered places over the lake region and raining over the North Carolina Coast. The precipitation for the last 24 hours was light, except along the South Atlantic Coast, where the amounts were moderate to heavy. At Jacksonville the fall was 1.18 inches and at Tampa [illegible] inches. Low barometer over the far Northwest is causing cloudy weather there, with temperatures above freezing.

Relatively high pressure covers the Plains states and the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, attended by clear skies generally and moderately cold weather. Light to heavy frost occurred over the southern states as far east as Georgia. Over the Dakotas the temperatures range from 16 to 20 degrees, and in Manitoba zero to four degrees above. The indications are for slowly rising temperatures over this section.

THE Rapid City Chamber of Commerce, South Dakota, invites Mr. Al Capone to come there and live, inferentially bringing his "dough," if any.

Mr. Capone is told he cannot remain in Chicago, and Florida says "Not here." That touches the heart of Rapid City, aptly named for a retiring Capone, and it invites the man of dread to settle "where a man is judged by the life he leads now, not by his past record."

THE Bible is quoted by the Rapid City chamber, all about casting the first stone only in case you never did anything wrong yourself. South Dakota's past history can show bad men that would make Capone look like Little Eva in the transfiguration scene.

Some quiet old lady in Rapid City might observe that the Bible never said anything about sawed-off shot or machine guns, about "bumping off," "taking for a ride," or about "pineapple" bomb throwing.

ANTI-DRY SLATE READY TO GO

Former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler, and Francis H. Bohlen, University of Pennsylvania professor, have filed petitions in Harrisburg as candidates heading an anti-dry ticket in the Republican primary.

Phillips is running for governor and Bohlen for United States senator.

The anti-dry ticket moved nearer to completion yesterday when Charles Dorrance, a mining engineer of Scranton, threw his hat in the ring as a candidate for lieutenant governor "on a liberal platform."

Dorrance called attention to a letter from Homer W. Tope, state president of the Anti-Saloon League, to Phillips, asking for an expression of opinion concerning the maintenance and enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, or its repeal, and the repeal of its enforcing law.

Phillips replied that the prohibition laws were the source of so much political corruption and widespread resentment of individuals that for the sake of the stability of our government and the peace of its citizens, the Eighteenth Amendment must be repealed.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Rear Admiral Byrd is an honorary member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. He was elected because he brought his dogs back from the Antarctic instead of destroying them as some explorers have done.

DAVIS AND KLINE MEET; MELLON GOES SOUTH

Former State Chairman Off For Florida as Campaign Developments Get Muddled

FISHER FOR GRUNDY

From the Philadelphia headquarters came word today that Gov. John S. Fisher was expected to support Grundy for renomination. It was Fisher's opposition to Grundy's running mate, Lewis, that caused the latter's withdrawal. From the same source came word that Former Chairman Mellon was urging a Grundy-Brown ticket.

A report that Grundy might effect a deal with Philadelphia politicians whereby Davis would withdraw to permit a harmony ticket headed by Grundy and Davis' running mate for governor, Francis Shunk Brown, was spiked by the secretary.

FIRM ON MAKING RACE

Reports credited Davis with asserting he had been approached, but emphatically denying he would withdraw. The identity of the emissaries was not disclosed.

"I am not going to quit, nor is anyone with authority going to ask me to. That time has passed. Why should I withdraw with the outlook so favorable. I went into this fight with the intention of staying in and I will be there when the polls close on primary day," Davis stated.

PETITIONS SIGNED

Davis was in Brown's office yesterday signing nominating petitions containing more than 100,000 names. Papers placing Davis in nomination were filed in Harrisburg today from 19 counties.

PINCHOT TO TALK HERE

Friends of former Gov. Gifford Pinchot denied that overtures had been made to combine his candidacy with that of Grundy.

Pinchot's only running mate so far is C. F. Armstrong, of Armstrong County, who was chairman of the law and order committee during Pinchot's term as governor and handled all dry legislation.

Pinchot will be here to consult his campaign advisers tomorrow and to address Western Pennsylvania supporters Monday at a luncheon meeting in the William Penn Hotel.

Pinchot headquarters will be opened Monday in the Magee Building, Fourth avenue.

Happiness Balks U.S. Communism, Hurley Says

NEW YORK, March 29.—(INS.)—There is more happiness in America than in any other country in the world and for that reason the United States need not fear Communism.

That is the opinion of Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, a New York visitor, today.

"There is no Communism menace here," he said.

DRYS TRAILING IN AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 29.—(AP.)—Incomplete returns in the prohibition poll taken yesterday in the state of Victoria today indicated that the opponents of the prohibition of alcoholic liquors would be successful.

The votes thus far gave those who voted no, or the anti-drys, 255,872, while those who voted yes, or the drys, polled 198,025. The antis were leading in every district but one.

Yesterday's vote was the first time in the history of the state of Victoria that such a poll had been taken. The campaign was greatly intensified during the closing weeks and debate was widespread.

The name of the United States figured prominently in propaganda which flooded every corner of the state and every effort was exhausted in the most intensive and most widely talked-of poll ever held in Victoria.

Returns from many electorates in the country were yet to be received and the dry leaders were watching these eagerly.

The anti-drys were showing their heaviest majorities in the industrial suburbs. The drys were still holding their lead in one district.

Majority of Illini Co-Eds Vote Dry

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 29.—(INS.)—Non-drinking men students at the University of Illinois are in the minority whereas the majority of co-eds do not drink, it was revealed today in a three-day poll taken by the Daily Illini, student newspaper.

Out of a present registration of 10,000 students, a total of 3,992 votes were obtained. Among fraternity men, 1,372 asserted they drank while 744 said they were abstainers. The poll taken among sorority women showed that 521 do not drink as compared with 267 who asserted they do drink.

Tale of Bath Tub Reveals Enmity, Not Courtesy

HARRISBURG, March 29.—(AP.)—This is the tale of a tub.

Recently a bathtub of unusually large proportions was found in a subcellar of the Capitol here and the rumor spread that it had formerly belonged to the late Senator Boies Penrose, having been installed in the executive mansion for his especial use. When no buyer could be found for the tub, it was sold as junk for $1.50, and the "lucky' purchaser was supposed to have struck a real bargain.

The tale of the tub was punctured when it was revealed that it had not belonged to the late Senator and was not installed in the executive mansion for his especial use. While the tub formerly was installed in the executive mansion, it was placed there during the administration of the late Gov. Hastings, who was so much at odds with Penrose that he was concerned only with the gentleman's political purging and not his physical ablutions.

And now the tub will remain "just a piece of junk."

HOOVER RULE ASSAILED BY OPPONENTS

Opposition Leaders Say G.O.P. Legislative Record Is Worst in 50 Years

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP.)—A concerted attack was directed at the record of the Hoover administration last night by three Democratic congressional leaders.

Issuing statements or speaking by radio, they charged the President with "lack of leadership," asserted the administration had utterly collapsed and assailed the legislative record of Congress since Mr. Hoover became President.

Through the Democratic national committee, statements were issued by Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, and Representative Garner, of Texas, the Democratic leader in the House, while Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, delivered an address over the National Broadcasting Company chain.

CHARGES COLLAPSE

Caraway asserted that if Mr. Hoover is not aware of the "utter collapse of the administration, both legislative and administrative, he is the only intelligent person who is not."

The farmers will be in a "bad way," he continued, "if everyone is satisfied with the legislative achievements of this administration which has to its credit only the so-called farm relief and tariff bill, neither of which promises the slighted relief to oppressed agriculture."

"WORST IN 50 YEARS"

Garner asserted that "there hasn't been a Congress in the last 50 years that has not done better" than the present one, listing as its accomplishments the passage of farm relief, congressional reapportionment and tax reduction legislation.

Byrns centered his attack upon the tariff bill.

"At this time," he said, "it appears that the crowning achievement of the Hoover administration will be the President's signing of the Grundy tariff bill."

ASSAILS HUSTON

The Tennessean also referred to the President's selection of Claudius Huston as chairman of the Republican National Committee, which he said Senator Fess had omitted in his summary of the Hoover accomplishments. Byrns then recalled the testimony before the Senate Lobby Committee on Huston's use of funds, collected for the Tennessee River Improvement Association, in stock market transactions.

ANTIS COMBINE TO OUST DRYS

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—A rally of national anti-prohibition organizations in Washington to draft a united political program in the forthcoming congressional elections was proposed today by Dr. F. W. Buck, executive secretary of the Federal Dispensary Tax Reduction League.

Invitations will be extended to heads and active workers in the organizations for a dinner gathering tentatively set for April 9, Dr. Buck said.

"With the conclusion of the hearings before the House Judiciary Committee on bills to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, I believe the national organizations should get together and decide upon sor of the cardinal principles to be pursued, particularly with regard to candidates," said Dr. Buck.

Chicago Favors Dry Repeal in 4-1 Vote

NEW YORK, March 29.—(INS.)—Chicago is voting nearly four to one for repeal over enforcement in the Literary Digest prohibition poll, according to an incomplete analysis of votes in several cities, it was announced today. The vote in Chicago showed 11,913 for enforcement, 27,696 for modification, 43,093 for repeal.

Two cities in Missouri and two in Iowa gave majorities for enforcement.

CARRICK POLICE AGAIN SAVE LIFE OF INFANT WITH OXYGEN

TINY PATIENT REVIVED BY GAS

Warrington Avenue Parents Call Aid When Baby Sinks From Pleurisy and Measles

Carrick station police for the second time in a month were summoned this morning to administer oxygen to a child believed to be dying.

This morning's victim, who was revived after a three-hour fight, is Thomas Plunkett, 7-month-old son of William Plunkett, of 2200 Arlington avenue.

Wagonmen Charles Scherlein and John Shaughnessey answered the call for oxygen from the parents, who explained that the child was apparently sinking from the effects of pleurisy and measles. Two tanks of oxygen were administered with an inhalator and at dawn the baby was resting comfortably.

The family physician, Dr. D. L. Rectenwald, has been ill since his last visit to the Plunkett home and had left instructions that oxygen be administered if the baby's condition became worse.

Oxygen was credited with saving the life of Ruth Barney, 11, of Arkansas avenue, Dormont, Thursday. Ruth, a pupil at St. Bernard's School in Mt. Lebanon, was suffering pneumonia, which developed from measles. Firemen pumped oxygen into her lungs and the improvement was immediate.

CAPONE SPURNS S. DAKOTA BID

CHICAGO, March 29.—(INS.)—Alphonse Capone has declined an invitation to visit the great open spaces in South Dakota where, according to the invitation, "the stranger is not judged by reports of his past record."

Dan Evans, president of the Rapid City, S. D., Chamber of Commerce, extended the invitation to Capone. The gang commandant was assured of the utmost hospitality in a community "free from crime." Evans' invitation quoted the scriptural passage against throwing stones at sinners.

"I'll cast the first stone," said Gov. W. J. Bulow, of South Dakota, upon learning of the message. "We don't care to have Capone or any of his friends here in this law-abiding state."

When he learned of the invitation, Capone said he had no desire to visit the Black Hills and will save Gov. Bulow the trouble of chasing him from the state.

BOMBS MENACE GARY'S HALL

GARY, Ind., March 29.—(AP.)—Police today credited Roy McConnell, a steelworker, with saving Gary's new $1,000,000 City Hall.

McConnell noticed a bundle of whitish sticks in the entrance of the structure as he was walking by, last night — he found eight sticks of dynamite.

Police believe the sticks were placed there by foes of Mayor R. O. Johnson's campaign against liquor and vice, and that McConnell's approach frightened the bombers away before they could attach the fuses.

One Dead, 2 Missing In Building Collapse

CINCINNATI, O., March 29.—(AP.)—One man was dead, two were missing and four others injured, one perhaps fatally, last night as the result of the collapse of a four-story building in which hundreds of tons of rolled roofing paper was stored on the two upper floors.

BRUENING FILLS CABINET JOBS

BERLIN, March 29.—(INS.)—Dr. Heinrich Bruening, ambitious young Chancellor-designate, was expected to lay a completed cabinet list before President Von Hindenburg tonight.

Given a free hand by the President because of the difficulties of forming a government on a coalition basis similar to the Mueller cabinet, which resigned Thursday, Dr. Bruening proceeded with his task on a nonpartisan basis.

It was expected that his cabinet would come from the middle parties in the Reichstag, comprising principally the Conservative element, with the possible inclusion of one of the group of "Moderate" Nationalists that seceded from the extreme Nationalist leadership of Dr. Alfred Hugenberg.

Peru Names Court To Hear Lee's Suit

LIMA, Peru, March 29.—(AP.)—"La Prensa" publishes a decree from the ministry of public works setting a term for establishment of a court of arbitration which will decide Bertram Lee's claim against Peru for cancellation of his concession to build the Yurimaguas Railway.

Bertram Lee, Pittsburgh business man and head of a group which, in 1928, obtained a 12,500-acre concession in the Peruvian Andes, planned to build a railroad. The government canceled the concession last winter on the ground that work had not been started before the time limit expired.

Talkies Can't Hurt Stage, Arliss Says

NEW YORK, March 29.—(INS.)—The talkies will never eliminate the stage and actually will improve conditions for the speaking theater by making dialogue entertainment more popular, according to George Arliss, famous actor of both mediums, who is a visitor here today from England.

"People want to see flesh and blood, and no matter how perfect the talkies may become, the stage will remain," he said.

SEE COSGRAVE RE-ELECTION

DUBLIN, March 29.—(INS.)—The prevailing opinion in political circles today was that William T. Cosgrave, president of the executive council of the Irish Free State, who resigned yesterday with his cabinet, would be re-elected to his post when the Dail Eireann reassembled next Wednesday.

Cosgrave resigned rather than accept an opposition amendment to the pensions bill, which called for additional funds for old age doles.

The Fianna Fail, chief opposition party, with 57 members in the Dail, has sent a call to America for Eamonn de Valera, their leader, on a lectu tour there. Then there is a third candidate, T. J. O'Connell, parliamentary leader of the Irish Labor party. The Labor party, with 13 members in the Dail, holds, in many instances, the balance of power because of the slight difference in strength of the Fail and Cosgrave's party, which has 63 seats.

DEFENSE FEARS TO PUT LILA ON STAND

Attorneys Not Sure What Temperamental Indian Might Say in Murder Trial

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 29.—Lila Jimerson, "The Red Lilac of the Cayugas," on trial for the hammer murder of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand, probably will not take the stand in her own defense. It was indicated today that her attorneys have concluded her ends would best be served by keeping her out of the witness box.

The dark-eyed Lila is such a strange and unmanageable personality her lawyers are not sure what she would do or say if she took the stand.

STILL LOVES ARTIST

Lila entertains a feeling of disappointment, bordering on anguish, toward her former sweetheart, Henri Marchand, the distinguished sculptor who played with her love and who is the husband of the woman who was slain by the old Indian woman, Nancy Bowen, allegedly at the instigation of Lila. It is no secret among Lila's close Indian friends that she still cares for Marchand, the vagabond lover, who casually admitted on the stand his "affair" with Lila and his romances with many other women, none of whom he took seriously.

FEAR IMPLIED GUILT

Lila's lawyers realize that her failure to testify might imply guilt to the minds of certain jurors and that is why they are finding it so difficult to definitely make up their minds on the question of whether she should or should not testify.

There was no session of the trial today, the case having been adjourned late yesterday when the state rested until Monday.

1 DEAD, 4 HURT IN P. R. R. WRECK

PHILADELPHIA, March 29.—(INS.)—One trainman was killed and three others were injured early today when a fast New York-Wilmington freight train of the Pennsylvania Railroad was wrecked at the Frankford junction of the lines here. High-voltage electric power lines with their supporting towers were torn down, adding to the damage.

Fireman Arthur Robinson, Jersey City, who was crushed, burned and scalded, died, and Engineer John P. Hagan, Philadelphia, suffering similar injuries, is not expected to recover.

MOTHER, INFANT SAVED IN FIRE

ROCHESTER, Pa., March 29.—Fire sweeping a block in the business section of Rochester today damaged six buildings, routed four families and caused loss estimated at $30,000.

Trapped in her apartment over the Grossman dry goods store, Mrs. Theodore Doyle and her four-day-old child were saved by her husband and Joseph Pale, a neighbor, who discovered the fire when they returned from work. The families of John C. Cecula, Walter Berryman and Albert Crom were also routed.

Fireman Francis Heuring was cut and bruised in a plunge down a stairway.

Flying sparks ignited the barracks of the Salvation Army in Piney street, in the rear of Brighton street, and spread to the W. A. Nicholas delicatessen adjoining the barracks.

Morris Grossman, owner of all the buildings damaged, placed his loss at $20,000. The other $10,000 loss was to merchandise and stock.

Surrogate Foley reserved decision on the petition and gave opposing counsel until Wednesday to submit briefs.

SHEPARD FACES SECOND CHARGE

DENVER, Col., March 29.—(AP.)—The finger of federal suspicion today again pointed at Maj. Charles A. Shepard, Army medical officer, as authorities investigated an assertion that not only one but two of the surgeon's wives died peculiarly while he "was enamored of another woman."

While Shepard was held in the county jail here, charged in a federal warrant with poisoning his second wife at Fort Riley, Kan., the district attorney's office at Tokepa, Kan., began a probe of the death of his first wife.

From his cell the army officer denied vigorously that there was anything mysterious about his first wife's death and refused further comment.

5 MEN BEAT CAB DRIVER ON STREET

Opposing Forces in Taxi Strike Await Decision Of Court on Injunction

Police today were searching for five young men who attacked Frank O'Brien, 39, of 5 Geyer avenue, a Yellow Cab driver, while he was walking in Sixth street, near Duquesne way, last night.

O'Brien was knocked to the ground by his assailants who lunged at him as he neared Duquesne way, police said. He suffered lacerations of the head which required three stitches at the Allegheny General Hospital.

Awaiting the decision of Judge Joseph M. Swearingen on the injunction in the taxicab strike, the forces in the taxi strike today were apparently idle but alert.

No apparent effort to extend the service of the taxicabs has been made by the cab companies. About the same number of cabs, 30, which Mayor Charles H. Kline is permitting to operate, are continuing to traverse the downtown district.

Mayor Kline has not indicated when the order which he issued a week ago permitting operation from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., will be changed. He was reported several days ago to have given the companies permission to put on 30 additional cabs. These, however, have not been put in operation.

Meanwhile "hackers" are reaping a harvest, operating from hotels and other strategic points. No taxicabs are permitted to park on the stands at hotels and other spaces reserved by city ordinance. Hackers are apparently immune from any "no parking" rules on the taxicab "stands."

Briefs were filed yesterday by both sides in the injunction hearing. Judge Swearingen may not give a decision until Monday. The Yellow Cab Company was granted a preliminary injunction against the Strikers' Relief Fund cab operation and is seeking a temporary injunction until Public Service Commission certificates of convenience are granted to operators of these cars.

Chester H. Waddle, vice chairman of the strikers' committee, was released on his own recognizance when arraigned yesterday before Judge Ambrose B. Reid until he can post $500 bond on a surety of the peace charge.

HOOVER O. K.'S HAITI REPORT

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP.)—President Hoover believes he can best fulfill American obligations in Haiti by carrying out the recommendations of the Forbes Commission that marine forces be gradually withdrawn from the island republic and diplomatic relations instituted.

Accordingly, he has accepted the commission's report, submitted less than two months after its appointment, as the basic policy of his administration in dealing with Haitian affairs. This became known late yesterday simultaneously with the publication of the report.

Under its terms, the United States will recognize Eugene Roy as president and his provisional government which will succeed that of President Borno on May 15. When deputies and senators have been elected as a subsequent step, and they in turn have named a president, that official and his government also will be recognized.

Bride Gets Surprise Honeymoon Voyage

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Forrest W. Stewart, a bride, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., is having a surprise honeymoon trip aboard the trans-Atlantic liner, Olympic. She boarded the liner with friends ostensibly to see the ship and found that a suite was reserved for herself and husband. Then her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Chapman, telephoned bon voyage. They were in on the secret.

27 Mules, 25 Horses Perish in Army Fire

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—Twenty-five horses and 27 mules perished early today in a fire that destroyed the wooden stables of the Sixteenth Infantry at Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island.

The fire was discovered at midnight by a sentry, but spread so rapidly that soldiers who wrapped coats about their heads and braved the flames were able to save only three horses.

Pair on Honeymoon After Hunting Squire in Snow

W. C. McCaffrey, Pittsburgh auto salesman, and his bride were on a honeymoon today, following one of the strangest marriage ceremonies on record.

Trudging behind a county snow plow the couple walked four miles through snowdrifts to be wed by Justice of the Peace A. T. Lorch. The ceremony was performed at midnight Thursday in the county warehouse at Blawnox and was witnessed by a group of county workmen who turned their lunch period into a wedding supper for the couple.

The unusual ceremony came about because McCaffrey insisted that the marriage be performed by Squire Lorch, a friend. When he took his bride, the former Mary Carroll Yetter, of Butler, to Lorch's home he found that the squire was clearing away snow from the county roads. McCaffrey and his bride then trudged through the snowdrifts to find him.

Neighborly Bridge Game Ends in Divorce Suit

A bridge foursome has developed into a court battle—one for divorce.

Harvey Sindorf, Jr., 26, of Glenshaw, a draftsman and Carnegie Tech student, yesterday opened suit against his wife, naming as co-respondent Roland G. Glover.

Glover and his wife and the Sindorfs participated in bridge foursomes every night when they were neighbors in Brookline, Sindorf declared. He said he noticed the friendliness of his wife for Glover in 1928 over the bridge table and that in January, 1929, Mrs. Sindorf deserted him and he had seen her thereafter in company with Glover in an automobile.

Testimony was to be resumed today.

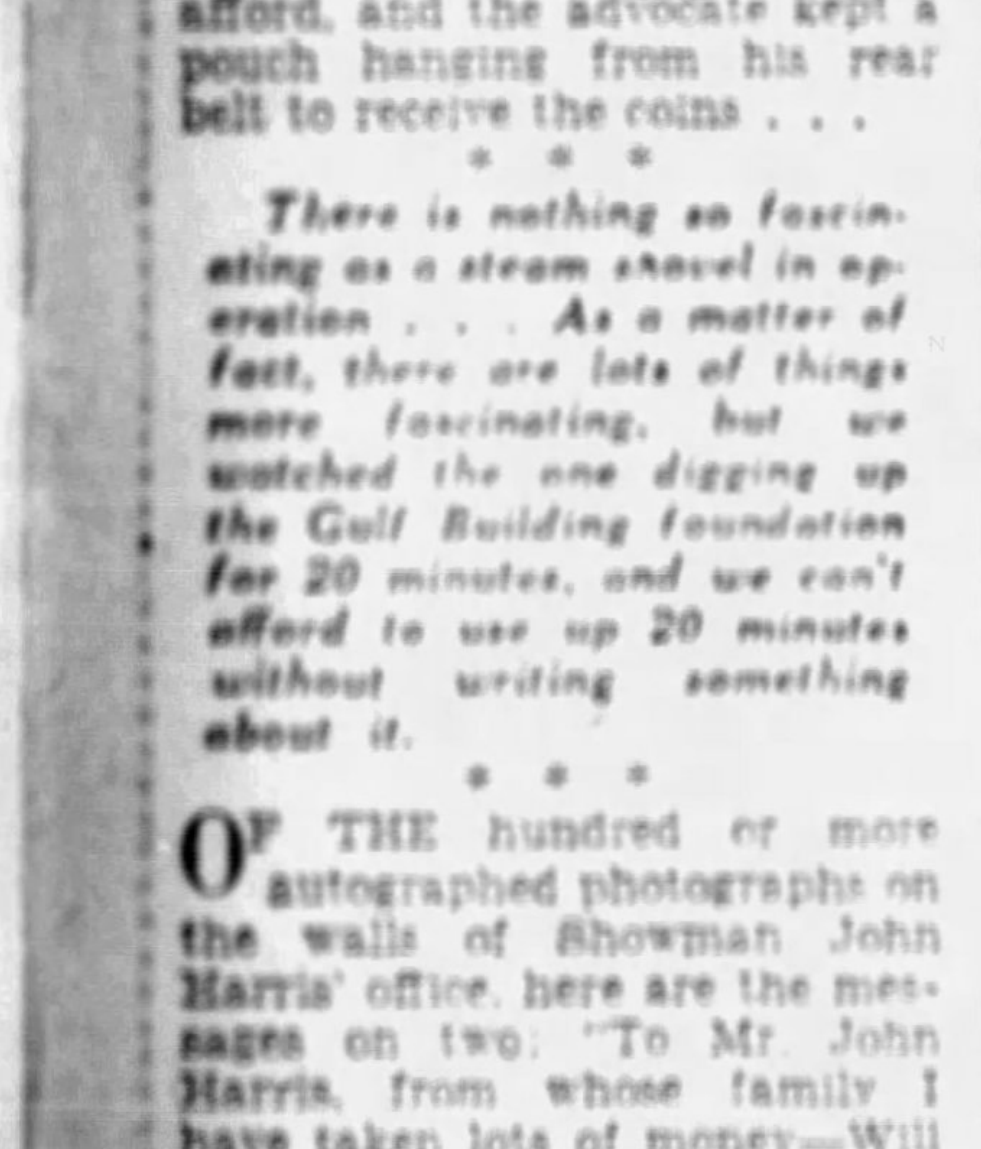
OF THE hundred or more autographed photographs on the walls of Showman John Harris' office, here are the messages on two: "To Mr. John Harris, from whose family I have taken lots of money—Will Rogers," and "From a red-headed Hollywood girl to a brunette Pittsburgh boy, and how!—Clara Bow."

Will Rogers Says:



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 29.

Projection Room Error Makes Stage Actor Greta's Hero

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 29.

MISTAKES can be darn profitable. There's that concerning Javin Gordon, Greta Garbo's lead in "Romance." Gordon was playing in a local legit offering some months ago, M. G. M. sent for him and made a test. In the meantime, Clarence (Director) Brown tested several youths for the lead opposite Garbo. He and Greta trailed into a projection room to look them over. By mistake, the projectionist ran that of Javin Gordon. Mr. Brown and Miss Garbo were so taken with him that he ultimately got the part in "Romance."

WHY NOT SOONER?

AND this reminds me. A slew of letters come to this department complaining that some mentionees in the colyum are unknown to readers. Hollywood is full of screen unknowns. Stage recruits. Many are armed with contracts and cast for prominent roles. They merit space. We'll know them sooner or later. Why not sooner?

NOT TAKING ANY CHANCES

APROPOS of the story run in this space that RKO had purchased Edna Ferber's new novel "Cimarron," I am told that Richard Dix will portray the stellar part. The picture is not scheduled to go into production until June. In the interim, Dix, it is said, will go into rigid training. He will evidently appear in "Cimarron" minus any suggestion of waist girth. For a while, Richard did appear a bit heavy. Avoirdupois runs in his family. He keeps on a fair diet while working, but in the case of a picture as important as "Cimarron," Dix is not taking any chances, diet and training.

Greta Garbo.

MENJOU'S RETURN

NOW that the Adolphe Menjous (Katherine Carver) are back in the colony from a prolonged sojourn in Paris plans are afoot for Menjou's return to the American screen. He is under contract to no one at present. Several companies are dickering for him, but Adolphe is in no particular hurry.

He made one picture while in Paris. A talky—two versions—French and English. He will return at a later date to make another. Ean Lemur, his director, remained in France to megaphone a musical comedy.

Richard Dix

Menjou found working conditions pleasant enough on the other side, but the French studio was not equipped in the efficient manner of an American ditto. He had his share of illness, too. Plus an operation for acute appendicitis. Ergo, both he and Katherine are pleased to be home.

CAN HE DO IT?

BUSTER WEST, the wee funster, opines that assistant directors were much better off as yes-men in silent pictures.

"We were doing dialogue scenes in a sound-proof booth recently," recounted Buster, "when a sudden rumble put a stop to things.

"What's that racket?" yelled the director, as the scene was N. G.ed.

"It's thunder," explained his assistant.

"Well, get out and stop it. And don't let it happen again!"

Gay Heroine

Sue Carol is the gay heroine in "The Golden Calf," talk picture which opens today in the Sheridan Square.

W. & J. Alumni Hold Annual Banquet

Western Pennsylvania alumni of Washington and Jefferson College elected J. P. Williams, of Dormont, as president for the coming year at the annual banquet last night in the William Penn Hotel. Edwin S. Wallace, writer and former consul general to Palestine, spoke, and W. Heber Dithrich, Allegheny County solicitor, was toastmaster. Other officers elected were W. W. Murray, vice president; Joseph O'Donnell, secretary, and Joseph Langfitt, treasurer.

Anti-Saloon Leader Attacks Scoffers

"Those laboring overtime to discredit prohibition" were criticized by the Rev. David E. Crues, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Western Pennsylvania, in an address before the Henry George Club yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce Building. He quoted heads of steel mills and manufacturing plants employing thousands of workmen to refute the claim that there is more liquor consumed now than before prohibition.

Wife, Husband Hurt By 'Unloaded' Gun

As a result of examining a revolver believed unloaded, Owen Brown, 19, and his wife, Mildred, 18, were recovering today at their home in 459 Merchant street, Ambridge, from bullet wounds of the hands. Brown was about to show the weapon to a friend last night when the only bullet in the magazine exploded, police were told.

The bullet pierced the husband's hand and three fingers of Mrs. Brown, according to a police report.

India Steel Master To Visit in Farrell

FARRELL, Pa., March 29.—Former Postmaster John Leyshon, now superintendent of a steel plant at Galmorri, India, with his family, will visit relatives and friends. They will sail from Bombay, April 6, and will arrive here about May 15 after a brief visit in England and Wales.

IT'S HELLO DOWLING, GOODBYE POWELL, IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Dick Powell's farewell week opened yesterday in the Stanley. It is embellished with both stage and screen appearances of Eddie Dowling, musical comedy star, and with a stage revue, "River Blues."

The picture is titled "Blaze O' Glory." In reality, it is more a blaze of blonde Betty Compson romance, Dowling songs, courtroom melodramatics and big war guns.

The story, stripped to the skeleton, is that of a gassed war veteran, who, in peace time, murders a man whom he spared as an enemy on the battle front. The central setting is a courtroom with the murder trial in progress. Flashbacks detail the events that lead up to the crime.

THESE MOVIE IDEAS!

Acquittal comes for the hero after Henry B. Walthall, as defense attorney, orates like a clergyman and fills the jury's ears with sentimental hokum. The idea that war is "murder," which is introduced, may be all right. We won't argue the point. But the idea that the effects of war excuse murder in peace times just bowls us over.

Frankie Darro, as a friendless little newsboy, whom the hero adopts, sneaks the "Sonny Boy" complex in.

There is one episode which shows the soldier boys off to the war. Hundreds pass on their embarking way toward ship. But only one has a sweetheart, bidding adieu. Which speaks well for the Don Juan qualities of our hero. But it sure pushes Old Man Realism overboard.

LIVELY FAREWELL

A lively stage show helps Mr. Powell say farewell. Scenic settings introduce your favorite rivers, from the Danube to the Ohio, and some dandy entertainers cavort about them, including Eddie Dowling. However, we didn't see Mr. Dowling in person. He didn't arrive until night performances yesterday—and we have a weakness for the matinees.

Well, we've come to the goodbys, Mr. Powell. And we want to say we like the way you presented your farewell song yesterday. We like the way you smile and the way you handle your master of ceremonies role. And we like most of all your happy frankness. You never are a pretender to talents you don't possess. So here's a friendly slap on the back. "Bon Chance" to you.

Resume Street Car Wage Parley Monday

P. J. McGrath, secretary of Division No. 85, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, said that wage negotiations between street car men and the Pittsburgh Railways Company would be resumed Monday. Nothing will be announced until after further deliberations, he declared.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Have restaurant "No Smoking" signs become a relic of the past, or do ladies really appreciate this rule meant for their comfort?

Miss Schultz

MISS ROSE SCHULTZ, Lawrenceville Open Air School teacher: "I think that they ought to remain up. Smoking in public is not yet established, and a great many persons object to it."

Miss Greeley

ELLA GREELEY, Bloomfield, cook: "In my estimation, they should be left hanging. If people want to smoke, of course, that's their business, but they should not force it on others."

Joe Wertheim

JOE WERTHEIM, Bigelow boulevard, confectioner: "Well, almost everybody smokes, these days — women and men. The rule isn't meant for their comfort, anyhow. I read in the paper just a few days ago where the reason you can't smoke in some restaurants is because it keeps you lingering over your coffee too long. 'Comfort' is sure a good excuse."

Miss Ripley

MISS FRANCIS RIPLEY, Wilkinsburg, clerk: "It depends on the character of the restaurant. You expect smoking in some types of restaurant nowadays. I don't think smoke bothers anybody."

Mrs. Blum

MRS. MARGARET BLUM, East End, clerk: "Smoking has become so prevalent among women of today that a sign 'No Smoking' is scarcely noticed. In the most popular dining places, I doubt if you will see the sign displayed."

Miss Howard

MISS JANE HOWARD, Sheraden, music supervisor: "It depends on the ladies. The people who are not used to seeing smoking around would appreciate the sign, but others who are used to smoking and to seeing it around think nothing of it. I never noticed a sign."

With Walter Winchell On Broadway

NEW YORK, March 29.

GOLLY!

VARIETY has discovered a new stunt employed by a jealous wife, a trick that not only gives a husband the jeebies, but probably would frighten "the other woman" out of her wits as well as the place. The husband, it appears, is in New York and the wife telephoned him from Pittsburgh the other four a. m.: "Have you a woman in that room?" she asked.

Winchell.

"Of course not, honey," said her husband.

"Well," she countered, "if you haven't then repeat this after me: If there is a woman in this room, I hope she dies before she leaves it!"

Friends are now offering the husband addresses of women known to be somewhat hard of hearing.

AS IF YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Philip R. Davis says the only way to find complete enjoyment with one woman is to be frightfully annoyed by another woman.

ANECDOTE

CAREY M'WILLIAMS' biog of Ambrose Bierce (A. and C. Boni), is chock full of breezy bits. Frixample A Miss McCarthy enjoyed annoying Bierce, who was an agnostic, and one day asked him why he always said, "God Bless You!" when he did not believe in God.

"If I actually believed in Him," replied Bierce, "I wouldn't dare mention His name."

IN FEWER WORDS

Ambrose Bierce is also responsible for these definitions: Bore—A person who talks when you wish him to listen . . . Egoist—A person of low taste, more interested in himself than in me . . . Admiration—Our polite recognition of another's resemblances to ourselves. . . . Sycophant — One who approaches greatness on his belly so that he may not be commanded to turn and be kicked. He is sometimes an editor.

PROPHECY

SPRING will blow gay trumpets
And bring fresh lures,
And I will kiss a new mouth
As sweet as yours.

Spring, forever prodigal,
Will spill her wine;
And you will rest in young arms
As strong as mine.

—Sidney P.

HEHEHEH

The girl in the office next door observes that if Mae West wins her case against the police raiders she'll get so chesty they'll never find a brassiere to fit her.

REPRISAL

To hear the wags tell it the reason New York show failures are sent to Boston is to punish Boston for what it did to Sacco and Vanzetti.

JUST FOR THE RECORDS

CONTINUING from where we left off the other column concerning Rudy Vallee's book and that part of it where he says "Mabel Wayne is the one woman song writer whose songs have lived"—how about that other little lady whose songs haven't exactly died?

Meaning Carrie Jacobs Bond and her "Mighty Lak a Rose" and "End of a Perfect Day" classic, to mention but two of them.

THE BROADWAY CODE

It takes a mighty big man to apologize and a damb fool to accept it.

A FORM OF CRITICISM

A DETROIT wit says that the month's Award for Cynical Typsetting should be handed to the Kansas City genius who described a well-known concert pianist as "the prominent painist."

NATURALLY

Texas Guinan amazes members of her sex with her reducing miracles. They still marvel at the fact that not long ago Miss Guinan dropped forty pounds in one month by strenuous exercise.

"Goodness!" ejaculated one woman, "doesn't such strenuous exercise affect her heart?"

"Not hers," replied a columnist, "it's too callous from crossing it with her fingers in courtrooms!"

Chamber to Start Building Loan Study

A study to determine whether it would be more economical to maintain the State Building and Loan Department independently of the commonwealth's banking department, has been started by the Building and Loan Council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. Hubbs Weimer, chairman of the council, yesterday appointed a committee to make an investigation. The committee is to be made up of three attorneys, three presidents and three secretaries of building and loan associations.

Dorian Club Rooms Damaged by Fire

Members of the Dorian Club, a Masonic organization of Sewickley, today were making arrangements to repair their clubrooms in Broad street made necessary by a fire which caused damage estimated at $100 last night.

Spring Is Here—Perhaps?

If the cold snap didn't nip the desire in the bud, you may want to make your first early season automobile tour tomorrow. In the Sunday Sun-Telegraph there will appear the first of a Sunday series of auto tours and maps—a trip through the new overflowing maple sugar camps of Somerset County. The automobile editor of this newspaper has just made this trip, and he gives you the complete details and observations tomorrow. If the weather is not right, however, you can cut out this valuable and informative article and make the trip a little later in the season.

In Air Drama

Helen Chandler is heroine in "The Sky Hawk," talk film which will supplant "The Rogue Song" in the Aldine next Friday, when that theater and the Penn inaugurate a new opening day.

Installation Monday By Passenger Club

New officers of the Pittsburgh Passenger Club will be installed at the seventh annual banquet of the club in the Hotel Henry Monday night. The new officers are: President, J. J. Livingston; vice president, K. V. Henderson; secretary, Daniel Bucy; treasurer, S. W. Sankey, and new members of the executive committee, P. McK. Snyder, William Saylor and L. A. Boeggeman.

Police Hunt Bandits After Home Robbery

Five bandits who invaded the home of George Stern, at 2816 Bedford avenue, and robbed him of $60 after cutting the telephone wires, were being sought by police today. Stern was alone when the thugs entered with revolvers and ordered him to throw up his hands late yesterday, police say.

NEW STAGE DRAMAS AND NOTES ABOUT FILM BILLS

"Strange Interlude" opens in the Nixon Monday at 5:30 o'clock. The plot of this Eugene O'Neill drama is that of the devastation that comes into the life of one woman who, in compensation for the loss of her sweetheart in the war, seeks to absorb the lives of three other men—her husband, her sweetheart and her friend.

Next Monday night in the Alvin, "The Merry Widow" will open its limited engagement of one week. There is a tangible plot, consistently developed, that intrigues one's interest in the beginning, it is said. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Seats now on sale at the box office.

The George Sharp Players will present the John Golden comedy drama, "Two Girls Wanted," in the Pitt next week.

NEW FILMS TODAY

"The Golden Calf," featuring Sue Carol, Jack Mulhall and El Brendel, opens today as the new talk screen feature in the Sheridan Square.

Jack Holt's new talkie, "Vengeance," comes to the Harris today. It is a drama of the Congo. A new stage show, with Dick Ware continuing as master of ceremonies, also will be offered.

"Under a Texas Moon," Technicolor comedy melodrama, which stars Frank Fay, is on its second week in the Warner.

DANCERS AND MYSTERY

Among the featured artists in "Jack Sidney's Broadway Revue," the stage attraction in the Penn for four days, beginning Monday, are Erner and Fisher, eccentric dancers; La Salice Brothers, burlesque adagio dancers; Marie and Antoinette, harmony singers; Bobby London; Freddie Byron and Jack Sidney and his Syncopators. The screen attraction will be M. G. M.'s talking mystery drama, "The Bishop Murder Case," with Basil Rathbone, Leila Hyams, Roland Young and George F. Marion.

Billy Bevan, the well-known laugh-maker, who has appeared in more than 200 short comedies during the past 10 years before entering the feature field, has an important comedy part in "The Sky Hawk," which comes to the Aldine next Friday, following the current engagement of "The Rogue Song."

ENRIGHT STAGE ACTS CLICK ON MILLS' 501ST NIGHT

By HOWARD L. BROWNING

Sometime during the run of "501 Nights," now in the Enright, Jay Mills will play or has played his five hundred and first performance in that theater.

After a conventional choral opening, King and King, dance duet, clitter, clatter and click in an amazingly fast, unusual dance. Perfectly synchronized, the two slide into alternating solos which bring down the house.

Claude and Mary, a comedy husband-and-wife pair, demonstrate female dominance of marital relations. Cowed Claude is an excellent foil for massive Mary.

"Scooter" Lowry, from "Our Gang" comedies, is unusually entertaining for a juvenile. He has a real, grown-up dance and a good imitation of Charlie Chaplin.

Jay Mills, bless his heart, sings through a megaphone; plays a good piano duet with Lou Riley, his coy pianist.

The movie, playing both in the Enright and the Warner, is "Under a Texas Moon." It's a good entertainment, makes no pretense of being real. As Frank Fay takes every woman's heart in the picture, and takes many in the audience, so will little Armida, remembered from "General Crack."

It has no plot, could be condensed in one reel. I'm glad it wasn't.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

School Set Kept Busy By Parties

THE spring recess of the school and college sets is nearly over, although caressing spring weather may still seem a bit far off. And the last days of their vacation boys and girls are bent on making memorable.

After weeks and weeks at school staid pastimes are not enough for their diversion so they've been enjoying dances and luncheons and theater parties. And when their families aren't sufficiently energetic or ingenious in planning for their entertainment they arrange events for themselves. And of course there are ever so many impromptu parties.

I know of an attractive event planned for next week for the younger school set. The William M. Robinsons of Westminster place, will give a buffet luncheon in their home on Tuesday in honor of their daughter, Peggy Robinson.

* * *

Dinner Dance

ADDING gaiety to the spring recess the school set is now enjoying was a subscription dinner dance last night in the Allegheny Country Club. And taking an active part in arranging this event, designed to brighten the rather sedate social calendar, were Bertha Bennett Brooks, daughter of the J. Twing Brookses of Edgeworth lane, Sewickley, who's home from Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., and Georgianna Collin, daughter of the junior William Welch Collins of Woodland road, Sewickley, who's a student at the Westover School.

And while I'm on the topic of the school set I might announce some new arrivals: Margaret Miller, daughter of the William Booth Millers; Peggy Leiper, daughter of the Callender Irvine Leipers, and Ceora Hufnagel, daughter of the Frederick B. Hufnagels, are home from Miss Wright's School at Bryn Mawr. They arrived day before yesterday.

Among the college students returning home for the Easter holidays is Chalmers M. Roberts, a freshman at Amherst in Amherst, Mass., who is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Butler Roberts, of Westminster place.

News Of West

THIS winter the West has endangered a bit at least the popularity of Florida as a haven from northern winter. Many Pittsburgh folks are found in Pasadena, Cal., and many of them form a colony at the Hotel Huntington and at cottages connected with the hotel.

Follansbees, who joined the B. G. Follansbees, Donald Scott Rodgers, the Harvey Norton Van Voorhises and the Clarence B. Steffeys.

The Van Voorhises entertained [illegible] up of friends yesterday at [illegible] overed Wagon dinner-dance [illegible] hotel, and several days ago [illegible] luncheon.

Doctor Speaks

DR. GEORGE J. WRIGHT, neuro-psychiatrist, spoke on "Causes, Management and Prevention of Certain Nervous Conditions" before the College Club yesterday. He explained to an interested audience that it is only since the advent of a new dynamic psychology that doctors have concerned themselves more intelligently with nervous disorders. Dr. Wright stressed the fact that children are born with a fixed capacity for knowledge, but that habit formation and emotional balance can be controlled. Pre-school years lay the habit foundation, and at the age of 25, people are finished intellectual, emotional and volitional products. Life is then an adventure which is met, overcome or succumbed to, in proportion to one's ability. Happiness, he said, depends not so much on the power of the intellect as on the emotional coloring that goes with it and dictates behavior. Feeble-mindedness and nervous breakdowns were discussed as emotional disorders. Numerous examples were used to explain the cause and treatment of nervous troubles in the doctor's attempt to correct the environment, or the adaptation of the patient to it.

PARIS, March 29.—Lacey clouds continue to gather on the evening horizon. The partiality shown by Chanel for lace has given an impetus to the mode, and resulted in the display of many graceful frocks in both black and color. There is a tendency to make lace frocks quite simple, relying on the delicate charm of the material to supply the allure and charm that is always to be found in a frock of fine lace. When the model is of colored lace, it is really important that the dress be quite simple and free from trimming or embellishment, otherwise the result will be disastrous rather than delectable.

A black or white lace frock can allow itself some latitude so far as line and embellishment are concerned.

* * *

THIS spring many a dress of black crepe de chine would swing down the Bois judging by the presence of frocks of this fabric in so many important collections. It is used this season in a very heavy weave, which should tend to increase its popularity and make it more valuable than ever as a reliable stand-by in the material world. A little frock of black crepe de chine with touches of white will be always a pleasant companion whatever the hour of the day, or the occasion for which it is donned, as long as it is not too formal, of course.

* * *

DRECOLL-BEER has helped to advance the claims of black crepe de chine by including some very delightful models in the most recent collection displayed by this house. The street frock sketched here is of a very heavy quality black crepe de chine and has several very attractive touches. The cape is circular in cut and is worn beneath a white pique collar with matching cuffs.

FLARING godets set on a deep yoke form the graceful skirt. All the edges are cut out in a toothed design that is very pleasing and youthful. The black suede belt sparkles with a buckle of strass.

AUGUSTABERNARD is showing a conservative but extremely smart model of pastel blue lace, that is well worth the attention of those who may be contemplating a frock of colored lace. As the sketch indicates, the bodice is quite plain, except for the soft bow of lace to the left of the decolletage. The narrow skirt flares somewhat below the knee and has two stiffened godets of the fabric placed at each side. The lace is very delicate and fine in pattern, as is the case with all good dresses of colored lace.

'Public Improvements Promote Progress'

Convinced that public improvements exert an important influence upon the progress of any community, the Board of County Commissioners of Allegheny County, on January 1, 1924, initiated a program of major public works, many of which are already effectively serving the citizens, while others of vital importance are being rapidly brought to completion.

The Road Maintenance Bureau . . . with its own forces and equipment . . . widened, improved and daylighted a number of dangerous curves on the County Highway. The biggest improvement of this nature was on the Fox Chapel Road in O'Hara Township, where nine curves, ranging from 300 to 600 feet in length, were widened to 50 and in places 75 feet. In addition to slag used, 734 tons of limestone chips and 16,000 gallons of penetration asphalt went into this improvement.

ROADS MAJOR PROBLEM OF CITY

Director Reviews Work of Bureau of Engineering In Pittsburgh's Growth

By EDWARD S. LANG
Director of Public Works

The world is moving on wheels at such breathless speed as has been heretofore unknown at any time in our history.

One of the greatest problems that confront the city, county, state and nation is the building of adequate roads, highways and boulevards to meet the growing needs of trade, commerce and industry.

Highways in times past were constructed only to meet the needs of comparatively lightweight vehicles. In this age, however, roadways must be built to meet, not only the vast and growing volume of transportation, but also the excessive weight that our roadways are obliged to carry.

BUILDS ROADS

In the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh, these duties and responsibilities rest upon the bureau of engineering, which is responsible for the efficient construction of roadways, so that the money expended may meet the needs of transportation activities in full measure.

To this end that the people may understand, in no small measure, the operations of the bureau of engineering in the Department of Public Works, it gives me pleasure to present the following facts:

The Bureau of Engineering supervises all original street improvements, repaving, wall construction and sewers in the City of Pittsburgh. The supervision consists of obtaining engineering data for the preparation of estimates of cost, preparation and presentation to Council of legislation authorizing the improvement, supervising construction work and the preparation and issuing of estimates after the work is completed.

FOUR DIVISIONS

The bureau consists of the division of surveys, division of streets, division of sewers and division of design.

During 1928, the Bureau of Engineering supervised 103 street improvement contracts, costing $1,960,959, and 151 sewer contracts costing $1,215,602. The total cost of the 284 contracts amounted to $3,176,563.

During 1929, the Bureau of Engineering supervised 160 street improvement contracts, costing $3,475,000, and 68 sewer contracts costing $1,112,000. The total cost of the 328 contracts amounted to $4,587,000.

In addition the Bureau of Engineering each year supervises from five to 20 private contracts, the work being carried out by private property owners for the improvement of streets and sewers, generally in newly opened plans of lots where the Bureau's work consists of the supervision so that the work will be done in accordance with city specifications and standards.

The Bureau is, in reality, not only a construction bureau, but one of general information for the public. The Division of Surveys requires two counter clerks to look up records and furnish the general public with information as to names of streets, the correct number of their property, width of street and correct grades.

Improvement in Glass Shown For Week

For the first time in weeks manufacturers of window glass report a slight improvement in demand for their product, according to the National Glass Budget. The quarter of the year just ending has been extremely quiet for this industry and the market conditions were very unsatisfactory. With the possible settling of the tariff question at an early date and the consummation of other matters, the window glass business should soon be on a firmer basis. Production is thought to be running along at a monthly rate considerably under 500,000 boxes. Although no decided pickup is looked for during the near future, there are sound reasons for anticipating an increased movement of glass from warehouses of the manufacturers to those of the jobbers and dealers.

Indications are that the same tariff duties will prevail in the new tariff law that have been in effect since they were raised by Presidential proclamation about a year ago. The rates named in the proposed bills submitted by the House and Senate are the same in all seven classifications. The schedule is almost 50 per cent higher than the rates named when the 1922 law was enacted.

DEVELOPS NEW PROTECTION

On Saturday, March 15, at noon the American Tubular Elevator Company started the erection of the steel overhead protection to protect pedestrians and traffic on Montour alley and Strawberry way. In connection with the construction of the new Bell Telephone Building, it was necessary to erect all steel as promptly as possible to permit the free flow of traffic in deference to several churches in the vicinity, the W. F. Trimble and Sons Company requested that the entire steel structure be erected before 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

The steel was fitted and fabricated at the company's plant and so scheduled as to arrive on the job to avoid the minimum of confusion.

The use of steel construction in sidewalk protection was first introduced in New York City several years ago and has rapidly spread to other cities throughout the country. The first feature of the steel construction to recommend itself to contractors and the general public is the inherent safety involved with the use of this material as well as the economy to be obtained by repeated use.

It was found, however, as experience with this work progressed, that the construction possessed certain other advantages which were not at first considered.

Business suffers in the neighborhood of large construction jobs. People change their routes to avoid the confusion and possible danger connected with construction work. The appearance of the city in general is impaired by such work temporarily. The general contractor is far sighted enough to see that he shares in the prosperity of the community has recently made an effort to have construction jobs as orderly as possible and it was found that the use of steel bridges with their neat lines and workmanlike appearance went far toward attaining this object.

Business Showed Dull Tendency For Week

Commercial transactions during the week ended March 22, as reflected by check payments, were larger than in the preceding week, but declined from a year ago, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce. Operations in steel plants during the latest reported week were on a lower level than in either the previous week or the same week of last year. The output of bituminous coal also showed declines from both periods. Petroleum production expanded over the preceding week, but was lower than in the same period of 1929.

The general index of wholesales prices was fractionally lower than in the previous week, showing a decline also from a year ago. Prices for cotton averaged higher than in the previous week, but were lower than last year. Iron and steel prices were lower than in either period. Copper prices were unchanged from the previous week, but were lower than a year ago.

TO OPEN NEW HOTEL

Established more than half a century ago the Kuhn Catering Company has steadily forged ahead to leadership in its field. By proven excellence it has won an enviable reputation and discriminating persons throughout the entire Western Pennsylvania area insist upon their services exclusively for weddings, receptions, bridge teas, and other social functions.

The recent announcement by the Kuhn Catering Company of the opening of a new location at Broad street and Collins avenue where they will conduct a hotel and restaurant is met with gratifying interest.

In the present success and growth of the Kuhn Catering Company is found an indication of its value to the community. Kuhn service is generally recognized as being the ultimate in this field and meets the most exacting demands.

W. R. Kuhn, president and founder of the Kuhn Catering Company, is one of the original business men of East Liberty. Olin R. Kuhn, vice president, has assumed management and will look after the catering business as he has for the past two years.

In opening the new hotel and restaurant, they are filling a definite need for such facilities in the East Liberty district. April 1 has been set as the date of the formal opening.

City Ice Gets Big Railroad Contracts

NEW YORK, March 29.—The City Ice and Fuel Company has concluded a long-term car-icing contract with the Central Railway of Vermont. The Empire State Ice Company, Ltd., of Canada, affiliated with City Ice and Fuel, has made a contract with Canadian National Railways for icing requirements of that road's refrigerator cars at Toronto. In order to handle these contracts, City Ice will erect a large ice manufacturing plant at St. Albans, Vt., and the Empire Company will build manufacturing facilities at Toronto.

Lambert Sales Off For First Quarter

NEW YORK, March 29.—Sales of the Lambert Pharmacal Company's products during the first two months of this year ran approximately 14 per cent below the record volume of the first two months of 1929. The decrease is due almost entirely to results in January which compare with abnormally large sales in January, 1929, when there was an influenza epidemic. In line with these sales estimates, it is expected that first quarter profits will be less than for 1929 period but will show a good increase over 1928 period.

CREOSOTE USE SHOWING GAIN

Wood Preservative Made In This District Finds New Consuming Market

The successful manner in which timber as a structural material has met and withstood the threatened invasion of numerous substitutes has been made possible mainly through the proper use of preservatives.

Timber, long recognized as the most available and economical source of supply for construction purposes, is the subject of two sources of destruction—deterioration by decay and insect attack. The elimination of these destructive agencies insures permanent life for timber, and makes readily available to the consumer and to the building trade an everlasting supply of low cost, high grade building material.

The development of the timber treating industry in this country has been gradual, and extends over a period of some 70 years. During that time many different types of preservatives have been brought out and experimentation has been almost limitless and greatly varied. Of the many varieties placed into actual service, coal tar creosote, the oldest and best known, has most successfully served this purpose.

NO EVAPORATION

Coal tar creosote possesses to a marked degree four essentials that a preservative must have to insure efficiency at economical cost. These are: Ready availability in large quantities, high toxic value, low cost, and permanency. Almost without exception, ordinary preservatives fail eventually because of the fact that they leach from the timber or evaporate in time, leaving the wood fiber unprotected.

The first users of creosoted timber in this country were the railroads, and today there are in evidence throughout the country exposed structures built of this material whose period of usefulness is not ended after more than 40 years of active service.

The acknowledged advantages possessed by lumber over other structural materials, when deterioration is offset by proper creosoting, make it particularly desirable for all types of construction. Railroads rely upon the creosoting industry for cross ties, structural timbers, telegraph poles, water tanks, foundation and loading platforms. Our cross country highways are made continuous by the erection of creosoted timber bridges and culverts over our water courses.

The user of timber in small quantities, notably the builder of homes and smaller structures, is demanding creosoted timber for the installation of foundation and constructive members not readily accessible for repair.

RETAIL MARKET

The more general recognition by the general public of the value of creosoted products has increased the demands for creosoted dimension timber, and efforts are now under way by the National Lumber Association to market this material in the retail trade. The success of these efforts will prove of vast benefit to the small consumer, who will profit materially by the general use of this permanent building material.

The American Tar Products Company, with offices in the Koppers Building, is one of the largest producers of coal tar products in the United States, and annually distributes millions of gallons of the highest grade of coal tar creosotes which constitutes the main sources of supply to the timber-treating industry.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

STEEL TRADE ON EVEN KEEL

Period of Decline Comes to Close With Future Trend Not Discernible.

By B. E. V. LUTY.

The rate of steel ingot production has held steady for a fortnight, at approximately 76 to 77 per cent of capacity. There was a decline of about 10 per cent from the peak rate reached at the middle of February and this decline has clearly been halted. A decline at such a time in the year has been practically unprecedented, nevertheless this decline should not be interpreted as furnishing an unfavorable augury for the future, for it was the preceding rise that was out of line.

Steel producers did not conceal their surprise at the way they were compelled to step up production during January and the early part of February. Total steel production ran well above what would be expected in view of the general state of industry and with building and other outdoor operations largely out of season.

DEMAND FAIR

There is now a fair demand for steel in the aggregate, and when a steady rate of production has been maintained for two weeks one may conclude that steel is now on an even keel.

The present rate of steel ingot production is 155,000 to 160,000 tons per working day, which is well below the rate at this date last year and slightly above the year before, but it makes a fairly favorable comparison with other years. The rate is equal to nearly 50,000,000 tons for a year, and 50,000,000 tons was not made in a calendar year until 1928. Allowing for usual seasonal swing this year's production would be likely to fall well below 50,000,000 tons but the question is whether this year will show the ordinary seasonal swing. There should be a seasonal increase for the next three months and a dull summer may be avoided as was the case last year. Many observers have been strongly of the opinion that the second half of this year would be more active in general trade than the first half on the ground of recovery from depression.

STRUCTURALS GAIN

Fabricated structural steel lettings gained, although only about 1 per cent. Orders for steel castings decreased 10 per cent but for malleable iron castings 24 per cent, quite a divergence being shown there. Radio and stove manufacture almost stopped. Rail buying was somewhat above normal and heavy production of rails is assured through the usual active season, up to about the middle of the year.

As to the freight car shops, orders reported since the first of the year total about 27,000 cars, which makes a fair monthly average, probably fully equal to car production. Recently the opinion was expressed in apparently well informed quarters that there would be little further car buying for some time, but this week there are definite reports from Chicago that inquiries are about to come out, three western roads and the two largest eastern systems being specifically mentioned by name.

SCRAP DULL

The scrap market, sometimes a good indicator of the future of steel production, has not made a favorable augury lately, all markets being dull with prices weakening slightly, but this may be due simply to mills not being able to anticipate, from backlogs, as they usually do.

There are divergent views as to the price situation in finished steel products, taken as a whole. While there have been no material declines in openly quoted market prices for more than two months it is said there is considerable shading in some lines, on particularly attractive orders. However, such shading attrects unusual attention now while there is nearly always some shading in a strong market, which then receives no attention.

RECOMMENDS ACCOUNTANCY CAREERS

States That Many Leaders In Business Started With Study for C. P. A.

By ERNEST CROWTHER, C. P. A.,
Dean Pittsburgh School of Accountancy.

In choosing his life work, one should estimate the possibilities of the calling from every angle, with reference in particular to how nearly it approaches his ideal of a career. It should provide the individual with adequate financial returns. The work should be surrounded by encouraging environment. There should be opportunity for mental and physical growth. All these united constitute a desirable type of life work. These requirements are the links in the chain of the ideal career.

Ernest Crowther

Before comparing accountancy with the standard of idealism, let us consider just what the work of the profession is. Accountancy is a general term like engineering or mathematics. It consists of investigating and examining financial conditions, the recording and presentation derived from such investigations, and the suggesting of constructive changes of organization, management, method and policy.

TWO TYPES

The broad profession of accountancy may be divided into two types—commercial and public. A commercial accountant is a member of a large business concern. His title may be that of treasurer, head accountant, cost accountant, auditor or controller. He is recognized as an official and an authority within his concern.

The function of the public accountant is to serve business concerns in general as an impartial and trustworthy outsider. He installs accounting systems for his clients, ascertains and certifies financial conditions, develops for them various methods needed in conducting business, and aids them with advice along financial lines. "The public accountant," as defined by one author, "is the doctor of business concerns." The majority of public accountants have the degree of Certified Public Accountant, which is indicated C. P. A.

STATE RECOGNITION

A certified public accountant is an individual who has been recognized by the state to possess the training and qualifications essential to advise the public on matters pertaining to accountancy. In order to receive this degree in Pennsylvania, one must make an average of 75 per cent in an examination given annually by the state. The certified public accountant is recognized as an authority in his line of work. It should be remembered that many of the ablest executives in business today received part of their training in accountancy, and many of the business executives of tomorrow are now in the profession. Numerous successful business men attribute their success largely to the training received in accounting, wherein a knowledge of the latest methods of internal organization and ability to analyze results were important features of their work.

If one is at the stage of life when choosing a career is essential, it would be well to consider accountancy. It is a profession full of opportunities. Accountancy is the compass of business administration.

New classes are now being formed at the Pittsburgh School of Accountancy in the Law and Finance Building.

Business Marking Time In This District

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

PITTSBURGH'S industries will start the second quarter of the year in a better condition than at the beginning of the first quarter but there are few signs of immediate improvement in the current rate of activity.

With a few striking exceptions, industrial organizations will report smaller earnings for the first quarter than for a year ago. In many cases profits will be less than in the final quarter of 1929.

The income accounts of steel mills during the past three months have suffered from low prices as well as from reduced operations. The outlook for the next three months will still be clouded by an unsatisfactory price situation even though many in the steel trade expect operations to show improvement from the present rate of about 75 per cent of capacity.

Coal Output Declines

THE reduced rate of industrial activity has been felt keenly in the coal trade. Production has been far below the output of a year ago but prices have been somewhat more firm.

Many coal operators blame the leading producer in this district for the continuation of low coal prices. They are of the opinion that the trade could obtain better returns per ton if it were not for the sales policies of a few companies. The necessity to regain lost markets and to build up production has been given as the reason for offering coal at the low levels of the past year.

Business Waits

BUSINESS at present is in a waiting attitude. In these words the report of the conference of statisticians in industry, working under the auspices of the National Industrial Conference Board, summarized current conditions for the entire country.

In this report and others, which have been made in an attempt to present an accurate picture rather than to build up confidence, it is apparent that no definite trend can be found in business conditions. There are numerous favorable factors such as cheap money and small inventories. If the stock market is an accurate barometer, business should get better. But for the time being trade is marking time and it may take several months to overcome the unsatisfactory employment situation and to get buying back on a large scale basis.

Capital Expenditures

IN commenting on the business situation the report of the conference of statisticians in industry said:

"Following a slight pick-up in the latter part of January, business activity during February slowed up again and very little change has been noticeable during the first half of March. The reluctance on the part of buyers and borrowers to avail themselves of the easier credit conditions evidently is due in part to the influence which the unemployment situation has upon business psychology as well as upon consumer psychology and purchasing power.

"While improved credit conditions and the advancing season normally should stimulate business activity during the next few weeks, it is pointed out that much depends on the realization of the large capital expenditures planned and expected to be made by the railroads, utilities and the federal, state, county and city governments. That these expenditures cannot be counted upon too definitely in each instance is indicated by the fact that railroad earnings, for instance, for the first quarter of the year will show a considerable decrease over a year ago and that it is unlikely that appropriations for capital expenditures will be made to an extent greater than warranted by earnings."

GLASS FACTORY TO RESUME

KANE, Pa., March 29.—Fires were lighted in the tank of the Interstate Window Glass Company's factory at Mt. Jewett, 12 miles east of Kane, giving assurance that the plant will be in operation within three weeks.

The Mt. Jewett factory has been out of operation for about three years. About 300 men will be employed at the plant, many of the workmen residing in Kane. Burress Moore, superintendent at the Kane plant of the Interstate company, which is idle at the present time, will be in charge of the Mt. Jewett factory.

Resumptin of work at this plant will be the culmination of much effort by Mt. Jewett citizens, who staged a campaign to raise money to aid the Interstate company in starting the plant, which is the main industry of the village. The lighting of the fire in a window glass tank three weeks before glass-making is started, it is necessary to properly heat the tank and melt the "batch" ready for the glass-blowing machines.

Peerless Obtains Front Wheel Drive

NEW YORK, March 29.—It is understood that the Peerless Motor Corporation has been successful in obtaining control of exclusive licenses for use in the United States of the most advanced front wheel drive that has been developed in Europe. Although official confirmation of this has not been made nor the name of the company disclosed, the drive is said to have decided advantages from an engineering standpoint over anything that has been developed in this country up to this date.

Elected

O. V. STEWART

NEW PRESIDENT NAMED

Realizing that quality and uniformity of products, prompt delivery, and constant supervision are vital factors in steps to meet these conditions.

A modern office building is nearing completion at the factory which, when occupied, will house the executive, sales and factory offices. Through this move, the Benolite Varnish Company will be equipped to care more efficiently for its rapidly increasing business.

Appreciating the fact that this is an age of intensive electrical development, the Benolite Varnish Company has specialized in the development and manufacture of insulating varnishes and compounds for the protection of electrical equipment. The widespread distribution and increasing sales are evidence that Benolite products have met the requirements of exacting users.

The recent installation of up-to-date equipment has increased the capacity of the plant, and the addition of a well-equipped laboratory provides control of both quality and uniformity of Benolite products.

The Benolite Varnish Company announces that on and after May 1 the general office and factory of the company will be located at Manor, Pa.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors, the last phase of the recent plan of reorganization was consummated. Retaining his position as chairman of the board, G. A. Benney, Jr., resigned as president of the company, and O. V. Stewart was elected to succeed him.

RETAIL TRADE SLOWED BY WEATHER

Industrial Activity Shows No Change From Rate Prevailing Last Month

Unseasonable weather conditions and the lateness of Easter continue to hold back the volume of business with both retailers and jobbers, and normal weather conditions are needed to stimulate demand for seasonal merchandise.

Jobbers of men's and women's wearing apparel, dry goods and shoes report a slight improvement in business, although volume of sales continues below normal. There is a fair demand for hardware and implements, although builders hardware continues to move slowly.

Lumber and other building materials are not very active as yet, although a number of large projects, not only in building, but also in road and bridge work, are expected to materially stimulate demand for those lines in the near future. There is a fair demand for groceries and provisions, although prices are averaging lower than for many years.

OUTPUT STEADY

Industrial operations continue at about the same rate as last week, with operations of steel mills estimated at about 73 per cent of capacity. Electrical equipment continues in very good demand, with manufacturers operating at a comparatively high rate, and conditions appear favorable for a continuance of activity. Demand for sanitary equipment, plumbing supplies, and radiator equipment continues rather slow, the rate of production being considerably lower than a year ago.

The bituminous coal market continues quiet, with production slightly lower than a year ago and prices showing no change. Western Pennsylvania grades of run-of-mine coal are quoted per net ton at mines as follows: Steam coal, $1.25 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.65 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; steam slack, 80 to 90 cents; gas slack, $1 to $1.10.

Jobbers report no material improvement in the collection situation in this district, the average being still low.

LOREE OPPOSES B. & O. PLAN

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Exceptions to the recommendations of Interstate Commerce Commission examiners that the Baltimore and Ohio be authorized to acquire the Buffalo and Susquehanna were taken today by L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson.

The Baltimore and Ohio needs a small railroad to form a connecting link in a proposed new short line between New York and Chicago, which the Buffalo and Susquehanna will furnish. The Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh has already been allocated to the Baltimore and Ohio by a commission order.

Loree contended that the Baltimore and Ohio has not shown that the public interest would be served by the acquisition of the Buffalo and Susquehanna.

HORNE PROFITS GAIN

Joseph Horne Company reports for the year ended January 31, 1930, net profit, after taxes, interest and depreciation, of $1,296,086, equivalent, after deducting preferred dividends, to $3.52 a share on the 240,000 shares of common stock. This compares with $981,216, or $2.21 a share, in the preceding year.

Net sales for the year totaled $21,428,160, an increase of $1,291,890.

After paying preferred dividends of $449,906 and charging off expenses of $119,914 incident to the alteration of the store building, surplus was increased to $1,093,233 from $366,967 at the end of the preceding year.

Big Morgan Bank Consolidation Hinted

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—Reports of a proposed merger of three so-called Morgan banks, The Guaranty Trust Company, The Bankers Trust Company and The New York Trust Company, creating the world's largest banking institution, with resources in excess of $3,000,000,000, lacked confirmation today.

Such a bank would eclipse in size the Chase National, which is absorbing the Equitable Trust and the Interstate Trust to form a $2,800,000,000 bank, popularly identified with the Rockefeller interests.

The three trust companies mentioned in the latest consolidation rumor had resources last December 31 of approximately $3,200,000,000. Guaranty Trust last summer acquired The National Bank of Commerce.

GOODYEAR DEAL UNDER WAY

AKRON, O., March 29.—Increase in Goodyear common stock from 1,450,000 shares authorized to 5,000,000 shares to be asked of Goodyear stockholders in annual meeting here Monday has inspired persistent rumor of merger plans.

President P. W. Litchfield, of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, has declared that the Goodyear company "has no immediate plans or definite program of expansion involving a merger embracing Seiberlin or United States Rubber." He said request for authority to increase common stock is intended as a "sensible precautionary measure to provide directors of the company with collateral to take advantage of any opportunity offered in the rubber industry to increase prestige and economical production of tires."

Close observers here agree that the purpose back of the stock increase to be urged is to be identified with plans of Otis & Co. and the Cyrus Eaton interests to affect a merger later on, first with the Seiberling Rubber Company, of which F. A. Seiberling, former president of Goodyear, is head, and later with the du Pont organization, the United States Rubber Company.

Building Activity Above Year Ago

WASHINGTON, March 29.—For the first time this year, the Census Bureau has been able to report a week of building activity in the country which exceeds the performance not only of previous weeks this year, but also exceeds that of the corresponding week last year.

Figures which follow give the average daily total of new contracts for building let in territory east of the Rocky Mountains for the week and comparable periods: Week ending March 22, $22,687,000; preceding week, $17,526,000; same week last year, $17,667,000.

Rights on A. T. & T. Rumored in Street

NEW YORK, March 29.—According to present plans, it is expected that American Telephone and Telegraph stockholders will be given the right to subscribe at par to one new share for every seven held. At 260 for American Telephone, the rights under such a program would be worth $20 a share.

RAILS IN LEAD AS MARKET ADVANCES

Stocks Stage Further Recovery With Lengthy List Registering Gains

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—Stock prices made further recovery at the opening of today's market, with the rails, which were the strong feature late yesterday, in the forefront of the advance. Goodyear Rubber advanced 2 points and initial gains of a point or so were registered by Vanadium Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Bethlehem Steel and New York Central. Chicago Great Western preferred jumped 6 points to a new high at 48, and the common advanced fractionally. Pennsylvania, Kansas City Southern and American Telephone moved into new high ground.

Establishment of a new high level for the year by the index of 20 leading railroad issues, following the registering of new peaks by the industrials and public utilities, was widely regarded by chart readers as forecasting a further general advance in prices. Early buying was conducted at a brisk pace with blocks of 5,000 to 15,000 shares appearing in the tape at frequent intervals.

American Telephone returned to the leadership of the utility group by quickly climbing 4 points to a new high record at 261. General Electric crossed 84 to a new peak, one block of 10,000 shares changing hands at 83⅞. Electric Power & Light also moved into new high ground.

Early buying of the rails centered largely in the low priced shares. Chicago Great Western preferred extended its gain to 13 points before the end of the first half hour and the common moved up 1½ to a new top at 16⅞. New Haven and Western Maryland also moved into new high ground and Lackawanna was marked up 2½ and Union Pacific moved up 3 to a new top at 241.

In the Motor Group Moon crossed 14 to a new high on reports of merger and expansion rumors. Timken Roller Bearing, Electric Auto Lite and Kelvinator also sold at new 1930 highs.

Foreign Exchanges opened steady with Sterling Cables unchanged at $4.86 19-32.

California Refinery Operations Lower

LOS ANGELES, March 29.—U. S. Bureau of Mines reports that for the month of February, 1930, 48 California refineries with daily aggregate capacity of 880,610 barrels operated at 67 per cent capacity, running to stills 590,666 barrels of crude daily, a decrease of 9,355 barrels from 600,011 barrels run to stills in January.

Gasoline stocks totaled 1,711,-587 barrels of which 41,000 barrels was obtained from natural gasoline plants and 1,670,600 barrels from refineries. Stocks of gasoline for February compare with a total of 1,440,375 in January which represents an increase of 271,212 barrels over that month.

Bank Clearings Decline in Week

Bank clearings at leading cities of the country for the week ended March 27 amounted to $11,339,-732,000, a decline of 16.7 per cent from the like a week a year ago. At New York City clearings totaled $8,160,000,000, or 17.7 per cent below last year's. In principal centers outside New York, clearings amounted to $3,179,932,-000, a drop of 14 per cent.

Cities showing increases over a year ago are Baltimore, Richmond and Louisville, in addition to New York declines continue chiefly in the central west and at some southern points.

'Other' Lenders Withdraw Funds From New York Money Market.

NON-BANK lenders are still in full retreat from the speculative money market, analysis of the weekly loan report reveals. This development creates no surprise inasmuch as early last year when loans for account of "others" were soaring with each report, the warning went forth that such lenders would run whenever their operations as money lenders were not highly profitable. Their loans, which at the peak on October 2, last year, constituted 58 per cent of the total of all loans, now comprises only 33.4 per cent of the present reduced total of $3,820,-000,000. "Others" loans now stand at only $1,278,000,000 as against the peak of $3,941,000,000 in October last year. This shows a reduction in such credit of $2,633,-000,000, while loans for banks' account are presently $321,000,000 greater than at the time the peak of loans was reached last year.

Report going the rounds has it that the proposed Prairie Oil and Gas-Sinclair Consolidated deal is being held up pending the outcome of negotiations looking toward the inclusion of two other companies in the new consolidated organization. The story has it that effort is being made to bring Barnsdall Corporation and Simms Petroleum into the deal. It is understood that the books of one of these companies have already been audited with that end in view. Yet from other quarters it is steadfastly maintained that Barnsdall will not be a party to the merger.

THERE were certain things about the market yesterday that gave it something of a sparkle and suggested that sponsorship is still pretty much in the hands of the same people who were largely responsible for the long bull movement which culminated in the October-November break. Steel Common, General Electric, American Can and General Motors, long since dubbed the markets's "four horsemen" were endeavoring to lead the list higher in a resumption of the forward movement interrupted the previous afternoon. The return of these four prominent industrials to the position of market leadership caused many to recall their spectacular action a year or so ago.

Persistent heavy selling yesterday forced Montgomery Ward back steadily to new low levels for the present stock. The decline met little or nothing in the way of important resistance until a net loss of more than 3 points was showing. The selling was presumably largely for short account, but there was at the same time evidence of discouraged liquidation in some volume. Weakness was influenced by unconfirmed reports that net earnings of the company for the current quarter may not be sufficient to cover dividend requirements for the period. The company, however, does not make quarterly or semi-annual reports, so that it is not likely anything more than unofficial estimates will be available for public consumption.

COINCIDENT with the strength in General Motors has been the demand for Electric Auto-Lite, which is one of the strongest features in the motor accessory group. It is pointed out that in recent years the tendency of motor manufacturers has been to draw away from the making of every part and every accessory and for this reason the demand for products of such companies as Electric Auto-Lite has been on the increase. A stepping up of automobile production should find ready reflection in the operations of Electric Auto-Lite.

Good buying continues in Standard of New Jersey. It is reported that interests close to the company are predicting a price close to $100 a share for the stock before the end of the year. New Jersey has splendid possibilities in the natural gas field as well as in its new refining process. Further development along these lines should find greater reflection in the earnings report for 1930.

EXPECT BOOM IN GAS FIELD

BEALLSVILLE, Pa., March 29.—Developments of the new gas field in this community is increasing daily and new locations are being made. The well on the Hill farm has been brought in with over a million cubic feet of gas daily. Other wells are being put down and several brought in with satisfactory results. Several gas companies are now definitely interested and seeking new locations.

The well on the Bane farm south of Beallsville, was brought in during the week, and other locations in the vicinity have been made.

Several years ago the Beallsville gas field became quite prominent and various gas concerns have held holdings.

STEEL SPRING IN DEMAND HERE

Stock Continues Strong As Quiet Accumulation Proceeds; Fuels Firm

Stocks were active and higher in today's short session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, with industrial issues continuing to outstrip the fuel issues in point of activity.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass, which has been strong for several days, moved up fractionally to a new high, while Pittsburgh Forgings was in good demand on announcement of the regular 40-cent quarterly dividend.

The widest move in the industrial section was in Standard Steel Spring, which opened with an overnight gain of 1¾ points at 46½, a gain of 5½ points from last Monday's price. The upturn in Spring has been inconspicuous and the advance has been carried out with a comparatively small volume changing hands.

In the fuel division, the quiet noted for the past few sessions prevailed again and there were no noticeable changes in quotations. Shamrock Oil held around the best levels of yesterday's advance but trading in the stock was light.

Peoples Pittsburgh Trust firmed up sharply to 170 after opening at 160 as compared with last night's close at 165.

BRADY DID HIS WORK BEHIND SCENES

Deceased Financier Hired Men to Take Limelight in Companies He Dominated

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, March 29.—The passing of Nicholas F. Brady takes from the national financial scene a personality of great power who operated quietly behind the scenes.

With his brother, James Cox Brady, who passed on a year ago, Mr. Brady selected hired men to occupy the limelight in the companies in which the Brady interest was dominant. But before the nominal heads of his companies could make important decisions, they had to look to Nick Brady for a nod of approval. The Brady Brothers carried on the tradition of financial leadership established by their father, the late Anthony N. Brady, a leading figure in local traction and other public utility affairs, who died 15 years ago.

Besides being the outstanding personality in New York public utility companies, Mr. Brady was a director in 50 other corporations, including the National City Bank.

Lack of ostentation was the uniquely characteristic trait of this business man and capitalist. He gave freely to charities, but his name was usually kept secret. In this era of high-powered publicity, Mr. Brady voluntarily kept out of the limelight. Yet he was ever available to insiders for consultation and he will be sorely missed in the companies in which he was actively interested. The wisdom of his policy of selecting able colleagues will be demonstrated by their capacity to carry on after he has departed at the age of 51.

OFFER TIME PLAN

In commenting on proposals for breaking the deadlock in residential building, George Marion Brown, president Certain-Teed Products Corporation, told me:

"I cannot agree that companies in the building material lines can undertake the financing of buildings beyond the point where banks can go in such matters. Banks know more about loaning money and it is their business.

"We are able to offer time payment plans for our materials on repair work and we are undertaking such a move throughout the country.

"I am glad to give you my real convictions regarding the soundest remedy for a situation like business is in at present. Briefly, it is that the laws should be changed so as to compel each industry to adopt certain correct plans free from petty abuses, using the same as a code of ethics for the industry, and they should then follow such code in their selling, and they should publish prices before quoting them so as to avoid the see-sawing of prices down to an unfairly low basis which causes well informed people to overbuy. A temporary overproduction is the result and ruination of many in the industry often follows and irregular employment results. No real good is accomplished, everything considered.

"With a uniform selling plan and a fair price basis, which would be fully known and would be checked by any authority at any time, employment could be regulated so that we could produce in four and a half to five days everything needed. The sixth could be a day of sport and recreation and the seventh of rest. We would have no real unemployment. Those industries which require six or seven days of work in order to be economical would have surplus employes so that everybody could have the necessary time off during each week.

SUGGEST PENALTY

"There is plenty of intelligence to work out such plans, and let each industry accept responsibility for its own management and be subject to correction and finally to penalty in case of failure to handle things properly, which would be detected immediately.

"This gives at least the idea which I think is the soundest one for handling matters of this kind. The farmer would have to work hard in season and on good days he would have to work long hours, but the extent of his undertakings could be suggested to him through committees having proper information, and during the year he would do only his proper share of the work to be done.

"This all means that co-operation would become a requirement of this modern machine age—otherwise the more capable will rapidly drown out the less capable and the results will necessarily be very uneven during most of the time."

Mr. Brown's plan involves a plea for rationalization. President Hoover's leadership, which resulted in the formation of the business survey conference, headed by Julius H. Barnes, is consonant with the spirit of Mr. Brown's suggestions for substituting co-ordained intelligence for blind anarchy in business.

Eastman Drove Hard Bargains When Poor Man.

By B. C. FORBES

HOW many youths today are so ambitious that they work day and night at a stretch, snatch an occasional nap at the works and have to be yanked away by their family to get some rest?

The story of George Eastman's life, published this week, reveals the price he paid to rise above poverty, to establish a world-wide business of his own, to attain multi-millionairedom.

Frankly, Eastman paid rather dearly.

A MAN who did business with him in the early stages of Eastman's struggle told me that George was "terribly hard-boiled," that he was "frightfully tight," that he went over every bill with a fine-tooth comb and often tried to get concessions; that working inhumanly hard himself, he was looked upon by others as something of a slave driver.

EASTMAN is a bachelor. The real reason he didn't marry (although the book doesn't reveal this) is that he was haunted by a dread of poverty all through the first half of his life, even after he had acquired his first million dollars. This dread drove him to toil so incessantly, and to save so concentratingly, that he denied himself all thought of the luxury of a wife. He worshiped his mother and she was sweetheart enough for him.

I ARRANGED in 1916 to get from Eastman a story of his career. He figured he could tell "everything" in half an hour! He hadn't become as famous as he is today and probably then little thought that he would become the hero of an unusually big biographical volume — a volume very well worth reading.

Like many rich men, Eastman underwent a transformation. He changed from task-master to philanthropist, to profit-sharer, to exemplary employer, intent upon making his rapidly-growing family of workers the best-treated in the world.

After he ceased to suffer from his poverty nightmare which caused him to wake up in terror, he began finding intense joy in giving away money. This proved such "fun" that he decided to give away millions during his lifetime so that he could do the job intelligently and have the pleasure of noting the results.

ALTHOUGH he admits he can't even whistle and can't carry a tune, he has given lavishly to music. Although the only hunting he knew as a young man was hunting for business, he became late in life an enthusiastic lion hunter. Although long too busy to watch either clock or calendar, he has become the foremost champion of calendar reform—the 13-month variety. Although he considered it a nuisance to have to stop his night-and-day work long enough to cook a scanty meal for himself in his workshop, he now greatly enjoys cooking and has his own special kitchen where he acts as chef. Although brought up most frugally, he now declares "I like luxury."

IN addition to the usual reasons for success—ambition, industriousness, frugality, foresight, vision, courage, stick-to-itiveness, etc.—Eastman had gumption enough to grasp the value of ceaseless research. He was perhaps the first American manufacturer to establish an elaborate research department and to give it practically carte blanche. And in his seventy-sixth year, he is as keen a searcher after the new as he was when wrestling with the problem of solving workable dry plates in the late '70s.

INVESTORS are always looking for a safe security yielding 6 per cent or better. Here is their opportunity to obtain one yielding 6½ per cent.

William Randolph Hearst, owner of the largest and most profitable group of newspapers and magazines in the world, is personally guaranteeing both interest and principal on a $5,000,000 issue of 6½ per cent secured gold debenture bonds issued today by the nationally-known investment banking house of Halsey, Stuart & Co., for the Illinois Publishing & Printing Company, owner and publisher of the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

The physical property securing these first—mortgage bonds is valued at over $8,300,000, and includes the Hearst Building and Annex leased to the Chicago Evening American, one of the most profitable of the 28 daily papers now owned by Mr. Hearst.

Part of the bonds will be paid off annually during the next three years, but most of them run for 20 years, thus affording a reasonably long-term investment. Now that money has become so cheap, and promises to stay cheap, opportunities to get 6½ per cent on a bond so thoroughly secured are likely to be extremely rare.

THE latest addition to San Antonio's notable structures will be the San Antonio Light Building, which W. R. Hearst has begun to put up. Texas' largest city is rapidly becoming still larger.

SOME of New York's most powerful bankers don't quite like the way some stocks are behaving. They question the wisdom of staging fireworks at this time. They would prefer a less spectacular, less erratic stock market. At the moment they are leaning towards bonds.

Business Pickup Expected in April

NEW YORK, 24.—With bouyant securities markets and an old-fashioned touch of late tickers starting a flurry of optimism both here and abroad, April is certain to bring some seasonal stimulus to general business in the United States unless growing Federal Reserve fear of runaway speculation makes them nip the frail blossome of trade recovery in the bud, says The Business Week in its report covering the week ending March 29.

Business news itself is still a bit chilly. The steel thermometer is not very sure of itself, but has practically ceased its disconcerting drop. Commodity prices, too, are beginning to dig out of the snow, but building, now definitely and strongly on the rise, is the real sunshine of the season. As it warms up, it is sure to start some of the spring freshets of trade, still slow in thawing out. Carloadings and check money turnover still show no real improvement; commercial borrowings are not increasing as fast as security loans; and the failures are running high. But the frost cannot linger long under the showers of easy money and the returning warmth of building activities.

MOTORS TAKING MORE STEEL

CLEVELAND, March 29.—The Daily Metal Trade in its review says: "Automobile steel specification are picking up with makers anticipating more active production schedules shortly. March shipments of pig iron and finished steel into the Detroit district have almost paralled those for February on a daily basis.

"Some price easiness continues to be noted, although for the most part sellers are holding to their quoted prices. Steel bars are easy in the east and the situation in this district regarding sheet quotations is uncertain since current business is too light to afford an adequate test.

"Chicago fabricators report they are receiving a surprisingly large volume of small orders, but that large jobs are absent. The small tonnages are enabling them to maintain operations on a more or less irregular schedule. Copper is moderately active and unchanged at 18c, Connecticut. Zinc is quiet and firm at 4.85c, East St. Louis. Lead is holding at 5.60c, East St. Louis, and 5.75c, New York. Tin is firmer with spot Straits quoted at 37.62½c."

WORTHINGTON ORDERS UP

NEW YORK, March 29.—Operations of Worthington Pump and Machinery Corporation are being maintained at a record rate and there is every present indication that the current year's income will surpass that of 1929 by a substantial margin. Backlog of unfinished business on December 31, 1929, totaled in excess of $4,000,000, and with orders booked thus far in 1930 running approximately ahead of similar period last year net income for six months to June 30 is expected to total in the neighborhood of $1,500,000.

After allowing for six months regular preferred dividend requirement this would be equal to better than $7.50 a share on 129,921 shares of common stock outstanding and a gain of more than 35 per cent over $1,099,428, equal to $4.58 a common share earned in corresponding period of 1929.

Pig Iron Inquiries Better at New York

NEW YORK, March 29.—Fresh inquiry is developing in the New York pig iron market, and there is about 7,500 to of business under negotiation at the present time. General Electric is still in the market for iron and New York Air Brake Company is also inquiring. Following the large volume of last week, it seems likely that sales will not run as high, and from current indications they will amount to less than 10,000 tons. Customers are still asking for some iron for immediate shipment, and releases against contracts for early shipment are frequent.

Straus Official Sees Building Revival

NEW YORK, March 29.—Improving conditions of supply and demand, combined with prevailing ease in money rates, are factors pointing to an early resumption of normal building activities, Nicholas Roberts, president of S. W. Straus & Co., states.

"Building operations have been on a steady decline for the last four years," he said, "and such surpluses of building space as have existed for certain types in various localities are steadily reaching the absorption point. Meanwhile, the ease in the commercial money market will be followed shortly by a more plentiful supply of mortgage money from savings banks, building and loan associations, insurance companies and investment houses. Acceleration of building operations has invariably accompanied easy money conditions."

WHITE HOUSE GANG

Boys Retreat From Market After Disturbance

Theodore Roosevelt, when President of the United States, started the adventurous, rollicking, joyous career of the White House Gang by sending his youngest son, Quentin, to the Force Public School in Washington. Here the gang was recruited. The accredited members are Charles (Taffy) Taft, "Brom" Seeley, Dick (Sailor) Chew, Edward (Slats) Stead, also called "Bedstead," Walker White, "T. R.," the most active member of the gang; Quentin, the leader, and Earle Looker, the author of this story.

Each day, after school, the gang went into a huddle to confound all rules of deportment in high places, mingle in the lives of presidents and policemen, win victories, taste honor, suffer punishments and engage in escapades which were swept along the wires to national publicity. Many exploits of the gang, however, either remain unknown or were known only to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Some there were securely hidden even from them.

CHAPTER XXII.

THE Gang retired under the magnolia trees to ponder future movements. Charlie, swinging himself on a branch, went up into the tree, and the rest of us followed. Voices were heard in the garden, and we immediately froze in the branches, preparing to play a more successful joke, if possible, on whoever might be making in our direction.

The voices were those of TR and M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador. They were so engrossed in their conversation as not to hear the rustling in the leaves above. They stopped almost under us. Jusserand waving his arm in a sweeping gesture which served only to amuse us, and made it more difficult to keep silence.

The French Ambassador's earnestness was surprising. He appeared to be completely obsessed by some conviction or other which he desired to impress upon and communicate to the President.

"I do not think, Monsieur le President," Jusserand declared, repeating the peculiar arm-gesture, "I know, I know——"

We were fascinated. Right below us, something big, something very important was being discussed by the key-men of France and the United States, which, even to our youthful minds was thrilling. Jusserand was wearing a frock-coat, and as he raised his arms to gesticulate the shoulders wrinkled and seemed to rise, thus making him appear taller.

"You—must — be — mistaken, Jusserand!" said TR, laying hold of the lapels of Jusserand's coat with his big fists as if he were about to shake the smaller man. "I have thought about it, and dismissed it as being inconceivable. . . ."

"Non, non!" Jusserand protested. "It is the truth!"

No Secret

Q snickered, and startled both TR and M. Jusserand looked up into the tree above them. The branches were heavy with the Gang, all looking down with intent expressions. TR was visibly annoyed; Jusserand turned as crimson as his ribbon of the Legion d'Honneur, except in the wrinkles of his forehead. For a moment, neither man spoke, looking blankly at each other, and then, just as blankly, at us.

"No matter what these boys have heard, they — can — be trusted!" TR said, at length.

"Yes," Jusserand agreed. "But what have they heard?"

TR looked up into the tree. "Tell me all you have heard," he commanded. Aided by Walker White and Charlie, Q repeated everything.

At the conclusion of the recital, the President turned to the Ambassador. "If I asked them to keep a secret," he said, with his convincing enunciation of syllables; "every one of them would die rather than divulge it. Isn't that right, boys?"

"Yes, sir!" we chorused. "Yes, Mr. President!" added Charlie.

"Well," said TR, "this time, you are all fully entitled to live. You possess no secret whatever!"

The two men laughed, and walked slowly away, "Discussing pro-bab-ly affairs of state," said Q. "Overhearing a conversation, in that way, makes one feel like a snake-in-the-grass—"

"Or a monkey in a tree," Charlie corrected.

Plenty of Names

M. Jusserand, we all loved. There was a sparkle and a friendliness in the man, which was not all Gallic temperament—which, however, is the closest on earth to eternal youth. We recognized his possession of the international virtue of a firm belief in boys, and a perennial interest in their concerns. It must have been the saddest of all his duties, while Ambassador at Washington, when on a September day, 11 years later, and instructed by the President of the French Republic, he forwarded to Quentin's mother and father, a document identical with those received by the parents of French officers and soldiers, who had died for the great and common cause. Jusserand wrote officially, of necessity, and then added simply and with utter sincerity, "As for me, I need not say what I feel in fulfilling this duty; I knew Quentin as a child, and one could easily discover, in the child, the man he would be. Millions of young lives will have been forgotten, when his memory will still be fresh among us, as in his own country. . . ."

Back in the harum-scarum days, Q called Jusserand "The Man of the Five Names," because, as far as he knew, he was the only man on earth, except a crowned head, with so many. Once, after some concentrated minutes of rehearsal, we rushed to him, interrupting a conversation he was having with TR, Charlie, Slats and myself thus addressed him:

"How do you do, Jean?"

"How're you, Adrien?"

"Warm day, Antoine?"

"Hello, Jules!"

Captures Boys' Hearts

He was mystified for a moment and then said, "You have not yet called me by the name I would like best from each one of you, man-to-man—that is Jusserand—just Jusserand—"

Sometimes it astonished other people to hear us addressing him with perfect equality as "Jusserand!" Sometimes, too, we added a sixth title—a nickname suggested by the way he had said ". . . just Jusserand—" making it "Joost Jusserand!"

Once he increased the mystification of a group of guests by putting his finger across his lips, straight under his nose, and, with the other hand, pointing to the nearest tree. This gesture gave us an opportunity for laughter and, at the same time, the delicious sense of possessing a dark secret in common with him. Certainly diplomacy, then and doubtless still, is woven of such personal things, for Jusserand had captured our hearts, as he did all others in Washington.

In our instance, he did so without intent. He was one of the very few people, outside the close White House family, to whom Q wanted to tell things. "Jusserand should know about this," he would say.

We intended to tell him—probably we never did—of a quite extraordinary compatriot of his, whom Q pretended to have discovered. This was on an entirely unauthorized expedition to that exciting, mysterious, colorful and confusing district south of Pennsylvania avenue, midway between the White House and the Capitol. Here, on B street, between Seventh and Ninth streets, stood the old red-brick Centre Market.

Explore Market

It was a place of smells, sights and sounds beyond anything else in our experience. There was a fascination, which bordered on morbid enchantment, in watching the butchers at work; in inhaling the cold air from the ice-boxes which conveyed the most subtle, frozen fragrances of fish-scales and the salt sea; in rubbing our feet in the sawdust upon the floor, which seemed an altogether manly thing to do. We hurried down one block of stalls, and turned, exploringly, into another just as if we were there on some important errand.

Outside Centre Market, the sidewalks were covered with temporary stalls, for vegetables and farm produce, just for the day. At the curb, all manner of carts and dilapidated vehicles were backed up, to also serve as stalls. The Gang was watched with sharp suspicion by the stall-holders, who were constantly on the alert to protect themselves against marauding gangs, from the back streets of Washington, who, creating a diversion at one place, would carry out a raid, at another.

Here, the finest Negroes to be found in Washington congregated — simple, unaffected, childlike souls, deeply scornful of the ways of the city, who came to sell their produce and drive languidly back into Maryland or Virginia. We felt a sort of kinship with these folk. There were old men, grizzled and grey, still wearing bandanas about their necks and occasionally a faded and wrinkled cutaway purchased from the oleo' man; there were ancient women smoking clay pipes and warming their hands at buckets made into braziers, into which scraps of kindling wood and packing cases had been thrown pell-mell.

Rumpus Started

Q suddenly halted with an amazed expression; the Gang gathered questioning about him. "By buzzard!" he exclaimed. "Listen!" he continued, "cautiously indicating two young Negroes sitting on the tail of a wagon, chattering in a jargon which sounded quite meaningless to us.

"I can hardly believe it," Q said, "but they are talking French! The same language Jusserand uses!"

"They're not," denied Walker White. "They're speaking Virginian—"

"It's French, I tell you," Q protested. "I'll prove it to you—"

Whereupon, Quentin walked directly up to the two men, smiled most engagingly and asked, "Avez vous bien dormi?"

"Says which?" asked one of them, rolling his eyes.

"Parley vous francais?" Q pursued.

One of the men grunted.

"He says 'non'!" Q explained in some excitement. "What did I tell you! But I'll ask him another. Mangez vous avec apetit?"

One of the Negroes, uncertain as to whether he were being "kidded," slid down from the tailboard of the wagon and collared Quentin. Immediately the Gang attacked him about the feet and knees, and we all went down in a black-and-white tangle, among the stalls, shoppers and market baskets. The man must have banged his head heavily on the sidewalks, for he let Q go, who wriggled away. An instant later, however, the Negro caught Walker, the smallest of us, by the leg, and stood to his feet, still holding the Runt.

"Let him go!" yelled Q in good, clear English.

Rescue and Retreat

By this time, libelous comment was being made concerning us by the proprietors of nearby stalls and by their customers.

"I saw one of 'em pinch some apples," lied one.

"Somebody done bust half a dozen aigs!" another moaned.

"Oh, Lordy, Lordy, 'rest 'em," suggested a third.

"That's all a lie!" Q answered. "None of us have done anything, except me, and I haven't done anything, either—"

A look of sudden decision crossed his face. "Get Walker White!" he commanded, and the Gang again charged captor and captured. The man let go of Walker, to parry a blow from Dick, and the Gang, with White safely in the center, swept down the sidewalk, brushing the crowd aside.

"To the right!" Q ordered. "Get to the bicycles, mount, and each ride in a different direction! We'll meet behind the Post Office Department. If we aren't all there in 15 minutes, I'll call up Maj. Sylvester! Beat it! To the right, between wagons——"

Thus was the first action and orderly retreat, under Q's leadership executed; also, and much more important, the ancient and honorable tradition of "one for all and all for one," was splendidly reaffirmed.

Mexican Finds Way To Make Silver Out of Lead

MEXICO CITY, March 29.—(AP.)—The newspaper El Universal printed prominently the claims of a young Mexican chemist named Jose Esparza that he had discovered a means to convert lead into silver.

The process is said to consist in mixing a powder, the secret of which Esparza has refused to divulge, with molten lead. When the mixture cools, the result is silver.

Samples taken by the newspaper's reporters to the Mineral Assay Department of the government were analyzed and pronounced to contain 91 per cent silver.

El Universal is arranging for further tests.

NEWSIES TO BE SHOW GUESTS

Dorothy Revier

Now, boys! Up on your toes for the big theater party at the Harris tomorrow at 3. All for the carrier boys of the Sun-Telegraph by courtesy of the management of this theater.

There has been a slight change in the program. On account of the many strenuous rehearsals the players have had to go through for the regular performances at this theater, all of the vaudeville and specialty acts will be eliminated, but the motion picture program has been enlarged. The feature picture, "Vengeance," which will head the show of the week at this theater, will be presented to the boys and it is a wonderful all-talker—a picture so full of thrills and excitement that the youngsters will stay up on their toes. The background of the picture is in the wilds of the Congo River—jungles, ferocious natives, and thrilling action. Jack Holt is the star, and that in itself is enough to tingle the blood of the boys. Dorothy Revier is also featured in "Vengeance." Aside from this big all-talking feature, there will be comedies and news reels—a big, exciting, interesting entertainment to last more than two hours.

Bear in mind—3 o'clock sharp—admission by ticket only.

Good Hurlers for Bucs.
Eight Besides Grimes.
Glangesia's Fine Race

Pro Heads Laud Hyatt.
Fans Refuse to Referee.
Campolo Charges Trick.

STONER AND SPENCER ADDED TO STAFF

THE possibilities of any ball club depend mainly upon the quality of its pitching. No matter how much strength or class it may possess in other departments, it has got to have capable hurlers or it won't get very far. A size-up of the Pirate situation from this angle makes the chances of the Pirates for a creditable showing in the 1930 pennant race look very encouraging, for there is plenty of promise that the hurling during the regular season will be satisfactory in every way both to the management and to the fans.

Glenn Spencer

True, Burleigh Grimes is not yet in line, but there is no doubt that he will be, possibly before the end of another week. And when the spitballer is added to the string of available slab workmen, Jewel Ens will be just about as well fixed for pitchers as any rival pilot, as even now he has no fewer than eight mound specialists who appear capable of hurling winning ball. The octet includes six right-handers in Remy Kremer, Irvin Brame, Heinie Meine, Steven Swetonic, Lil Stoner and Glenn Spencer, with Jess Petty and Larry French as the southpaw members.

THOSE are the pitchers likely to be retained for the regular campaign, and the array is an impressive one, any way you look at it. The two new additions, Stoner and Spencer, offer lots of promise. Stoner is a veteran of more than five years' experience in major league company, coming back after a short stay in the minors that has filled him with new determination, and Spencer is a youngster tried before, whose wealth of natural ability has finally been developed to a point that makes him look ripe and ready to begin a winning career in the fast set.

And the holdovers, without exception, look good to deliver in larger and more satisfying quantities than they did a year ago. Kremer is fit for a flying start, whereas illness handicapped him in the early stages of 1929. Brame has added a year of experience, as have Meine, French and Swetonic, and the removal of a troublesome appendix appears to have helped Petty. Meine and French are particularly promising. Meine showed himself to be a good pitcher last year and learned a lot that will aid him. French is greatly improved in every sense and it will be surprising if he doesn't have a big season. With the general strength of the Pirates backing up such a pitching staff the local team can hardly fail to get somewhere.

WHILE Spencer probably will be the only hurler retained for this year from among the younger recruits, the time devoted to giving the others a thorough trying-out was not wasted by any means. On the contrary, the Bucs appear to have enriched themselves for the future by finding two exceptional prospects.

These boys are Andy Bednar and Leon Chagnon, righthanders. Both will be placed in the minors for 1930, in all likelihood, this being Chagnon's second trip back, but there's hardly a doubt that they'll make the grade at some future day.

Andy Bednar

BEDNAR, in particular, shapes up as a sure bet to develop into a pitcher of the front rank after he has gained a little more experience. This recruit from the McCook club, of the Nebraska State League, is not yet 21, but he is nearer to being a real pitcher right now than many older flingers from the minors tried out in the big league this spring. He is particularly good in the matter of control, a quality lacked by the great majority of young flingers, and he has lots of stuff besides, being all around the best young mound prospect the Pirates have had in camp in years. He can hardly miss making good in a future trial.

PITTSBURGH sportsmen in general and Owner R. K. Mellon in particular may justly feel proud of the showing made by Glangesia, the local entrant in the Grand National Steeplechase over the famous Aintree course, the most difficult in the world, in England yesterday. For a time Glangesia was the outstanding horse in the race and actually made the running on the first round. It was unfortunate that he couldn't keep it up, but in view of the class of the international field, the hard nature of the race and the heavy odds against him, it was decidedly creditable to finish fourth and to be one of only six horses to complete the gruelling grind.

The fact that Shaun Goilin, the Irish winner, a 100-to-8 shot, is a horse of unknown pedigree, shows the uncertainty of the Grand National and demonstrates again that it is any starter's race, regardless of breeding, with the fates casting the deciding vote. It is something even to finish in that grind, and with two horses among the six that went the distance out of 41 starters America must be said to have done pretty well.

RARELY has a young basketball player found himself on trial before such a jury of experts as sat in judgment on Charley Hyatt when he performed in Cleveland this week. The Pitt star is expected to turn pro and join the Cleveland Rosenblums next season, and some of the American League's most prominent figures took advantage of the recent opportunity to watch him in action.

Among those on hand to give Chipper Charley the up and down were Dave Kerr, coach of the Rosies; Pete Barry and Joe Lapchick, star players of the same team; Chuck Salador and Pete Sinnot, leading American League officials; Dave Banks, former Celtic luminary, and Frank Morganweck, Rochester manager and probably the oldest coach and leader in the game.

Charley Hyatt

NO PLAYER could hope to get past that flock of critics without having the goods, and no higher tribute has ever been paid to Hyatt's ability than is contained in the fact that they were enthusiastic in their approval of what he displayed. They declare they have never seen any individual give a more spectacular basketball performance. Some of them express the opinion that Charley lacks the defensive skill required to entitle him to a ranking with the game's greatest, but they add that, with his rare natural ability, keen eye, and speed and smartness as a ball hawk, he could easily be developed into an outstanding pro star. They pronounce him, too, the best 40-minute runner they have ever seen. "An exceptional player in every sense," was the way Kerr summed up the Uniontown lad.

BASEBALL law as applied to another player on the same club has cost Catcher Mickey O'Neil a job as an attempted comeback. The Cardinals tried to send Catcher Gus Mancusco to one of their farms, but Commissioner Landis halted the move, as Mancusco had already been optioned out twice, the legal limit.

Landis ruled that the Cards must either keep Mancusco or let him go unconditionally. So the St. Louis club, declining an offer from the Braves, decided to hang on to Mancusco and released O'Neil instead, though the intention had been to retain Mickey as extra backstop. O'Neil may not be left out in the cold, however, as there is a chance that Bill McKechnie will sign him.

BOXING fans the world over consider it their privilege to razz the decisions given by referees and judges, but in Detroit the other night they turned down an invitation to decide some bouts themselves.

LOS ANGELES, March 29.—"Bring on those Cub champions," was the realistic battle-cry of the Pirates today as they looked forward to the third clash of a series that has all the fireworks of a miniature world series. A grand performance, with George Grantham playing the cards beautifully, gave the Freebooters a spectacular victory over the champs yesterday. The Buccos making four runs in the ninth to encompass their feat, 9 to 8. The spectacle offered another big audience augurs well for the success of the remainder of the series, as the fans went home last night in a mighty excited frame of mind. They saw the Pittsburghers hop all over Guy Bush in the ninth and they cheered Grantham to the echo after Boots' second homer of the afternoon had put the Pirates back in the game. Adam Comorosky singled to right with two out in the ninth to score Stewie Clarke with the winning run.

GREAT FINISH

And what a ninth inning it was! Grantham's second homer left the Pirates still one in arrears with one out, but the obliging Rogers Hornsby, who is quite notorious for kicking bounders around the infield, put Paul Waner on first when he fumbled his roller. Clarke pushed a little hit through the box to send Brother Paul to third, and it seemed as if the Pirates would at least deadlock with Gus Suhr at the plate.

The next event was a feature number. The bat of the Coast League slugger spoke with the fury of a Terry and a mad liner set sail for a spot in left center. Then like a flash Clyde Beck leaped in his angular stride and the rocket poured itself right into the pocket of his glove. All Clyde had to do was to set himself for a toss to Grimm that would have ended the game, as Clarke was half way to second. In his eagerness to make the double shuffle, Beck threw the ball low past Grimm and P. Waner scored to effect a tie. Clarke was allowed to go to third under the ground rule and the Polish flyer whacked a single to right to send all the Pittsburgh boosters home happy.

The pitching phase of the contest provided an interesting study in contrasts. From the depths of Class D baseball and the bowels of the earth came a bush league pitcher and coal miner to triumph over the star sharpshooter who was able to down the Athletics last October.

It's a far cry from the Nebraska State League to world series glory. Yet Andy Bednar of that dust-and-center circuit today owns a verdict over Guy Bush, who was a part of the rout of the furious ninth. Andy and his illustrious rival were the relief pitchers of the contest. They relieved Larry French and Swede Carlson.

BEDNAR TAMES CUBS

Bednar went to the mound in the seventh and for a few brief moments seemed nervous. Larry is noted for his control, but he put Cuyler and Stephenson on the sacks with passes. Brickell failed to hold Blair's long fly which fell for a double, the inning producing three runs. But Andy was a headliner in the two remaining frames, his mates, meantime, making gay with Bush, tamer of the "A's."

Grantham's slugging ability left his former buddies hanging on the ropes after a real ball game. George's big afternoon at the plate included two real homers, a three-bagger that was one of the best drives of the game and a single. His first homer carried over the outer fence of right field, his second round-tripper being a liner that cleared the inner ramparts. Boots' three-bagger hit the top of the center field fence.

KREMER-MALONE TODAY

The second game was loaded with thrills. Cuyler's great throw in the first inning cut the fleet Brickell down at third, while P. Waner, Grantham and Clarke put over a fine combination stunt to rob Blair of a triple in the second. The new Cub tried to take three bases on his wallop to right.

Throughout the game was sparkling, the fight bringing out disputes with umpires and that sort of thing. Yes, boys, it's a real series, and the Pirates are 2 up.

Remy Kremer and Pat Malone have been named as the starting pitchers for today.

LOWER MERION TO TEST WEST PENN FIVE

PHILADELPHIA, March 29.—Sharon High School will make its third attempt in four years to win the P. I. A. A. basketball title as it faces Lower Merion, Eastern regional titleholders tonight in the Palestra of the University of Pennsylvania, in a game that will decide the state champion for 1930.

FOURTH EFFORT

Sharon, representing District No. 8 of the league, has reached the final round of the state tourney three times out of the last four years, but has yet to score a triumph in the big test. This District, No. 8, is one of the four which has been unable as yet to produce a champion, the others being Districts No. 4, 5 and 6.

Sharon reached the final this year by winning out in its own district, defeating the District No. 7 champions, the W. P. I. A. L. rulers, New Kensington and by downing the champions of District No. 6, Lewistown, in a semi-final setto.

Lower Merion triumphed over Old Forge High in an inter-district clash and whipped John Harris High of Harrisburg in the semi-final round. Both quintets boast fine records, with a minimum of defeats and a maximum of decisive and important triumphs.

FORMER CHAMPIONS

Following are the P. I. A. A. champions since the annual tournament was started back in 1920:

1920—Harrisburg Tech, District No. 3.
1921—McKeesport, District No. 7.
1922—Mahanoy City, District No. 4.
1923—Nanticoke, District No. 2.
1924—Homestead, District No. 7.
1925—Uniontown, District No. 7.
1926—Nanticoke, District No. 2.
1927—Steelton, District No. 3.
1928—Hazleton, District No. 2.
1929—Hazleton, District No. 2.

Volley Ball Title Tournament Today

Play for the Western Pennsylvania Y. M. C. A. volley ball championship will be started at the Downtown Y at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and will be concluded there this evening. A double round robin schedule is to be played.

Downtown Y and East Liberty Y are regarded as the leading local representatives.

Nick Altrock Says:

SOMEWHERE SOUTH, March 29.—There is no sense to these exhibition games except the gate receipts. This spring the Boston Braves have knocked off the Athletics and Yanks and everybody knows the Braves have been in the cellar long enough to be pre-war rye. Just put that Florida climate in their nostrils and they play like they were getting paid.

Nick Altrock.

No fooling, if spring training counted in the league standing, Boston would have more pennants than J. P. Morgan's yacht. But about the time they start hanging May baskets, you'll see the Braves so far behind you'll think they are caddies. And if the Red Sox ever climbed up to seventh place, they would suffer from vertigo.

YESTERDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON EXPLANATIONS: BENEDICT ARNOLD, TRAITOR, WAS A HERO OF THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR—Benedict Arnold was the real hero of many of the famous battles of the Revolution (Ticonderoga, Ridgefield, Maine, Saratoga, etc.) George Washington considered him his ablest general and on numerous occasions expressed his personal affection and admiration publicly. In a public statement of March 6, 1777, Washington said of Arnold: "Surely a more spirited, a more active and sensible officer fills no department in the Army," and, again, on September 23 of the same year, "To him alone is due the honor of our latest victory."

W. & J. BANQUET HELD HERE

"The music of life turns mute
When the chords of memory are ripped asunder."

By JESS CARVER.

With the above choice bit of poetry, this story of the annual banquet of the Western Pennsylvania Alumni Association of old Washington and Jefferson College is begun. Everything was rosy with the Wash-Jeffers last night as they gathered in the ballroom of the William Penn, little of the mute being in evidence as old acquaintances were renewed and new ones formed. The varsity and freshmen grid squads were guests of honor.

The doings were enlivened right at the start by a bit of repartee between the well known Jiller Miller and the equally well known Dan Dougherty. Jiller, you see, in the capacity of president of the alumni council, appointed Dan, Speedy Rush and Will Lyle as a nominating committee to take time out and present to the assemblage candidates for the various offices of the association.

After Jiller had finished his talk, during which he got off the usual number of humorous remarks, Dan, rising to his feet, spoke thusly:

"Now, Jiller, that you have told all your jokes, what the heck do you want us to do?"

"I want you," retorted Jiller, "to use your common sense, provided you have such, and take a run out in the corridor and pick us some officers."

Dan departed sputtering. What else could he do?

Last night's gathering was well attended. There were more than 200 on hand, including a goodly number of the younger members of the alumni, always a good sign. Judge W. H. S. Thomson, former Federal judge, who was to have been the principal speaker, suffered an accident in his home and was unable to appear, his place on the program being taken by Rev.

SOLOMEN STOPS JACK WILSON

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A great action fight card at the Moose Temple last night saw three of the four battles brought to an untimely end, two of them via the technical knockout route and one on a foul, and only the opener go the limit. Evidently with the death the night before of Billy Hatch in McKeesport in mind, Boxing Commissioner Havey J. Boyle himself ordered the stopping of all three of the battles that were cut short.

Mickey Solomen

In the windup, Mickey Solomen, of New Castle, rallied from a knockdown for a count of nine in the second round to spill Jackie Wilson, of the North Side, for counts of nine and four in the fifth round, the bell saving Wilson on the second flooring, and then drop him again for nine and hammer him into a defenseless state on the ropes before Boyle interceded after 40 seconds of the sixth round to award the honors to Solomen on a technical knockout.

SCHOLES WINS ON FOUL

Billy Scholes, of the North Side, sagged down to his knees with five seconds to go in the fifth round of the semi-final with U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, claiming a foul, but was being counted out by the knockdown timekeeper when the bell sounded. Boyle ordered the bout stopped with the men in their corners, and, when informed by the referees that the final blow had been a low right, awarded the bout to Scholes on a foul. The commission physician examined Scholes in his dressing room immediately afterward and

FIELD CLUB GETS NATIONAL OPEN TEST

SECTIONAL GOLF EVENT CARDED JUNE 16

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

The local sectional qualifying round for the national open golf championship, to be staged on Monday, July 16, will be played at the Pittsburgh Field Club this year, it was learned today from an authoritative source.

For the last few years, the United States Golf Association has favored the Oakmont Country Club in the selection of courses for the playing of the preliminary test, a nation-wide event that is to be staged this year at 20 links through the length and breadth of our land. Last year there were only 19 sites, but Buffalo has been appointed as one of the new districts, which will save many of the would-be entrants from traveling all of the way here from Western New York.

The Pittsburgh Field Club has one of the finest courses in Western Pennsylvania; it is needless to say it is also one of the most difficult since its new holes were constructed. At its best, the Arpinwall layout bows its head to none, and should make the boys step on the gas.

Oakmont is favored with the national intercollegiates this year, and therefore its members will be just as satisfied, wishing to keep its marvelous turf at its best for the big tourney.

PROS IN ARMS

Professional golfers throughout the country are up in arms, and it would not be surprising to see dissension break the ranks of the P. G. A., which has always appeared to be solidly aligned. Due to the creating of a "Czar," at a high-paid salary, the P. G. A. raised its annual rate so high that each of the member paid-players is assessed about $50 per annum.

Local pro golfers in the past have never paid more than $17 in dues, $10 to the National P. G. A., $5 to the local chapter and the remainder a subscription to the organization's National publication, it is said here, and many of the boys are kicking that it is too much dough to put out. The Texas professionals withdrew from the National association in a body when it was learned the fee was to be raised. It appears that the Tri-state P. G. A. national qualifying round won't amount to a great deal this season unless something is done to bring a majority of the local members into the fold.

Tee to Green

Jack McNamara, young, enthusiastic and intelligent greenskeeper at the Pittsburgh Field Club has just returned from Amherst, where he studied a special course in greenskeeping. More than 50 applications were received for membership in the class, but only 22, of whom Jack was one, were accepted.

President L. A. Hubach, of the Shannopin Country Club, scored a hole in 1 on the seventeenth hole, about 175 yards, last week. He used his little mashie, it was reported.

STAR BOWLERS

George Ormiston, of Oakmont, and Francis J. Doyle, of Stanton Heights, golfing and business partners, rolled in the A. B. C. tourney in Cleveland last night. Ormiston scored 168, 180, 143 and Doyle 156, 169, 148. Both represented the P. A. A. on five-man teams and appear to be just as good pinmen as they are golfers—maybe better, who knows?

Among yesterday's visitors to the city was Andy Patrick, of the Zanesville (O.) Country Club, local boy. Herb Lawson, [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], Charley Heath and Andy had a gabfest.

The Chartiers Heights Country Club is celebrating with a dance and "luncheon," with music by [illegible] orchestra, tonight. An Easter Saturday dance also has been billed. And, as the entertainment committee reminds Chartiers members: "Remember—movies every Sunday evening 8 p. m. No charge."

Long's Sport Comment

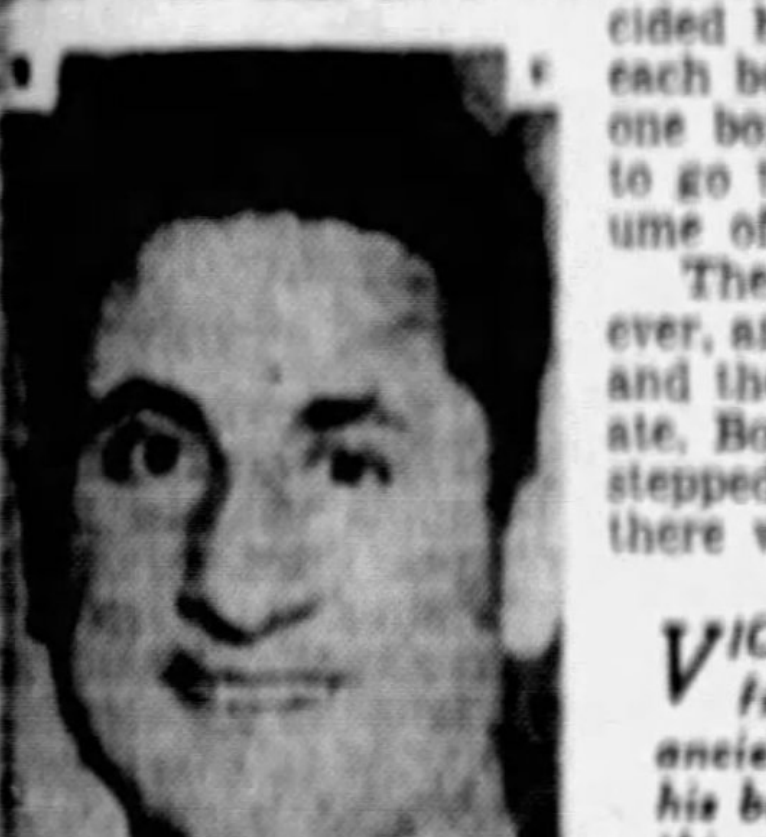
The West Side A. C. announced that its preliminaries would be decided by "popular verdict." At the end of each bout the spectators were to cheer first one boxer and then the other, the decision to go to the one receiving the greater volume of approval.

The fans refused flatly to go along, however, and after the plan had been tried twice and the spectators still declined to co-operate, Boxing Commissioner James M. Brown stepped in and notified the promoters that there would be "no more of that."



Victorio Campolo

VICTORIO CAMPOLO, giant battler from the Argentine, charges that an ancient ring trick was pulled on him in his bout with Johnny Risko in New York this week. He says that after the fight he put his gloves on the scales and discovered that they weighed eight ounces each. The Argentinian voiced the suspicion that somebody had slipped him eight-ounce gloves instead of the regulation six-ounce kind, so that his punches would not hurt Risko. Campolo expresses the belief that he might have scored a knockout with six-ounce mittens, but Madison Square Garden, officials scoff at his charges. "The gloves may have weighed eight ounces after being soaked with water during the fight, but they weighed only six ounces when Campolo put them on," Matchmaker Tom McArdle declared. "Boxing gloves hold a lot of water after the seconds get through dousing a fighter, but Campolo's claims that we ran in big gloves on him will not hold any."

The meet got under way yesterday and will be concluded today.

ROWE, HARRIS FIGHT DRAW

ERIE, Pa., March 29.—Al Rowe, New York lightweight, who had a string of 46 victories snapped here two weeks ago when he was knocked out in one minute by Sammy Harris, Akron, Negro, came back last night and gave Harris a neat boxing lesson in the 10-round main event, only to have the judges call it a draw.

The judges apparently worked under a draw complex, for in the eight-round semi-final Joe Coffman, Buffalo, easily beat Johnny Kusic, Youngstown, and that was called a draw, and in another eight-round semi-final, Joey Coffalo, won five rounds from Jackie Shupack, Paterson, N. J., only to have that engagement also called a draw.

W. & J. BANQUET HELD HERE

Dr. Edward Wallace, a prominent Wash-Jeff alumnus. Dr. Edward Weir, dean of the college and acting president in the absence of President Baker, also gave a brief address.

The Tip Off

Last night's Wash-Jeff alumni banquet was not without its share of notables. Olde grads, middle age grads and grads of as recent vintage as a year ago exhibited bright and shining faces about the Willie Penn.

Here are a few who were on hand, a few of many: Captain Jap Douds, all-America tackle; Merry Rush, halfback ace; Cleve Cook; Ed Fasola, Swissvale High's capable coach; Ross (Buck) and Tom Buchanan, grads of ancient vintage; Bat Brown, former president of the Wash-Jeff Kappa Sigma chapter; Sam B. Wilson, who could have played the outfield for John McGraw at one time, and the celebrated Doc Kiss, of Carnegie.

Then I saw Bill Amos and Ray Ride, coaches; Captain-elect Levine, Dick McConnel, with whom I used to hop freights; former basketball coach John Bresler; Brud Eaton, of Beaver; Red Kirkman, Tex Dougherty, Smooth Allison and Judge Hughes.

In addition to all these, there was Dean Weir, Judge Bronson, Deb Bernet, all decked out in a tuxedo and singin' in the quartet; Les Spriggs, Elmer Carroll, Sparky Adams, County Commissioner Walker, of Washington County, and the famous Glen (Wooffy) Wilde.

W. Heber Dithrich, solicitor of Allegheny County, served in the capacity of toastmaster, and served very well. He is the first toastmaster on record who could tell the story about the railroad engines and actually imitate one.

reported that he had been struck low.

Up to the finish of this bout, Scholes had a slight edge, due to the fact that he had Carpentier out from two rights on the jaw that floored the veteran at the end of the third round, the bell saving him. Scholes also won the fourth round, after having been handily outboxed by Carpentier up to the time the latter was felled. Carpentier was coming back in the fifth and scoring points to make up lost ground when the foul ended the bout.

DENERI STOPS HAGGERTY

The second bout, between Jack DeNeri, of the North Side, and Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, was stopped after 30 seconds of the sixth round, with Haggerty using the ring to avoid punishment, after having taken a slugging in the first five rounds that included two knockdowns, one for a count of nine, in the third round, and another flooring for a count of nine in the fifth.

Don Frazier, Cuban featherweight, of Chicago, won all the way after the first round, over Paul Balint, of the North Side, in the opener. Balint took a count of three in the second round and was badly stung several times thereafter by the straight rights of Frazier, who boxes after the fashion of Tony Herrera, with whom he trained before coming here.

The windup looked like a cakewalk for Wilson in the first two rounds. He outscored Solomen in heavy punching in the opening round and midway in the second began to smother Mickey under an avalanche of punches, the latter finally going down in a sitting position and then rising to his knees to take a count of nine, and then clinch his way through to the bell.

Wilson came out to finish Mickey in the third round and slipped down as he rebounded from scoring with a hard right to the head. He tired under his own pace and Solomen was coming back and outfighting him over most of the route. Mickey continued the aggressor in the fourth round and then the fireworks came in the fifth.

Jackie paved the way for his crushing defeat by spending himself on a raking body attack in the early stages of this round.

Mickey was weakening perceptibly under the bombardment, but, just at the critical moment, Wilson again slowed down, and Mickey, fighting on courageously, winged his opponent with a right that hurt him. He followed it up with a left and a right to the head that floored Wilson for a count of nine. As he got up, Jackie ran straight into another right and went down heavily, the bell saving him at the count of four.

Mickey went out for the kill in the sixth round and Wilson had not got over the effects of his narrow escape in the preceding session. A right, followed by a left and another right as Solomen rushed close, pinned Wilson flat on the floor. He appeared to be out for good, but reacted to the vibration of the knockdown timekeeper's pounding mallet and pulled himself up at the count of nine. Mickey piled into him and drove him into the ropes, where, his hands down, Jackie was a helpless target as the bout was stopped.

GOLDSTEIN TO BOX

The weights were: Solomen, 154 pounds, and Wilson, 152¾; Carpentier, 134¼, and Scholes, 132¼; DeNeri, 126¾, and Haggerty, 124½; Frazier, 124, and Balint, 125½.

Goodman is here for his bout with Johnny Mellow at Motor Square Garden Monday night. Goldstein now is a stablemate of Goodman, with Jimmy Dunn, in Cleveland.

The gate grossed more than $1,600, and a collection was taken up before the main bout for the widow of Billy Hatch. The officials were: Joe Keally, referee; Frank Brown and Frank Ferris, judges; Bill Schuster, announcer; Max Zeugschmidt, timer; A. C. Couch, knockdown timer, and Dr. M. R. Goldman, physician.

SANDLOT CLUBS TO MEET

By TOM BIRKS

Should the weather man change his ideas from along wintry lines, there is a chance quite a number of sandlot teams in the district will hold workouts today and tomorrow.

The wintry spell has put a kink into the plans of managers to get their proteges out on the lots, but the sound of horse-hide thudding into catchers gloves should be heard over the Pittsburgh district over the week-end.

Teams will be holding final meetings, and with the playing nights of the various teams being given out by Fred Isherwood and his associates during the next few days, it is quite possible that lots of activity will be shown among the sandlotters.

Bunts

The [illegible] Club of the Central League will hold its first practice session this afternoon at Warrington Park. Manager Ray [illegible] wants the following players to be on hand: Freedman, Morris, Caroll, Denny, Davis, Barnett, Rounds and Kress. Any players wishing tryouts should also report, or call Lafayette 5077-J.

The Brookline club will hold a special meeting tomorrow afternoon at 1219 Chatham avenue. The following players should be on hand: Reese, Stockinger, Powers, Lewis, Holmes, Keenan, Davies, Neiman, Reid, Brandon, and any others wishing tryouts.

M'LARNIN TOPS THOMPSON

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP.)—The dynamite in Jimmy McLarnin's right hand failed to explode last night and the clouting celt from Vancouver, B. C., was forced to stage a rapid-fire finish to gain a close decision triumph over the hard-hitting Negro welterweight, Young Jack Thompson, of Oakland, Cal., in the 10-round feature of Madison Square Garden's fistic frolic.

Banged and battered, frequently outpunched and outboxed, McLarnin needed all his remarkable courage, generalship and skill to save himself from defeat at the hands of slim, wiry Negro puncher. In a rally in the last three rounds, he outscored Thompson to gain the unanimous verdict of Referee Jimmy Crowley and the two judges.

A near-capacity crowd of 18,000 was in an uproar throughout most of the fight. Although McLarnin was the popular favorite, Thompson's spectacular but also erratic work won the approval of the crowd and there was considerable booing when the Irish lad's hand was lifted in victory by Ballerin' Joe Humphries at the finish of the last furious rally.

PINMEN TO LEAVE

The second delegation of Pittsburgh bowling stars will leave tomorrow for the A. B. C. tourney in Cleveland. The squad includes bowlers from the North Side.

Italian Fighter Kisses Rival After Bout

BOSTON, March 29.—(AP.)—Al Linzi, Italian lightweight, outpointed Mel Aragon, of Peru, here last night in one of the Boston Garden's six-round preliminaries. When the decision was announced, the victor consoled his rival by kissing him on each cheek.

Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, gave Joe Monte, of Brockton, a savage beating in the feature 10-round bout. Friedman weighed 184½ pounds and Monte, 183.

SHIFTS OFTEN MAKE STARS, RUTH SAYS

By BABE RUTH

HOUSTON, Tex., March 29.—Just before we broke camp I was talking to young Bill Karlon, one of our best looking rookie players. Bill came up as a catcher, and since he has been in camp he has done everything but pitch. Finally Bob Shawkey decided to turn him into an outfielder. And Bill wasn't very pleased.

Babe Ruth

"Do you think I ought to switch to the outfield?" he asked me. "You know I've always caught all my life and it seems funny to change now."

"Sure," I said. "Believe it or not, but half the kids who come up to the big leagues for tryouts haven't yet learned where they can play best."

Karlon thought I was kidding him, but I wasn't. That's a fact. Some of the other fellows were sitting around and got into the conversation. And right on our own club it developed that Lou Gehrig and Mark Koenig had started their baseball careers as pitchers. So did I. Tony Lazzeri had played the outfield as a kid. George Pipgras had started out as a first baseman. Bob Shawkey started as a first baseman, too, in the kid games and happened to start pitching because the regular pitcher came up with a sore arm.

SWITCHES ARE COMMON

All through baseball there are cases of men who started at one position then switched to some other. The most common switch is from pitching to playing the outfield. The answer to that one usually is hitting. A fair pitcher who can hit that ball is a lot more valuable to his club playing every day in the outfield than he is getting into the game every third or fourth day as a pitcher. Goose Goslin, of Washington; Lefty O'Doul, of the Phils; Tony Kaufman, of the Giants; George Sisler, of the Braves; Rube Bressler, of Brooklyn; Earl Webb, of the Cardinals; Charley Jamieson, of Cleveland, and Sam Rice, of Washington, all started out as pitchers—and they are only a few of the players who have switched from the box to the outfield.

Accidents lots of times are responsible for temporary shifts that become permanent. One of the best examples of this is Moe Berg, of the White Sox. Moe came up an an infielder and he was never more than fair. Then one day all the White Sox regular catchers were hurt and Moe volunteered to go behind the bat. He hit his stride immediately — and since that day Moe Berg has been listed as a catcher and a good one. Probably if it hadn't been for a couple of split fingers Moe Berg would have finished his career as a substitute infielder without even realizing that he was better fitted as a catcher.

STARS IN OUTFIELD

Switches from infield to outfield and vice versa are more or less common. A lot of kid infielders come up who have the ear marks of real ball players, but who are weak on ground balls. Riggs Stephenson, of the Cubs, Bob Meusel, the former Yankee outfielder now with the Reds, and Jack Rothrock, of the Red Sox, are examples of this. As outfielders they have been stars. But if some smart manager hadn't been wise enough to shift them, they probably wouldn't have lasted a half dozen seasons as infielders.

The most unusual switch of all probably is from some other position to the box. Right now I can recall only two players who have made that switch. One is Red Lucas, of the Reds, who for two or three seasons was a utility man in the infield and outfield. And the other is Bob Smith, of the Braves, who started pitching simply because the club was up against it for pitchers. Bob was an infielder, but once he started taking his turn in the box the Boston Club suddenly found that he was a real pitcher.

Mel Ott, of the Giants, and Jimmy Foxx, of the Athletics, the two kid members of the big leagues, both started their careers as catchers. Now Ott is one of the most promising young outfielders in the business and Jimmy is equally at home at first base or third base.

There are a lot of other instances of switching that turned out great. Johnny Hodapp, the Cleveland second baseman, started out as a first sacker. Max Carey played a season at shortstop in the Central League before he shifted to the outfield to become one of the great outfielders of all time.

Randy Moore, the third baseman for the Boston Braves, was an outfielder until this spring when Bill McKechnie shifted him to the infield as an experiment and found the boy O. K. from the start. Andy High, the Cardinal third baseman, started out as an outfielder, too, and Whitey Witt was a very poor shortstop before he developed into a high class outfielder.

The whole story of baseball is filled with things like that. Players sometimes hate to make a switch—but it's a fact that dozens of our greatest stars at one position were dubs at some other post before they found a manager smart enough to see their possibilities and start them right.

COACHING DEMONSTRATION

Just had a letter from one of my old players who has been promoted to a Big Time coaching job. He said he thought he could get along with all factors except possibly the press, and asked what is the best way to handle these star sports writers. So I wrote him the following story:

Knute Rockne

"A new coach comes to Washout College and understands that the local press has been quite critical. Coach invites leading sports writer to dinner on Monday night and takes him out to dinner again Tuesday night. Also, on Thursday night, he shows this sports writer all of his plays. In its first game Washout doesn't look very good and the leading sports writer proceeds to pan coach with little restraint. Coach calls up leading sports writer on telephone and says: 'Say, what do you mean by bawling me out in the papers? I have had you out to dinner twice and furthermore showed you all of my plays.' 'Sa-a-y,' drawled the leading sports writer, 'the time and place for you to show me your plays is out at your stadium on Saturday afternoons between 2 and 4.'"

WEST LEADS IN COLLEGIATE MAT MEET

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 29.—Western teams swamped all other sectional entries in the opening day's rounds of the third annual wrestling championships of the National Collegiate Athletic Association held at Penn State College last night and yesterday afternoon. University of Oklahoma led the qualifying list with five men ready to enter the semi-finals out of six entries. Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College and Illinois qualified four each, with a number of others sending two each into the next bracket. The Oklahoma Aggies, defending team champion, entered eight men, but only four survived the two rounds.

The five defending champions came through unscathed although Van Bebber, of Oklahoma Aggies, nearly lost out in the quarter-finals in his bout with Sokno, of Harvard.

Penn State's four entries fell by the wayside early in the competition. Long, 175-pounder, got into the second round, but was beaten by Eubanks, of Oklahoma University, in a grueling match. The bout went two extra periods with only 26 seconds advantage for the Westerner.

Thirteen of the first day's bouts were decided by falls, Oklahoma Aggies and Kansas State each registering two to take a temporary lead in the point scoring. Errington, of Kansas State, scored the quickest fall by pinning Boyd, Waynesburg's sole entry, in 1 minute 9 seconds.

West Virginia's two entries were eliminated early, Myers going out in the only preliminary round bout of the 155-pound class, while Levine, 175-pounder, was beaten by Steinke, of Michigan, one of the outstanding contenders.

RUNYAN WINS AT PINEHURST

PINEHURST, N. C., March 29.—(AP.)—With a large crowd billowing about him and stampeding in his path, Paul Runyan, 21-year-old professional from Bloomfield, N. J., yesterday shot near-perfect golf for two rounds to win the twenty-eighth annual North and South open golf tournament here.

The young shot maker, who learned his tricks on the Concordia course in Little Rock, Ark., calmly pounded out rounds of 72 and 70 to post the winning score of 291.

Runyan, with the exception of a bad second round when he soared to 77, shot steady near par golf throughout the grueling contest. His four round scores of 72-77-72-70 show the consistency of his game.

Two strokes behind the winner, Frank Walsh, ruddy-faced Chicago pro, finished with a brilliant 69 for a gross score of 293. He collected $1,000 second prize money. But for three short putts he missed on his home nine, Walsh would have outstroked Runyan. His four round score reads: 75-72-77-69.

Joe Turnesa, the Elmsford, N. Y., cash performer, Tony Armour, Detroit, and Billy Burke, of Greenwich, Conn., were tied for third with cards of 294. Burke climbed into the preferred camp by matching Walsh's 69 on the last round. Turnesa was conceded a good chance of heading the field until he blew up on the last few holes.

A. GROLL HITS A.B.C. TIMBER FOR 618

CLEVELAND, March 29.—None of the six Pittsburgh club teams rolling on the first squad of five men last night was able to mount the prize-winning barrier, the nearest approach being the 2,630 of the Keystone Athletic Club No. 1. It had games of 884, 842 and 904.

The No. 1 Keystone Athletic Association team rolled 2,486, the No. 2, 243, the No. 3, 2,366, the No. 4, 2,299 and Keystone No. 2, 2,134.

GOOD SINGLES SCORES

Pittsburgh and Alliance pinsters mowed down the timber in paying style in both doubles and singles events.

Alliance, in the persons of E. Stewart and P. Conlin, touched the wood up for a 1,173 after a poor start of 348. This was the only prize figure in the doubles.

In the singles A. Groll and R. Luckner, of Pittsburgh, who lost out in the doubles because of a poor middle game, were right back in the individual battle with scores of 618 and 609 to land the collection division. H. Greenwald, of Alliance, put himself in the money with a flat 600.

CHAMPION FAILS

Another world champion failed to stage a comeback. He was Otto Stein, Jr., of St. Louis, winner of the all events title at Chicago last year. Stein rolled 625 in his team event last night, 555 in his doubles and 544 in his singles and did not land anywhere near the money in this event. Yesterday's Pittsburgh district scores:

DUSTER MAILS — JIMMY ZINN

The Great Mails and Zinn are former Pirate pitchers, now starring with the San Francisco Seals, of the Pacific Coast League. Mails was noted in the major leagues as a great kidder and "fresh guy," while one of Zinn's claims to fame was the fact that he resembled Jack Dempsey.

Sport Vignettes

Little Billy Hatch, Negro bantamweight boxer, who died following his bout with Georgie Tomosky at McKeesport Thursday night, made a hit with the fans in his professional debut, at the Moose Temple recently, when he handed Jimmy Thomas, another Negro lad, with considerable experience, a drubbing, only to have the officials award the decision to Thomas . . . He was an aggressive lad with real fighting instinct, but lacked ruggedness . . . Death was due to a brain hemorrhage, which is what causes most of the ring fatalities . . . As a rule, it is the poorly trained boxer who collapses following a bout and dies . . . He fights himself into a state of exhaustion and when something snaps in his head he has nothing left with which to make the fight for life . . . Two of the high spots in the career of the late Walter Eckersall were beating Wisconsin, 15-6, by kicking three field goals in 1904, and stopping the great Michigan eleven, 2-0, in 1905 . . . The Madison (Wis.) papers hailed his triumph over their team by headlining the story, "Eckersall, 15; Wisconsin, 6" . . . In the game with the Wolverines, Michigan reached Chicago's eight-yard line in the second half and Eckie went back to his goal line as if to punt, but, taking the ball, elected to run with it and broke through to the 20-yard line. Later he punted over the Michigan goal and Clark tried to run the ball out and was tackled for a safety and the only points of the battle . . . In 1905, also, Eckersall ran 105 yards to beat Wisconsin again . . . In 1904, the great Willie Heston dragged down Eckersall as the latter was scampering for what would have proved the winning touchdown after Hugo Bezdek, recently the Penn State coach, had scored one tally for the Maroon . . . No wonder Eckersall became a legendary figure in Mid-Western football . . . He weighed only around 135-140 pounds and was starring in an era of giants and mass plays . . . Chick Christner, featherweight brother of K. O. Christner, will box a four-round preliminary to K. O.'s 10-round battle with Joe Sekyra in the Akron (O.) Armory next Wednesday night . . . His opponent will be Zeke Jones, a student at Akron University . . . In the boxing record books you'll discover that Joe Gans knocked out Frank Erne in the first round of their bout at Fort Erie, Ont., to win the lightweight championship after Erne had won a decision over him . . . Gans was bothered in the first bout by a peculiar movement executed by Erne whereby he dropped his left hand a trifle before he scored with either a jab or a hook . . . Joe couldn't figure out which was coming . . . He drilled hard to overcome that threat in the second bout and had sparring partners emulate it . . . He finally got onto the solution in a workout one day, deciding that the way to beat the "drop" was to quit worrying about it and shoot a right counter the moment the drop began . . . The trick worked and the fight hardly had started before it was over with Gans crowned the new champion . . . Did you know that Jess Carver, collegiate sports writer of the Sun-Telegraph, scooped this town by a week on two hot stories, one that John Lawther was going to quit as basketball coach at Westminster College and the other that Bob Higgins was to be named head football coach at Penn State College?—HARRY KECK.

SENATOR FESS TO LEAD RADIO SPELLING BEE

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

ARE newspapermen better spellers than Congressmen? With Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, as "schoolmaster," they will compete tonight in an old-fashioned spelling bee which will be broadcast from Washington by KDKA at 8:30 o'clock.

"Schoolmaster" Fess will read words selected from the famous old blue-back Holmes Speller, of which only a few copies are in existence today.

Harriet Hanna

Two famous band leaders, John Philip Sousa and Edwin Franko Goldman, will bring their cohorts to the microphone at 10 o'clock and 11 o'clock. They will be heard in Pittsburgh over Station KDKA.

Harriet Hanna and the Carnegie Tech Women's Glee Club will entertain from WJAS at 7:30. The special Byrd program from KDKA at 11 will be provided by the Red Arrow Quartet and Golden Arrow Orchestra.

* * *

G5SW came over KDKA like a ton of brick yesterday. Listeners enjoyed the impromptu entertainment from London.

* * *

WTAM will have the Cleveland Railway Male Chorus of 125 voices at 11 o'clock tonight. Harry Roberts, a motorman, is president of the chorus. The organization broadcast over KDKA in March, 1928.

* * *

There's no vacation this year for radio students of the Betty Crocker school heard over WCAE two mornings a week. In years past Betty dismissed her school the first of April, but this season a 12-month course will be pursued.

* * *

L. S. Munhall—Victor Saudek was born in Milwaukee, organized an orchestra here in 1910 and attained his present position of musical director at KDKA in 1920. He studied under Dvorak and Emil Paur, played flute in the New York Symphony under Walter Damrosch.

* * *

* * *

OOH!

G. St. Martini steps in to remind us that Amos and Andy were originally cast as characters for a radio comic strip of Andy Gump. Also that they once offered to do their Amos and Andy stuff for $250 a week. And the company that turned them down paid a noted orchestra $3,800 for a single night's performance — with meager results.

* * *

Sherman Massingham, the "old iron horse" of the Shipley-Massingham Bowling League, was fined 50 cents the other night for being late. He lingered too long with Amos and Andy. Massingham, 63, and president of the company, is one of the team's best bowlers.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

When Senator Thomas D. Scholl, of Minnesota, spoke over the Columbia System recently, he had a coughing spell. A little later he introduced his faithful dog which, after much persuasion, barked vigorously.

This, however, was lost on the control board in New York, who thought it was Senator Scholl still coughing, and sent a wire suggesting that the Senator turn his head away from the microphone.

Londonderry Air

The play deals with a girl taken from a children's home by a widow and her son. The girl is accustomed to doing most of the work, and is told that she should be grateful for the board, clothing and home given her. As a reward for her faithful services, she is to be allowed to marry the widow's son.

While the widow and her son are out, a pedlar calls and puts a spell on the girl by his smooth words and knowledge of the world. He plays the "Londonderry Air" on his violin and proceeds to tell the girl's fortune. He tells her that she is not to marry the widow's son but a dark man. The end of the play is romantic.

She Is Making Her Mother Happy

"A big change came over Edna from the time I started giving her ACIDINE regularly for her sour stomach," says Mrs. Hagan of 482 First St., Brooklyn. "She likes to take ACIDINE because it tastes just like peppermint. Therefore I can give it to her regularly enough to help her. Since she's so much brighter and happier now, I want every mother, who has the same trouble as I had, to know how she can get it off her mind."

Too much acid makes grown folks suffer from biliousness and indigestion. You can imagine then, why it keeps a child's delicate little stomach so upset she has no appetite and gets puny, pale and drowsy. More than two million people are using ACIDINE regularly because it actually sweetens a sour stomach so quickly, tastes so good and costs so little. Get ACIDINE at any drug store.

CHICKIE

Chickie Melancholy When Barry Goes Away

CHAPTER XLVI.

CHICKIE answered Barry's question in a half sob. But she didn't meet him that night, nor the next. Monday morning they paddled to a bend in the creek and here the willows, high and slender, came down to the water's edge. They pulled up the boat, and after a little swim, lay on the bank in the soft mellow sun.

When she took off her cap and let her hair fall he turned his face away. She could see the strong curve of his neck, his well-set shapely head.

"You turn your back on me, Mr. Red?"

"Oh, no I don't."

"Yes. And what did I do that's so unforgivable? What, Chickie?"

She traced her name in the wet sands. "I think you've made me afraid, Barry."

"Because I love you, Chickie?"

"I don't know—oh, I don't know."

"I can't help loving you, Chickie. There's no way out of that. I can't put my feelings in a vacuum for the next five years."

She asked forlornly this question: "What are we to do, Barry?"

"I suppose I'll have to go. I don't see any other solution the way things are all shot to pieces now." He looked at her then, his eyes dark and furious and demanding but his voice scarcely audible. "Do you want me to offer this, Chickie?"

She sat motionless in an attitude of broken resignation. She leaned back, resting her weight on either hand. The sun made lights in her hair.

Seeing this and the plea unspoken on her lips, his heart burned. He crept upward, put a hand on each of hers, pressing them into the wet sand. "Chickie—listen. I can't do this. Must I? Oh, Chickie, this is murder. This is killing a thing in us that has a right to be. No matter what you say is right or wrong, this is an unholy thing to do!"

Prepares to Leave

"Don't, Barry, I can't stand this! You don't—oh, please!" She lowered her head, hiding it against his arm.

He gave up then. He pushed his hair clean from his forehead, shielding his face from her. After a long while he said, heavily, a thing that froze her to the soul. "Maybe you're right. Maybe it ought to end now—"

She wanted to cry out, bind him fast to her.

But she held her heart breaking in her hands and watched him.

She didn't think that he would go—never dreamed that he could mean it.

When she saw him coming up the path, dressed for the train, snappy and buoyant in gray suit and knitted tie, she stole from [illegible] h. She heard Jonathan's [illegible] ed "Why, lad, going?" [illegible] answer "Yes. I've got [illegible] 's sent word. Is Chickie [illegible]

Jonathan called. Then Barry, knowing, perhaps, pushed through the shrubs and overtook her.

She saw his face; there was no buoyance in it.

"Lord, Chickie—don't you even want to say goodby?"

"So you're going, Barry?" Oh—really—"

The vital, impetuous face looked at her in hot, silent accusation. "Is there anything else for me to do? I don't see it!"

"You're cruel."

"You force me to it."

A little hysterical laugh. "Barry, you think just distance will make any difference? It won't to me! Oh—I can't make myself stop now—"

He said with passionate contempt: "Well—it's safe, Chickie!"

Chickie Dejected

She turned against the sapling tree, covering her face with her arm. He came over and turned her to him, put her head on his shoulder, wiping her eyes with his hand. "Chickie, don't! Tell me anything else we can do. I don't know what it can be. This seems frightful to me. It's cowardly. We love each other. That ought to be enough. I've said this—I've told you. And now after all we've said—after all we've felt—"

Her thought melted, a warm anguish flowed through all her veins. She felt the sun streaming about them in a flood, hot, overpowering. She wished that she might die there in his arms, make him hold her so until the life went from her. She said weakly: "You won't go, Barry, no—leave me now?"

He answered bitterly: "You're crueler than I, Chickie. You don't know it. But you are!"

The grimness of his mouth hurt her. She began to tremble, swept by her terrible pity and longing. She put her hands against him, the blood fanning in a hot tide from her heart. She was afraid and whispered faintly: "Oh!" After a moment: "You better go."

She knew that he kissed her, that his hand ran again and again over her hair; that he bent down to her whispering: "It's no use! It's too late now. Chickie, you love me? Oh, say it—please—look up—you won't? You want me to go? You think I should offer this?"

Then he was going with hurried steps down the path. Twigs snapped, leaves rustled. She was alone.

She felt her spirit numb in a coldness bleaker than death—

Gone! He was gone! The bald, incredible fact smote her, seeming suddenly monstrous—grotesque—unnecessary. Gone—why?

She began running down the trail in her wildness, her feet stumbled. Then she heard Jennie moving about the kitchen, singing in a gentle, high falsetto. She crept back . . .

Silence.

The train going out carrying him away, carrying her heart, her thought. Leaving her to sink in this stark emptiness, leaving her to struggle with this gaunt specter, gone. He was gone now.

Visions His Return

Hours she sat there, limp, overpowered, drinking in the impossible cruelty of his leaving. Again and again she started to her feet, goaded by a thousand memories. They assailed her like brutal whips.

And now she lay there beating the earth in a frantic protest, calling him back, denying with impotent anguish the thing she had done.

Oh, she would have him back—call him! She could feel his arms about her, hand wiping her eyes, feel her spirit sinking to its knees, clinging to his. She lay on the ground motionless, beaten by this storm of ruthless emotion.

Leaves crunching. Jonathan calling, "Chickie! Chickie girl!" Loud, anxious calling again.

She hid in the shrubs. Plodding of his heavy feet. "Oh, Chickie—where are you? Dinner's ready!"

And she had to hurry down, bathe her eyes, talk gayly, pretend, laugh, answer. All the while her thought went blindly in a vivid hooting with echoes.

They bore down on her that night as she lay in bed, staring upward at the stars, all hushed the song within her heart. She heard him laughing as he pulled her head beneath the water, kissed her with his teasing: "Another sin, frail! Like it?" Only yesterday—

Then the tenderness that caught her with such thrill as he promised: "I won't bother you again. You're too sweet, Chickie! That's the trouble." Tears ran down her temples to the pillow.

In the morning a feverish impatience—almost a gladness—seized her. He would wire—send a telegram. He would say: "Ah, listen, Chickie, I can't stay here. I'm coming back!" She must get that message, hug it to her. She hurried to the station.

Letter From Janina

There was no word. Nor the next day. It was the beginning of days that devastated her mind, tore away its poise and left in its place only a wild, aching protest, made her heart a clamorous, seething thing that awakened her in the night, weak and terrified by its demanding.

It was terrible being around Jonathan, meeting his kind, half-teasing eyes. Jonathan had such a way of raising her face and searching it, chuckling: "Chickie girl, lonesome?"

Thursday she went to the station, stood in the long, frivolous line. She had to dress herself, comb her hair all smooth, laugh, chat, wait. But nothing seemed to her necessary.

Wanda Lent, pretty in a vivacious gypsy fashion, and one of the youngsters who had tried archly to flirt with Barry, stood at Chickie's side. This had happened three times. Twice she had seen Chickie walk away without receiving any mail. Now she whispered in the fulsome sympathy of 16: "Oh, you ole dear, I hope you get one today. Not much of a letter writer, is he?"

Chickie answered flippantly: "Oh, these men, Wanda! Out of sight—out of mind!"

"Now—I don't know about that. I guess, perhaps, he's coming up again today or tomorrow? Don't you let him go or I might take him!"

"I'll tell him, Wanda." And she had to keep that up while old Charley fuddled over the mail.

There was a letter. It was from Janina. Chickie tore it open. A sentence in the middle of the page leaped to her. It told a thing of Barry. Chickie read it leaning on the bridge over the creek. She was unable to walk further . . . held in a fainting weakness.

COQUETTE

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

"Or light or dark, or short or tall,
She sets a spring to snare them all;
All's one to her—above her fan
She'd make sweet eyes at Caliban."

HEAVEN assumes different pictorial effects for you and me—for Jim and Jack; for Gwen and Glorictte. You may want to play upon a golden-stringed harp and eat honey; but I want to do something I think far more wonderful and honey makes me ill, in spite of my artistic response to the beauty of its name. Heaven may be all rose-hued to you. To some time-harassed person it may be any color just so there will be vast, inexhaustible allowances of time—time—time to dawdle over meals, time to read the book that lies and lures, time to dream a little, endless time. The pictures that heaven means to each and all of us would fill a vast, thin leaved volume that would need a ladder to be looked at.

There are just as many pictures in the book that is titled "What Is a Marvelous Time?"

The blue sea from a ship-rail for you. The prairie-sea with a blue wall of mountains beyond, for me. The library to roam over for Jill. Musical comedy for Jack. The garage and a work-bench in the wee small hours with no one to disturb, and a trunk-load of new tools to work with, for Bill.

But for Gloriette, the coquette! Just two beaux at the same time, one dark, the other Nordic, both whispering the same thing, one in one pink ear, the other in the other! That's a marvelous time!

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Thrilled at Story of Junior's Heroism

"WHAT utter nonsense!" I exclaimed as Katherine told me that the police had put Katie and Jim through a course of questioning because they suspected them of having guilty knowledge of the attempted burglary at the farmhouse.

"I do not need to ask you who came off second best in that interview," I said, smiling.

"No, any question like that would be distinctly superfluous." Katherine said with an answering grin. "Katie was magnificent. Jim took it coolly, stolidly, as he does everything, and he had the good sense to see that your father's insistence upon his trustworthiness and Katie's was the only thing he needed, that the wild theories of the police did not matter. But Katie was like a madwoman. I expected tears and hysteria, but she didn't indulge in either. She simply let loose on those officers such a torrent of invective as I do not believe they ever had heard before. She traced their ancestry back for generations, and she tore their appearance, their professional records and their reputations into shreds."

I went back to the question most important to me.

"Junior," I faltered. "He must have been terribly frightened."

The reassuring smile she flashed me held amusement in it.

"On the contrary," she said, "your young son had the time of his young life. His grandmother had been reading 'Treasure Island' to him, and when the shot awakened us he called out to me from his room, 'Aunt Katherine, I think the pirates are boarding us.' I saw that his voice was not frightened, so I took the easiest way out and said, 'I think so, too, Junior,' as I slipped into my bathrobe. The next instant the door flew open and one of the men appeared and switched on the light and caught Junior up. I managed to get hold of the man's sleeve, but he knocked me off——"

"Were you hurt?" I interrupted, for I could visualize her intrepid dash and knew that she would never consider her own safety in the face of any danger to a charge of hers.

"You don't see any broken bones or bandages, do you?" she evaded.

"No, but I imagine you have some interesting bruises," I countered.

"Nothing to broadcast in the list of casualties," she retorted. "But don't waste time worrying about me. I want to tell you what a perfect trump Junior was. He didn't even utter an 'Oh!' when the man grabbed him up, but when I was grappling with the man he said as cool as you please:

"'Better not make him mad, Aunt Katherine. They prob'ly want me for a hostage, and you won't do any good doing that. I'll get along all right.'"

I could not see Katherine just then, but behind my wet eyes was the vision of that dauntless little figure held as a shield before the breast of a ruffian. My brave little lad! I could not wait another minute to see him.

"I know." Katherine's hand caught mine in quick sympathy. "He was the dearest thing, and you shan't wait any longer. I'll take you to him right away, but let me give Katie a word of caution first or else you'll find your meeting with Junior delayed for an hour or so while she weeps all over the place. She's about reached the teary stage now. But I think I can stall her off until you've had a little time with Junior. But then, I warn you, the waters will come down at Lodore."

"I'll stand under Niagara," I told her fervently, "if I can have a chance to get my arms around my boy."

"You'll have that in another thirty seconds," she promised as we stopped outside her own door, and then she had passed through it and I heard her low voice contrasting with Katie's shrill tones.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Way of a Woman

A WIDOW of over 30 must be an accomplished actress to appear sufficiently blase and sophisticated to hold her own with a modern debutante.

* * *

The wife who overlooks her husband's first mild flirtation is a diplomat, but the wife who goes on indefinitely pretending to be blind to a continuous succession of them is a door-mat.

Love can survive a quarrel, a deception and even a long separation—but not a one-sided passion for spring onions.

* * *

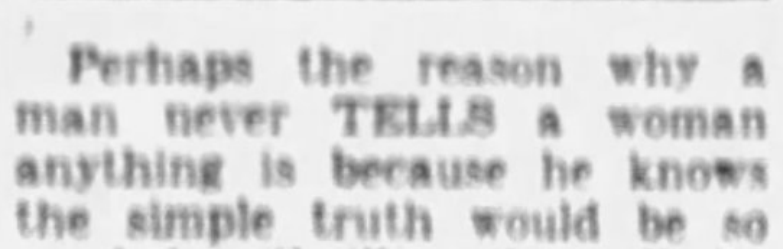
A man who can remark in an abstract way that he "loves the beautiful," and at the same time gaze into a woman's eyes with concrete significance, not only knows the art that conceals art, but has learned the first law of nature—self-preservation.

* * *

Man proposes—but, usually, not until a woman has got him so blind-folded and tied up that he can't see any other way out.

* * *

Every woman loves to see her husband well-groomed; but if a married man ever came home with glittering blood-red finger-nails, such as the girls are wearing, his wife would not know whether to put a detective on him or to send for an alienist.



Perhaps the reason why a man never TELLS a woman anything is because he knows the simple truth would be so much less thrilling than all the things that she suspects about him.

* * *

Somehow, even to an efficient modern girl, home has a sort of "unfinished" look without a husband in it.

* * *

In these so-called "new fashions," a grandmother looks like "just a grandmother," and a flapper looks like her own maiden aunt.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT is just as well to be foot conscious. In restaurants one sees girls with their legs coiled, serpentine fashion, around chair legs. Or they point their toes into the floor, with heels lifted. The feet should be placed flat, toes directed straight ahead. Any other position makes for incorrect posture of the body.

The old rule is that finger nails should be filed in an oval pattern. That rule doesn't always hold good. The short, stubby nail should be almost pointed to give it an appearance of slenderness. When filing start at the sides, working toward the center. The file should be of the best grade of steel, so it will cut quickly. To remove the under-nail skin, left by the metal file, it is necessary to give a few brisk whisks with the emery board.

VITALITY of health, character and mind is a beauty quality for which every woman should strive. The fortunate one who has it lives in an atmosphere of energy and courage. She is electrifying. She is on her toes. She is up and at 'em. She isn't dragging at the heels, killing the spirits of others with her whimpering and whining. Her figure stays young and the efforts of Popper Time to make horrid marks on her face are futile. She sees a splendor in human existence that the fretful dumbbell knows nothing about.

The facial contortionist, she who makes grimaces when she talks, will—in her old age—have more lines and crinkles and creases than an old walnut. It is a bad habit which should be curbed. The under tissues of the skin are soft and yielding and, after the age of 30, lines form easily. A word to the wise! You know!

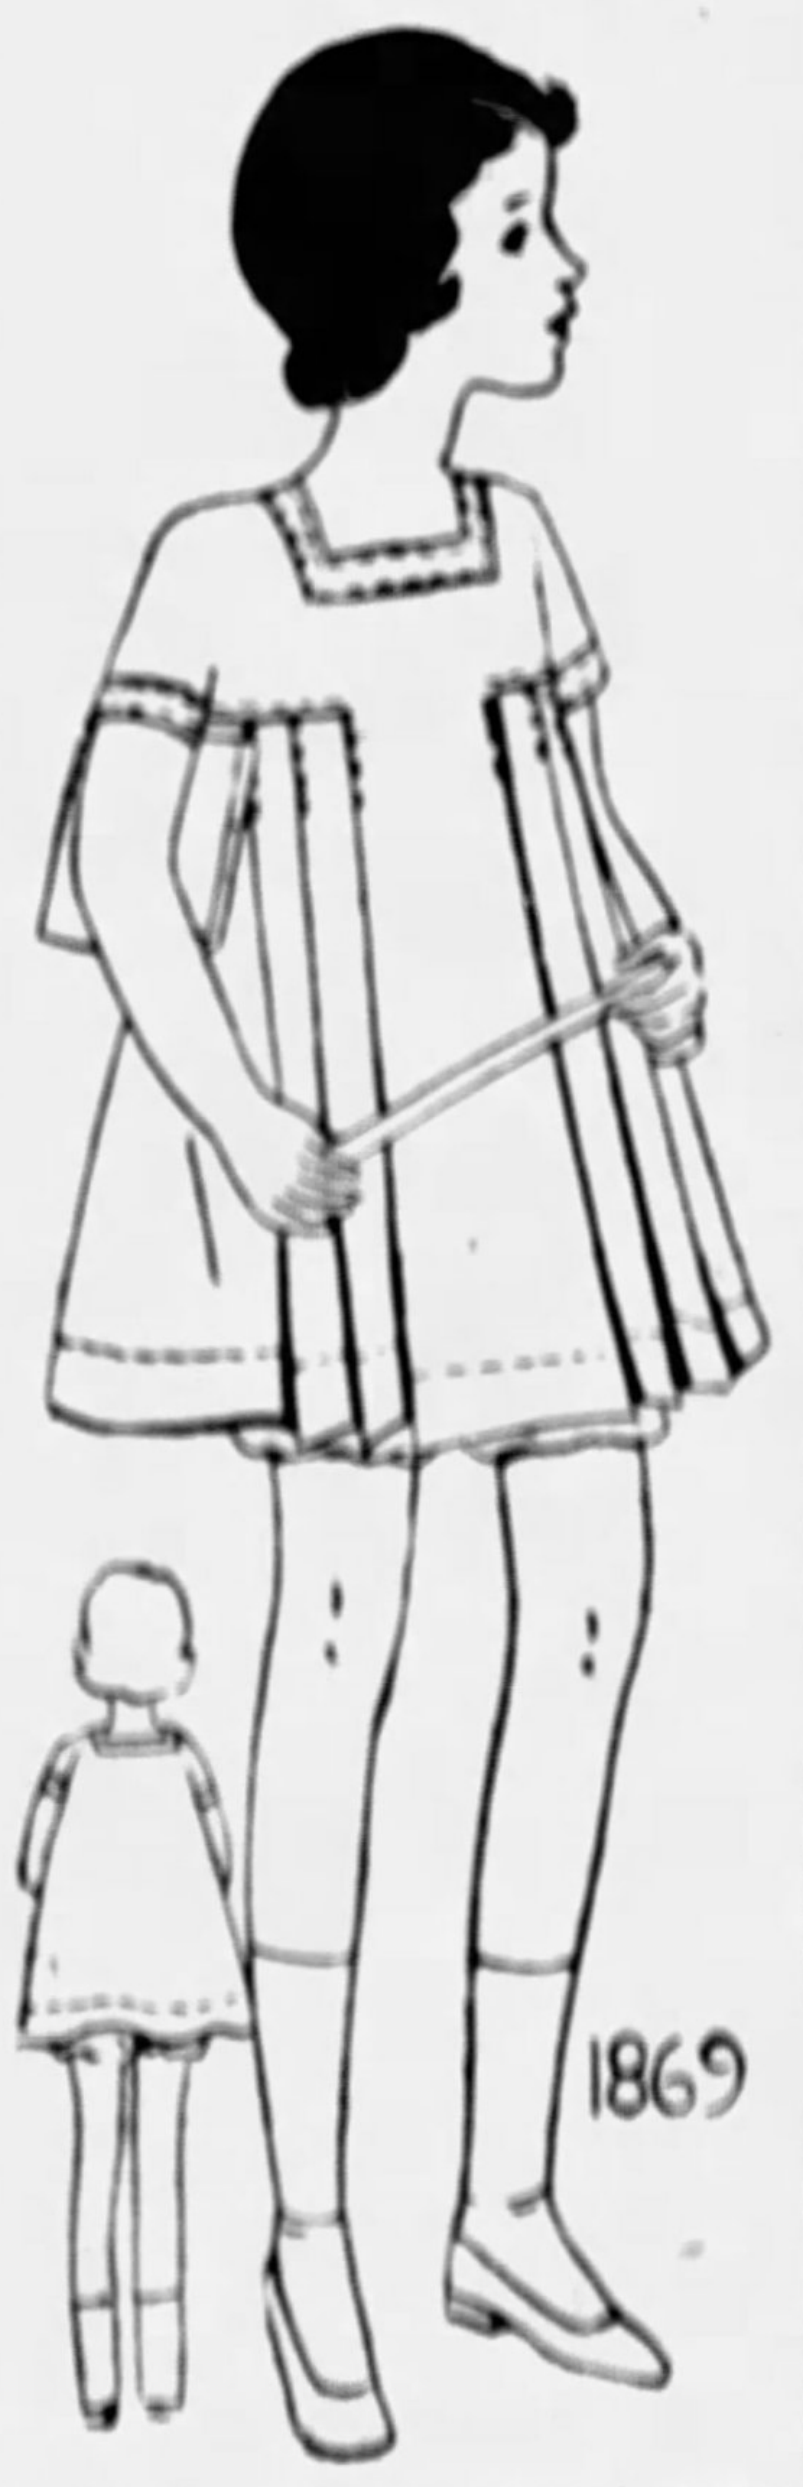
Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS.



The small girl will look darling in this little bloomer frock which uses stitched banding for its sole trimming. The side pleats which give simple fullness and grace, are also stitched part way to hold them neatly in place. A square neck is new and most becoming.

Design 1869 may be made of dimity, fine linen, gingham, percale, cotton broadcloth, pique, lawn, batiste or silk crepe. A print or plain color will be equally lovely. Pastel shades, red, yellow, blue and pink are favorites for wee tots this season.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Uses of the Coffee Table

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have received a coffee table but don't know just how it should be used. Is it for after-dinner coffee, or can one use it when serving coffee and cake in the afternoon?

2. Could ice cream forks be used when serving a pudding?

3. Must cake be served at the same time?

T. A. B.

USE your coffee table for any service for which you find it convenient. For the service of after dinner coffee it is perfect. Also when the hostess is serving afternoon tea to one guest, the tea and plate for sandwiches and cakes may be served very conveniently on the coffee table. The use of a coffee table is not a matter of correctness; it is a matter of convenience.

2. Yes; or teaspoons would probably be more convenient.

3. No. This is a matter of choice.

The Cream Soup Spoon

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am thinking of adding soup spoons to my sterling silver. My dishes have cream soup bowls. The manufacturers of my silver do not make a cream soup spoon. What is the correct spoon for me to buy to use with the cream soup bowls?

A READER.

ARE you sure that the manufacturers of your silver are not planning to make the cream soup spoon? Besides the manufacturers that I know are making the cream soup spoon, I know of several others who are having such spoons designed now, and they will manufacture them soon. If you will send me the name of your pattern and make of silver—or even just the name of the manufacturer—I shall be very happy to let you know whether or not it will be possible for you to get this spoon soon.

Household Hints

Mildew on leather can be removed by rubbing first with vaseline and then with a soft cloth.

Rub a fresh lemon thoroughly into a sour sponge and rinse several times in lukewarm water. It will become as fresh as when new.

A stiff bristle clothes brush or whisk broom aids in the cleaning of wicker and reed furniture, as these reach in the crevices and remove the dust better than a cloth.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Rheumatic Tendencies

DR. COPELAND

IN former years there was not much accurate knowledge about rheumatism, or its causes. The popular belief was that it was the result of exposure to the weather.

Today, physicians recognize rheumatism as merely one of the evidences of some sort of infection in the system. The symptoms are those of some body poisoning. The first thing the doctor does is to proceed at once to find the real seat of trouble and to remove it.

Rheumatism was regarded as rare in children. It was supposed to be a condition peculiar to older persons and the aged. Now it is known that the "growing pains" of children are really a form of rheumatism.

Modern science has the X-ray to assist in diagnosing many conditions which were formerly obscure. It has helped greatly in locating diseased teeth. One eminent medical man has said that more than half the ailments of mankind come from bad teeth. Whether this is a really accurate estimate or not, it certainly is not far from the truth. Rheumatism is no doubt caused by bad teeth in a very large proportion of cases.

Many children have adenoids and tonsilitis. Some have sinus trouble or intestinal disorders, or perhaps some other condition in which poisons are sent throughout the system by the blood stream. Any of these may cause rheumatic symptoms in a child.

There are several types of this trouble. The trouble may be in the joints or in the muscles. It may be acute or it may be chronic.

"Lumbago" is one form of rheumatism and "stiff neck" is another. There are still more serious types of the disease.

In children, the symptoms of rheumatism vary a great deal. If the trouble is in the joints, the symptoms are mild. A slight redness may appear in the region of one joint. This may be accompanied by a little fever.

In rare instances children may have severe attacks of inflammatory rheumatism. Even in mild attacks, children should be kept in bed and warmly covered. There is a great danger that the heart may be affected. This is the case in children, even more than in adults. Sometimes very mild cases of rheumatism are accompanied by an inflammation of the membrane lining of the heart, called "endocarditis." Keeping the child in bed during the attack will help to prevent heart complications.

Acute tonsilitis often brings with it an attack of rheumatic arthritis and, occasionally, inflammation of the heart lining.

If we were taught to live properly in our earliest days, eating the right food, exercising the body properly, taking care of the teeth and every other part of the body, we would probably not be hampered with such painful things as rheumatism. Early training is important.

When your child has any symptoms described here, you will do well to get a doctor's advice about what to do. He will give temporary relief for the pain and, what is far more important, find the source of the condition and try to remove it.

GEN'L MOTORS INVESTMENTS INCREASE

Holdings in Affiliated Companies Show Gain of $89,451,320 During 1929

NEW YORK, March 29.—Probably the outstanding feature of General Motors operations in 1929 was the extensive investments in subsidiary and affiliated companies, particularly those not directly connected with the automobile industry. A total of $89,451,320 was invested on this account, increasing the corporation's outside investments to $207,270,443 against $117,819,124 in 1928.

Investments in additional plant facilities were on a somewhat smaller scale than in previous years, amounting to $66,893,221. The increase in plant account was principally for the expansion of the Chevrolet division both at home and abroad.

The extensive investments have changed the complexion of the balance sheet to some extent as reflected principally in the items of working capital and cash.

CASH HOLDINGS DOWN

Cash and securities declined to $127,351,530 from $215,905,230. At lower levels, it is safe to assume that the corporation's cash holdings are more than ample for its requirements. For several years past cash has been piling up at such a rapid rate as to present a problem in its effective employment. The corporation also carried a heavy accumulation of cash at the end of 1928 in anticipation of an extra dividend disbursement early in 1929 of $43,500,000. Requirements for similar account early in 1930 were only $13,050,000. With due allowance for these requirements shortly after the year-end, the corporation actually faces 1930 with a cash position amounting to $114,301,530, against a comparable position of $172,405,230 at the beginning of 1929.

INVENTORY CONTROL

Effective inventory control is indicated by the fact that inventories at the end of last year amounted to $188,472,999 against $196,692,868 at the end of the preceding year notwithstanding the unsettlement in the motor business in the final quarter of the year. The corporation also demonstrated the strength of its earnings position during the final quarter of last year, returning net profits for the period, including some year-end adjustments, $25,333,933, which is a satisfactory showing considering that the automobile industry as a whole during this period was operating "in the red."

In both number of units sold and in total value of net sales, General Motors established new high records in 1929. Net sales reached the record-breaking total of $1,504,404,472 compared with $1,459,762,906 in 1928. The number of cars sold by the corporation to dealers amounted to 1,899,267 against 1,810,806 in 1928.

RIVER SURVEY AGREED ON

FRANKLIN, Pa., March 29.—Immediate survey of the Upper Allegheny River Valley, as far north as Olean, N. Work of the survey will be completed by next September, Long indicated.

The expense apportioned among Oil City, Franklin, Erie, Bradford, Foxburg, Tidioute, Tionesta, St. Petersburg, East Brady, Meadville, Warren and other points, is two-thirds raised. Oil City's quota is $3,500, Franklin's $1,500.

Congressmen Nathan L. Strong, Thomas C. SURGEON LAUDS ROSELIA HAVEN

The service being rendered by the Roselia Foundling Asylum and Maternity Hospital was praised by Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern, of Chicago, an executive of the American College of Surgeons, who last night inspected the institution. Dr. MacEachern said that not only are lives of babies, which are denied the benefit of paternal care, saved and prepared for proper manhood and womanhood, but there is that equally important work of caring for destitute and unfortunate mothers.

Dr. MacEachern was told of the appeal for $100,000 which friends of the hospital will open Monday night. The surgeon said five times that amount could be wisely used at such an institution. His call at the hospital was an official inspection required for all hospitals accredited by the College of Surgeons.

DAILY TRUE STORY

The Antique

SELINA OSGOOD made a note of the address—a mental note. Selina had that sort of a mind. She didn't have to jot things down and consult them, she remembered.

"Redfield & Co." was easy to remember.

It was quite early. Selina had been out for breakfast and returned to her room. There would be no need of applying for the position before nine. She had learned that.

She brushed her hair back and secured it in the prim way that betokened lack of frivolity or fluffiness. She adjusted her horn-rimmed spectacles, fastened the old-fashioned gold shell brooch at the high neck of her plain, unattractive dress and gave a look at her "sensible" shoes.

Selina Osgood had not come to New York with dreams of much fame and fortune. A comfortable income was her goal and she dreamed no dreams of a stage career.

She looked at herself in the mirror.

Selina had a sense of humor.

"Neat but not gaudy," she murmured.

"Efficient" was the word to describe her appearance.

A few were already in the Redfield & Co. outer office when Selina arrived.

Mrs. Hastings of the bookkeeping department aided John Redfield when he sought a change or an addition in his staff of young lady employes.

"There are four or five girls and a young lady out there," Mrs. Hastings told him.

"Young lady? Do you mean a society girl?" asked Mr. Redfield.

"Oh, no. I mean she's rather old-maidish, er——"

"Not all powders and lip-sticky, you mean?"

"That's it."

"Not many of such animals left," Mr. Redfield remarked.

Some of the lip-sticky girls eyed Selina Osgood and smiled wisely at each other.

Two others came in after Selina arrived.

Redfield Kind

One by one the girls were taken into Mr. Redfield's office. They didn't return. There was nothing alarming about this. Mr. Redfield was kindly. He let them out another door so they wouldn't have to go swishing out pretending that they had turned down the job while the other applicants stared at them.

John Redfield recognized in Selina the "young lady" Mrs. Hasting had mentioned.

Selina was just a trifle startled. John Redfield wasn't a ruddy-faced, silvery-haired captain of industry. He was tanned and around thirty and looked something like a collar advertisement.

Mr. Redfield passed over pencil and notebook, dictated a brief note which contained names, addresses and four different amount of figures, then d. "Please get Samson's last ter to us from the file over re."

Selina went over and got the letter. She typed the dictated note and sat down. Redfield was glad she sat down; it made him nervous to have a girl standing while he was reading at his desk.

John Redfield noted with surprise that he found difficult to conceal that the typed note was perfect, the addresses correct, the amount of money correct and the dimensions of a plot of ground not preceded by a dollar sign, as so many applicants did with this special test of his.

"How did you find the Samson note, Miss?" he asked.

"Looked under S in the legal on of your file because dictation indicated that n is a lawyer," Selina an-

Salary Named

"Good lord!" said Redfield, then he coughed in embarrassment. "What salary do you demand, Miss?" he asked.

Selina almost smiled but caught herself in time.

"I don't demand a salary. I do want a liveable salary until you find out what I am worth to you—then I want that," she answered.

John Redfield nodded. He was rather amazed. He named a salary considerably more than Selina hoped for but she said, "That will do very nicely, thank you."

"When can you start, Miss—er—?"

"Selina Osgood—and I hope I have started already."

"You have, Miss Osgood," said Redfield.

"It saves a lot of unpleasantness and need of more want ads on your part and more looking for work on my part, Mr. Redfield," said Selina in a cool, even tone, "when it is understood that I do not pet and do not go to any place whatever with my employers."

John Redfield choked a moment.

"I hadn't thought of it," he said, trying to be gruff.

"Thank you, Mr. Redfield," said Selina, and she forget herself and flashed him a smile.

Redfield was thinking: "She'd be almost pretty if she could smile all the while."

Selina was thinking: "Ouch, he sure can come back at you in a nice sharp way."

But she rather liked him for it. To rather like any employer Selina had considered an impossibility from her past experiences.

There was no petting.

That is, between Selina and John Redfield. Just as she wondered if here was one man who never mixed amours with business, she became acquainted with Elsie Courtney.

Selina couldn't make out at first whether this tall, flashy, wonderfully well-dressed girl was engaged to Mr. Redfield or not. Later her deductions were that the girl hoped to be engaged to him.

Mr. Redfield seemed to rather like this Miss Courtney.

Elsie Courtney had not seen Selina Osgood on the four occasions she called since Selina worked there, but Selina saw her each time because the door to her little office was kept ajar.

It was on the fifth visit and the third week that Selina worked there Elsie Courtney came in while Mr. Redfield was dictating to Selina.

"Lo, Jack," said Elsie.

"Be with you in a moment," Mr. Redfield had answered.

Selina bowed and went to her little office.

She heard Miss Courtney laugh.

Then she very distinctly heard her say, "Wherever did you get that antique, Jack?"

Called Antique

Mr. Redfield said something in a low voice. Selina guessed, and correctly, that he was warning Miss Courtney not to speak so loudly. They went out together.

Selina got up and looked in the little mirror on the wall by the tree where she hung her hat and coat.

"Antique," she muttered and then she laughed.

Through the winter Selina's salary was raised twice. She thanked John Redfield sincerely.

"It was our bargain that I was to pay you what you are worth and not to pet," he said to her. Then he smiled. John Redfield had an engaging smile.

"Thank you," murmured Selina, wishing her cheeks wouldn't feel so hot.

"For not petting?"

"For the nice salary—and the lovely way you treat me," Selina answered.

John Redfield looked at her.

"At least I may tell you that your eyes are beautiful and your lashes perfection."

"You may—although I have been quite satisfied with them myself for some time," and once more Selina flashed that smile at him.

Mr. Redfield glanced at the ugly little "common sense" shoes, her spectacles, prudish drab dress. Selina saw him sizing her up. She wondered if he was thinking of what that girl friend of his, Elsie Courtney, said about her being an antique.

In the late Spring Mr. Redfield went away on a week's fishing trip. Not being able to reach him, Selina had, with her own savings, prevented some of Mr. Redfield's personal property insurance from lapsing.

"I—I don't know what to give you, Miss Osgood," he said when he returned and found out about it, "so don't be offended if I suggest that you go and buy yourself some pretty frocks and charge them to me—you surely deserve rewarding."

Selina thanked him but did not take advantage of his offer.

Begins to Fight

Elsie Courtney was running in more and more now. She would slip into Selina's office when Mr. Redfield was busy and wait. One day Elsie said, "I've waited long enough—the foolish business can go hang. I'm going in."

"He mustn't be interrupted," Selina said, gravely.

Elsie didn't like that. "Who will stop me?" she asked.

"The antique," Selina said, quietly.

Elsie started, then became more angry than ever.

"Well, you certainly look and act like an antique," she said, spitefully. But Elsie didn't seem to dare go into the office and interrupt the conference.

It was July when John Redfield was the victim of a drunken driver. In the collision his leg was broken. He was taken to his summer place, a few miles distant from the scene of the accident.

After a week he telephoned in for Miss Osgood to come out and bring certain papers and a portable typewriter and other supplies, also clothes for a few days. His man would drive in and pick her up.

Selina went out. It was noon. Mr. Redfield was sleeping. Selina was shown her room by Mr. Redfield's mother.

But she was now the real Selina—no spectacles, hair modern and fluffy, little frock as fetching as could be made, shoes and hose the latest—no one would have recognized her.

Elsie Courtney arrived and found Selina on the terrace.

"I beg pardon, but I don't remember you," said Elsie, trying to smother her jealousy.

"I am the antique," said Selina, sweetly.

"Ha-Ha-Ha!"

John Redfield, in a wheel chair, had been watching Selina. He overheard this.

Miss Courtney paid her brief visit and went. Selina took dictation.

"Why did you do it?" Redfield asked.

"Employers used to want to pet — I — I had to look like an antique, Mr. Redfield," Selina explained.

Not so many weeks later John Redfield and Selina were petting decorously but sincerely, but it was all right, because Mr. Redfield was no longer her employer—merely her husband.

BALLAD OF THE ELBA FLOOD FOR HARMONICA AND VOICE

(From the Elba, Alabama, Clipper)

THE ELBA FLOOD

Elba has stood for many a year,
And of such a thing as a flood the people had no fear.
The town has been threatened from time to time,
But total destruction never crossed their mind.

The people for years had struggled and fought
For the things that so suddenly were brought to naught.
They were so busily getting to their work
That they failed to see the danger that about them did lurk.

The rain in torrents fell to the ground
While the raging Pea River came up in town.
When the raging waters came across the Courthouse square,
The people began to realize that danger was there.

And once they began to hustle around
And seek refuge on higher ground.
Many and many from the town did leave,
And some were perched in the tops of trees.

The people were now having an awful time,
And the city didn't seem to be worth a dime.

Now, by this time it was into the night
And Elba was surely a pitiful sight,

The hearts of the people with joy did leap
When they heard that the water's rising had ceased,
They wearily awaited the break of dawn,
And their hearts were saddened to see their houses gone.

Now, this was Friday and still the people were bold,
But this was getting serious and exceedingly old;
For those in the attics with bedding so crude,
Had been a day and a night without any food.

Now as they were from the water rescued,
The people were now in need of food;
But our friends from afar seemed to hear our cries,
And at once came the planes with goodly supplies.

Thus were we helped by our neighboring friends,
For they to us did a helping hand lend,
And them, we hope sometime to repay,
But we hope it will be in some other way.

People Are Entitled to Tariff Bill Conference Reports

Unless they elect to defy public sentiment the Senate and House conferees on the tariff bill will DAILY PUBLISH THE RESULTS OF THEIR CONSULTATIONS.

Representative Garner, of Texas, has announced his intention to demand such publicity.

As the minority leader of the House, and one of the five House members on the committee, he should be in a position to obtain from the committee serious consideration for his proposal.

There is every reason why the conferees on the tariff bill, which has just been sent to conference, SHOULD BE COMPELLED TO MAKE A DAILY REPORT TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

Upon these conferees devolves the duty of purging of its more flagrant extortions THE MOST OUTRAGEOUS GRAB BAG TARIFF BILL EVER PASSED by the Senate and the House of Representatives.

Unless the conferees do their full duty in this regard the American people must look to the President to save them by his veto from the hardships which this indefensible measure will inflict upon them.

ONE THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS IS ESTIMATED TO BE THE TOLL WHICH WOULD BE TAKEN EVERY YEAR FROM THE POCKETS OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE IF THE GRUNDY BILL SHOULD BECOME A LAW.

Such an indefensible tax, imposed in large part for the aggrandizement of special interests, WOULD RAISE THE COST OF LIVING FOR EVERY AMERICAN.

Such a tax would mean A RAID UPON EVERY AMERICAN'S HOME AND A HARDSHIP UPON EVERY AMERICAN HOUSEHOLD.

That is why the American people are entitled to know from day to day whether the conference committee is purging the tariff bill of its worst features or MERELY TRYING TO HIDE THEM FROM THE PUBLIC.

If the conference committee intends to purge the pending bill of its most indefensible schedules the committee should welcome the opportunity to make a daily report to the American people of its progress.

But the committee will flinch from any publicity if it intends merely TO CONTINUE BEHIND CLOSED DOORS THE DISGRACEFUL LOGROLLING BY WHICH THE GRUNDY-SMOOT-HAWLEY BILL WAS JAMMED THROUGH BOTH HOUSES.

Enlarged Traffic Body To Continue on Problem

The Better Traffic Committee has been enlarged to a membership of 49 through the appointment by Mayor Kline of 18 additional members, selected with the view of making the committee representative of a more complete line of interests concerned in improvement of traffic. The enlarged committee holds its first meeting April 3.

The Better Traffic Committee is one of the city's most active organizations and one that has consistently striven to solve one of our greatest problems. It will continue, as in the past, to treat this problem, in its many phases, with intelligent endeavor to find a solution. This already has resulted in the establishment of what is said to be the most extensive automatic traffic signal system in the country.

Educational work among children is to be continued and it is promised that the matter of downtown parking and the use of streets as bus terminals will have early consideration.

Mr. Lang Is Appointed To London Works Parley

President Hoover, naming the American delegation to the fifth International Congress of Building and Public Works, has included two Pittsburgh men, Edward G. Lang, director of the Department of Public Works, and David T. Riffle.

No better selection could have been made than that of Mr. Lang. The nature of the engineering and other work of the department he heads contains much of the nature of real problems scarcely to be encountered in any other city. Examples are boulevards hewn and bridged into the faces of precipitous cliffs. Should he be called upon to participate in the discussion of these and similar problems, our Director Lang will qualify as an expert.

He is the type of man who is able to acquire, too, while giving, and Pittsburgh public works can be expected to derive benefit, if it is to be had, from Mr. Lang's trip to London, where the Congress will be held the latter part of May.

Mother Still Supreme As Composer of Cake

The Baker Sales Promotion Association, in session here, [illegible]d that 80 per cent of the cakes consumed are made in [illegible]ne by the queen of the kitchen herself, the housewife. [illegible]a behind the statement was to get the professional concoctor of that delicious confection to put forth a product of such high quality as to induce the home dough and icing experts to buy instead of bake. And we shall all hope they do. Mother would be greatly relieved if she could feel that she could stop in a bakeshop on the way home from a matinee or club meeting and buy a cake that would be accepted as her own by those at the dinner table.

The cake is a noble example of cookery, no matter whether it be a simple loaf of spiced and sweetened dough or an elaborate multiple-decker, with stories separated by creams or jellies and the whole encased in a coating of chocolate, plain or colored icing. It, perhaps, achieves its highest excellence when whipped cream is used to divide the layers and to crown the whole with an angelic gustatory diadem and robe. Such a cake is a composition—a poem in dough.

If the baker ever gets so he can fool the boys at home with that one, his problem of getting mother away from slavery to the oven will be solved.

25,000 Condemned to Death

But They Aren't Worrying.

Twenty-five thousand Americans now living will be killed by automobiles before January 1, 1931, according to the United States Census Bureau. Five or six thousand who were alive on January 1, 1930, already have been killed.

However, don't let these figures worry you. Chances are you will NOT be one of the 25,000. And if you are, you won't have to worry.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

DO YOU envy the friend who is meeting with more success than you have attained?

Instead of feeling happy over his advancement does your mind revert to the time when he occupied a menial position?

Because of a little streak of meanness you can't seem to remember any of the good features you once recognized before he arrived.

You aren't willing to give him credit for anything he has won.

It is due to luck or the assistance of others more than what he has done for himself you insist to yourself and even to your friends.

But you are doing yourself an injury when you belittle such a one.

You are simply trying to make excuses for yourself that you have not done as well or better.

If you had spent less time finding fault with the successful one and ridiculing his methods you would have had time to help yourself up higher.

While you were sarcastically picking flaws he was moving along up and every flaw you took time to point out weakened your own power to move forward.

Instead of back-biting and giving way to jealousy, why not talk with your friend and learn more about how to get started on a shorter, surer route to success and possibly you might learn something that would greatly benefit you.

NOW LAUGH AT THIS ONE

By Herbert Kaufman

HISTORY, after reading the newspapers of March 27th, will preserve just ONE item for posterity.

Everything ELSE published on that date was printed in VANISHING ink. Time will promptly forget the stock market's five million share comeback, Chicago's 19-inch snowfall, the Erlanger will case, the naval reduction muddle, the March and murder trial, and Mr. Wickersham's blow at the Jones Act. There are no indelible essences in SUCH casual events.

But ETERNITY will treasure the spark that leaped 11,000 miles, from Marconi's yacht in Genoa harbor, to start the electrical exposition in Sydney.

THE WHOLE course of human destiny was altered by that achievement, yet not one quotation on security lists paused to consider the effect of this pregnant feat on industrial plans and investments.

The transmission of energy and light without use of power lines now becomes a definite certainty.

The principle is scientifically established and merely waits for commerce to hire it as a general handyman.

Tomorrow will "hitch all its wagons to the stars," and verify Nikola Tesla's prophetic vision of fuelless planes and automobiles.

The future will dismiss coal and petroleum from its employ; home furnaces and naval turbines, alike, will tune in on huge broadcasting stations, and steam shortly return to the tea kettle and resume its original job as a KITCHEN WENCH.

ANOTHER generator will find the bulk of present manufacturing and transportation equipment rusting on dump piles. The hour fast approaches when you shan't behold a smoke stack on the skyline, or a "black gang" on a battleship. Carpenters, iron workers, painters and masons, will soon plug their automatic saws and hammers into portable radio receivers. Farms will be tilled, crops garnered, and water pumped by wireless.

There won't be a telephone pole or an active conduit in sight by 1940, or two spots on land or sea, between which speech can't be instantly exchanged. Obsolescence cast a globe-encircling shadow upon mine, dynamo, locomotive and gas-main as Marconi stretched his ark from the Mediterranean, across the Pacific and founded a new race of Titans.

From the loins of that spark, a succession of conquering robots will derive. "Time will not wither, nor age destroy, their infinite variety."

CHEAPER methods, shorter cuts, lower overheads, higher speeds, a closer linking of the continents, will accrue from this prodigious capture of space and matter.

But it carries ruin in its wake, TOO; ruin for capital that sticks too LONG to rejected lasts; ruin for all business that does not anticipate its substitution for the suddenly incompetent methods under which we now produce. The average man and concern didn't even read through the cabled announcement of the century's SUPREME miracle.

The average man never looks two jumps ahead. That's why opportunity remains so unevenly DIVIDED, and the signs along success street are always CHANGING.

The record wagers a million to ONE that you'll ALSO muff the chance to stake a claim on this latest frontier of enterprise—just as you let Ford and Zukor, Sarnoff and Warner and Wright turn the laugh on you and the REST of the smart-alecks, who were SO smugly sure that automobiles, motion pictures, radio, talkies and aviation "couldn't be done."

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

IN BOTH these types the lower arm and leg contained two separate bones, and the fore-limb could still be twisted and turned about in a way impossible for the modern horse. Number three, Epihippus, with only two species hitherto described, is from the Upper Eocene (V A3). It is still four-toed, but the fourth toe is smaller, the central toes larger, and two of the three pre-molar teeth are just like the true grinders. There is no real break between it and Orohippus.

That closes our Main Stage I. Mesohippus is the first type of Main Stage II, the horses with three usable toes. Between it and Epihippus there is a slight gap, during which the final stages in the reduction of the fourth front toe to the merest splint must have been run through, and during which there was also a considerable increase in size.

H. G. Wells.

Thousands of specimens of the genus have been found, the earliest from the Lower Oligocene (V B1), but running on through Middle into Upper; these can be separated into no less than 18 species. All three of the actively-grinding premolars are now like the molars, and in the forearm and lower leg one of the two bones is enlarged to take nearly all the weight, while the other is on the way to disappearance.

The fifth genus is called Miohippus. It is first found in the Upper Oligocene (V C1), and is scarcely to be separated from Mesohippus, save by its rather larger size (up to that of a sheep) and the better mechanical construction of the skeleton of its wrist and ankle.

It also is abundant and variable, with 17 known species. Parahippus, first found in the next higher rock formation, the Lower Miocene, is a real connecting link between Main Stage II and Main Stage III. The earlier of the 18 species so far discovered are on the whole very like Miohippus, while some of the later forms have the outer two hoofs and digits so much reduced as to be useless.

The teeth, too, are interesting; the cement filling appears for the first time, but only in some of the later species is it anything but a very thin coating.

Parahippus runs on right through the Miocene; but already by the Middle Miocene (V C2) a more progressive type had appeared, which is called Merychippus. This type, abundant and wide-ranging, with some 25 species, definitely initiates our Main Stage III, for its side toes never touch the ground. But it makes a greater advance in the depth of the teeth.

In the earliest species of Merychippus the grinders are only as high as wide; in some of the latest, the height is two-and-a-half times the width. The cement is always abundant, though it was not-deposited until just before the tooth emerged from its bone socket, instead of some time before, as in the living horse.

The ulna, the dwindling second bone in the lower fore-limb, is a separate splint in colts of Merychippus, but in the adults is fused with the main bone or radius, as it is from birth onward in modern horses; here we get a second glimpse of recapitulation, that widespread phenomenon of which the three-toed embryos of modern horses have already given us an example. Much increase in size also took place within the group before it faded out in the early Pliocene (V D1), the later forms being often as big as small ponies.

Our eighth genus, Pliohippus, grades back insensibly into some of the Merychippus forms, first emerging distinctly toward the very end of the Miocene (V C3) and continuing through the Lower Pliocene (V D1).

As regards feet, Pliohippus bridges the gap between Main Stages III and IV, some of its 17 species possessing tiny but perfect side toes complete with miniature but useless hoofs, while in others they were reduced to single splints as in modern horses.

The chief point of progress again concerns the teeth. In earlier genera, the molars led the way; then their more elaborate pattern was gradually adopted by the premolars, too. However, this applied to the permanent premolars; their milk-teeth predecessors in the colt were always of simpler pattern.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 29.—The magician rides a top wave again. For a number of years he was in almost total obscurity and his only engagements were at parties for children, Coney Island side shows and the fly by night carnival exhibitions at the cross roads.

Today his opulence compares to the days when fashionable audiences in evening attire flocked to see the incredible legerdemain of Herman the Great. The late Houdini, master illusionist, brought a temporary revival to magic, but with his passing another decline set in.

During the past winter the high light of two musical revues was Fred Keating, a suave and soapy fellow with drawing room manners and dandiacal flamboyance, who ambled in and out various scenes grabbing hooduses out of the air and making dinguses disappear with mysterious abandon.

He later appeared with his tric[illegible] in a two-man show for a brief run on Broadway. A supper club, in the same manner, featured another prestidigitator who picked pockets of patrons at ringside tables while they watched the performance, returning the lifted loot at the end of his act.

The new type of magician does not, however, sport a thin mustache, pointed goatee or brush his hair in the Mephistopholean manner. His evanishments are performed to the accompaniment of sophisticated patter. He must bewilder but not take himself seriously. A show hit has 19 girls interspersing dance steps with feats of magic.

With the renaissance, a number of toney magic shops have opened in contrast to the dingy little holes-in-the-wall that used to struggle for existence on Sixth and Tenth avenues. One is a private house in the East Sixties where buyers are received only by appointment.

Strangely enough, one of the largest manufacturing distributing points for magic apparatus is—of all places—Oshkosh, Wis. It has a depot from which most of the professionals are supplied. Oshkosh also furnishes most of the necessary apparatus for handcuff kings.

The debonaire Keating astonished Broadway by holding a cage containing a live bird in an outstretched hand to the audience. He explains what he is going to do and asks that all watch closely. The bird and cage vanish in thin air to the accompaniment of a collective gasp. This trick complete costs $9.75 at the magical supply houses, yet it won for Keating innumerable columns of speculative wondering in New York newspapers.

As an earnest student of magic for years, I have noticed the most mystifying feats are invariably the simplest. One trick to me bordered on the spooky. It was performed in a music hall near Oxford Circus in London. Sitting down front—and I suppose looking sappy—the magician asked me for some article in my pockets. I gave him a souvenir Columbian half dollar, being the type who carried a pocket piece in a snap purse. He tossed it in the air and it was gone. Later an usher came down the aisle with a basket of lemons. I was asked to select one and cut it in halves. I took one from the bottom—cut it open and there was my pocket piece.

Shortly before Houdini's death I told him of the incident. He pledged me to secrecy and revealed the secret. It was so simple it was laughable. There are two chances in 50 of it missing fire.

In other days spats were worn chiefly by broken down actors and pseudo counts and were known as "poverty tops." A fashion expert discovers that out of a selected list of 50 stage and screen stars 39 are spat wearers. The original name was spatterdashes and the first actor to appear on the streets wearing them was the late John Drew.
